THE
YEARLY DIGEST, 1942.

I—INDIAN DECISIONS.

ABADI—Custom of non-transferability—Onus. See CUSTOM—ATTRIBUTES. 1942 R.D. 552=1942 O. W.N. 368.

———Disputed site, if forms part of agricultural village—Test—Entries in the wajib-ul-arz*—Binding nature.*

The true test in determining whether a particular disputed area is included within an agricultural village or not depends on whether one set of revenue records has been prepared for the village and the disputed area. Where one map, one khasra and one wajib-ul-arz was prepared for a whole agricultural village and no separate papers were prepared for the disputed area which had developed into a bazaar town and it was also clear that the disputed area was not measured separately as a distinct entity apart from the village itself, it was held that the disputed area was an integral part of the village itself and that although it had grown in the course of time to be a flourishing place of trade, it could not but be regarded as part and parcel of the entire village and as such governed by the customs recorded in the wajib-ul-arz and applicable to the whole village. (Ghulam Hasan and Madeley, JJ.) SADHANT v. BARKHANDE MAHESH PRATAP NARAIN SINGH. 200 I.C. 622=1942 O.A. 276=1942 R.D. 552=15 R.O. 30=1942 A.W.R. (C.C.) 255=1942 O.W.N. 368=A.I.R. 1942 Oudh 401.

———Limits to the applicability of presumption of zamindar's possession—Acquisition of title by adverse possession.

There is a presumption in the case of agricultural villages that a zamindar is in possession of all the village sites, but this presumption cannot be applied to a town. Where a plaintiff taluqdar and proprietor of a mauza alleged that the suit house was given to the ancestors of the defendants for the purpose of administering to the spiritual needs of the people of the locality and that they were wrongfully constructing a temple on it and prayed for possession, when it was found that the plaintiff failed to prove the case set up by him and that the defendants never acknowledged the plaintiff's title and that they had been holding the house for a considerably long time and far in excess of the statutory period it was held that the defendants had acquired a title to the house by adverse possession. (Bennett and Agarwal, JJ.) IQBAL HUSAIN v. SHANKAR DAYAL. 200 I.C. 744=15 R.O. 43=1942 R.D. 548=1942 O W.N. 351=1942 A.W.R. (C.C.) 234=1942 O.A. 255 =A.I.R. 1942 Oudh 427.

———Town or agricultural village—Test.

Where the District Gazetteer describes a certain area as a town and also states that there is a bazaar carrying on a flourishing trade in grain, a police station, a post office and that it is administered under Act X of 1856, and that houses are assessed to taxation and other documents indicate that there was an inn in the place and that out of a total number of 374 houses only 49 belonged to agriculturists and the rest to persons following other professions, the place is a town and not an agricultural village. (Bennett and Agarwal, JJ.) IQBAL HUSAIN v. SHANKAR DAYAL. 200 I.C. 744=15 R.O. 43=1942 R. D. 548=1942 O. W.N. 351=1942 A.W.R. (C. C.) 234=1942 O.A. 255 =A.I.R. 1942 Oudh 427.

ACCOUNTS.

———Unauthorised construction—Demolition—Relative rights of parties.

A man should not be deprived of his legal rights unless he has acted in such a way as to make it fraudulent for him to set up those rights. A defendant in order to avoid a decree for demolition must prove that he acted under a mistaken belief and that the plaintiff knew that he was acting under such mistaken belief and had acquiesced in that. Where the defendant was found to have without rights made some constructions on the abadi land of the plaintiff, it was held that the plaintiff could not be deprived of his legal rights to get such a construction demolished merely on the ground that the land on which such construction had been made was of no practical use to the plaintiff. (Agarwal and Madeley, JJ.) BIRENDKA BIKRAM SINGH v. HANOMAN PRASAD. 17 Luck. 610=199 I. C. 12=1942 O.W.N. 113=1942 O.A. 66=14 R.O. 474=1942 A.W.R. (C.C.) 88=1942 R. ACCOUNTS—"Dharm Khata"—Meaning—Presumption. See 1941 Dig., Col. 2. RAM KISHAN v. OM PRAKASH. 197 I.C. 481=14 R.L. 241.

———Origin and discharge of liability to account—Stated or settled account and account stated or settled—Distinction.

The right in A to an account by B is established when facts are alleged and proved by A that B is an accounting party and that B has not accounted at all or properly. But the obligation on the part of B is prima facie discharged if he alleges and proves either (1) that accounts have been rendered or taken and stated or settled or (2) that he has received X and has accounted for X. Stated or settled account means something different from an account stated or settled which would, by agreement based on consideration, found between A and B an implied promise to pay. There is a broad difference between the position where an account is rendered and where an account is stated or settled. In the former case the accounting party must support it in the Court. In the latter case the other party is bound unless it can be opened. An account rendered may be turned into an account stated or settled if it is not challenged for such a time that an acceptance of it will be implied. Right to open the account discussed. (Stone, C. J. and Bose, J.) RADHIKA PRASAD v. NAND KUMAR. 1942 N.L.J. 355.

ACCOUNT BOOKS—Evidentiary value.

Account books, standing by themselves, are not evidence of the truth of the matters contained in them. If they are regularly kept and are supported by vouchers or other evidence of the truth of the entries in them, and are otherwise reliable then they may well be accepted as prima facie evidence. It is open to the Judge to accept part of the books as prima facie evidence and part not. (Stone, C. J. and Bose, J.) RADHIKA BRASAD v. NAND KUMAR. 1942 N.L.J. 355.

ACCOUNT STATED—Fresh cause of action—Items barred by limitation, reopening of.

Where the entry in the accounts between the parties show that the account between the parties had been settled, it affords a fresh cause of action and it is immaterial that some of the items were barred by time. The Court need not see whether any portion of the amount found due and admitted by the defendant was legally due to the plaintiff or not. The account stated is binding on the parties and it cannot be reopened on any ground except fraud or mistake. (Agarwal and Madeley, JJ.) PIAREY LAL v. MAHADEO PRASAD. 199 I.C. 698=1942 R.D. 320=14 R.O. 514=1942 A.W.R. (C.C.) 109=1942 O.W.N. 157=1942 O.A. 88 =A.I.R. 1942 Oudh 311.

ACT OF STATE—Cession of territory—Pre-cession rights—Enforcement in Municipal Courts. See 1941 Dig., Col. 3. SECRETARY OF STATE v. RUSTAM KHAN. I.L.R. (1941) Kar. (P.C.) 94= 1942 A.L.J. 167 (P.C.).

ADMINISTRATION—Contract of suretyship—Mal-administration—Discharge of surety—Powers of Court. See 1941 Dig., Col. 4. GHULAM ALI v. RAHMATULLAH KHAN. 198 I.C. 243=14 R.R. 188.

———Suit for—Necessity—Suit by creditor and heir against assets in hands of himself and other heirs—If maintainable.

A suit by one of the heirs of a deceased person making himself and the other heirs as defendants to enforce a promissory note executed by the deceased in his favour against the assets of the deceased in the hands of himself and the others is maintainable, when the deceased has not left any other debt and the assets left by him vastly exceed the debt in suit. In these circumstances, neither an administration suit nor a suit for partition and accounts is necessary. (Mitter and Khundkar, JJ.) LALIT MOHAN PAL v. MANMATHA NATH PAL. 75 C.L.J. 353.

———When comes to an end—Executor—Position thereafter.

Administration comes to an end when the administration business is completed, upon which an executor either becomes a constructive trustee or an express trustee, or may be deemed to have made over to the legatees, although remaining in control as manager. An executor may become a trustee on completing the administration business without being designated trustee in the will. (Ameer Ali, J.) SRIDHAR JIU v. SOSHMUKHI DASI. I.L.R. (1942) 1 Cal. 365

——— Doctrine of—If applicable to Indian Christians when husband purchases in name of wife. See TRUSTS ACT, S. 82. (1942) 1 M.L.J. 528.

———Applicability of equitable doctrine to India—Purchase by father or husband in name of child or wife—Onus—Result of failure to discharge it.

The English equitable doctrine of advancement is not applicable to India. Hence where a father or husband pays the money and purchases the property in the name of a child or wife as there is no presumption of advancement the burden of proving lies on the child or wife to show that the father or husband had put them into their names by way of gift or advancement. If they fail to prove this the presumption would arise that the father or husband who provided the money is the rightful owner. ADVERSE POSSESSION—Acquisition of title—Estate held under rules of Government as inalienable and impartible and passing to successor unencumbered by debts or charges—Alienation by holder—Validity—Alienee in possession for over 12 years—Effect—Adverse possession—Successor—If bound by adverse possession against predecessor. See LIMITATION ACT, ART. 134 B. 44 Bom.L.R. 146.

———Acquisition of title—Fluctuating and indefinite body—Non-secular property—Effect of long possession by members of a particular caste. See 1941 Dig., Col. 5. ORENDRA CHANDRA SINGH v. BULAQI RAM. I.L.R. (1942) All. 1=198 I. C. 82=14 R. A. 261= A.I.R. 1942 All. 1.

———Acquisition of title—Hindu lady on disappearance of her husband claiming widow's estate—Her possession, if adverse to her husband.

The nature of title which a person acquires by prescription depends upon the nature of his assertion, and where a Hindu lady acquires by prescription title to immovable property on the assertion that she had been possessing it as a Hindu widow, that is, as heir to her husband, that property becomes a part of her husband's estate. It does not become her stridhan, and on her death it would be inherited, not by her heirs but by the heirs of her husband. She, in claiming the widow's estate, does not cherish any animus to exclude her husband, on the other hand her animus is one of recognition of her husband's title. The wife's possession on disappearance of her husband is accordingly possession not adverse to her husband. It is necessarily on his behalf. (K. C. Mitter, Khundkar and Pal, JJ.) BIBHABATI DEVI v. RAMENDRA NARAYAN ROY. 202 I. C. 551=15 R.C. 355=47 C.W.N. 9=A.I.R. 1942 Cal. 498 (S.B.).

———Acquisition of title—Trust property held by Hindu father and son—Father trustee in respect of property—Possession of son adversely for twelve years—Effect—Title—If acquired.

If two persons are in joint enjoyment of property belonging to another adversely to the latter, but one of them is disabled by his fiduciary relationship to the owner (e.g., being a trustee) from acquiring any interest in the property by adverse possession, the other who is under no such disability can acquire title to the property to the extent of his enjoyment. The fact that the two persons happen to be members of a joint Hindu family owning other properties as a unit with no defined shares therein (e.g., father who is a trustee and his son) can make no difference to the application of this principle. The adverse possession of the son will not be affected by the fiduciary disability attaching to the father in his capacity as trustee, and there would be nothing to prevent his acquiring title by adverse possession to a half-share in the property. (Patanjali Sastri, J.) ANJANEYA SASTRI v. RAJAGOPALA CHETTIAR. 204 I.C. 131=1942 M.W.N. 548=55 L.W. 509=A.I.R. 1942 Mad. 699=(1942) 2 M.L.J. 187.

———Burden of proof—Suit for declaration of title—Property held by defendant's predecessor under settlement of 1865—Limitation Act, S. 28.

In a suit for a declaration of title to certain lands held by the defendant's predecessor under the first settlement of the district made in 1865, it is for the plaintiff to establish that the defendant's title to the lands had been extinguished under S. 28 of the Limitation Act by the adverse possession of the plaintiff or his predecessors for the appropriate statutory period of limitation. (Lord Thankerton.) JAGATJIT SINGH v. PARTAB BAHADUR SINGH. 8 B.R. 831=1942 O.A. 390=1942 A.W.R. (P.C.) 37=1942 O.W.N. 508=201 I.C. 499=18 R.P.C. 19=55 L.W. 597=1942 A.L.W. 488=1942 P.W.N. 213=44 Bom.L.R. 868=47 C.W.N. 38=A.I.R. 1942 P.C. 47=(1942) 2 M.L.J. 384 (P.C.).

———Constructive possession—Doctrine of—Availability to trespasser. See 1941 Dig., Col. 6. HEMANTA KUMARI DEBI v. MIDNAPORE ZAMINDARY CO., LTD. 201 I.C. 134=15 R.C. 135=A.I.R. 1942 Cal. 283.

———Constructive possession—If available to a trespasser for acquiring title by adverse possession.

The doctrine that possession follows title is a well-recognised one. It means that when a rightful owner is not in actual physical possession, he would in the eye of the law be deemed to be in possession. The benefit of such a presumption can accrue only in favour of a rightful owner but not in favour of a wrong-doer. The latter can acquire a title only by actual physical possession. A constructive possession cannot be implied in his favour so as to enable him thereby to obtain a title by limitation. (Niyogi, J.) NAGO RAO v. JAGESHWAR. 1942 N.L.J. 375.

———Constructive possession—If sufficient for prescribing against existing title.

It is well established that adverse possession against an existing title must be actual and cannot be constructive. (Lord Thankerton.) JAGATJIT SINGH v. PARTAB BAHADUR SINGH. 8 B.R. 831=1942 O.A. 390=1942 A.W.R. ———Co-owner—Proof of ouster.

In order to make out a case of ouster there must be a clear refusal to allow the other co-owner to participate in the enjoyment of the property. Where there has been neither an open denial of title nor any ouster to the knowledge of the co-owner intended to be ousted, it cannot be said that the possession of the co-owner claiming adverse possession creates a title by prescription. (Ghulam Hasan, J.) USUF HASAN v. RAUNAQ ALI. 203 I.C. 391=15 R.O. 205=1942 O.W.N. 522=1942 A.W.R. (C.C.) 324 (3)=1942 O.A. 438=A.I.R. 1943 Oudh 54.

———Co-sharers—Mortgage by one—If amounts to repudiation of title of others.

The mere fact that a co-sharer has mortgaged the joint property is not sufficient to show that he was repudiating the title of the other co-sharers. The mortgage in such a case may be held to be subject to the adjustment of the shares of the parties at the time of partition. (Bhide, J.) KHUDA BAKHSH v. ATA MOHAMMAD. 201 I.C. 159=15 R.L. 33=44 P.L.R. 133=A.I.R. 1942 Lah. 135.

———Co-sharers—Ouster—Proof required.

A co-sharer, in order to prove ouster of the other co-sharers by him has not only to prove that he was treating the joint property as though it belonged exclusively to him but also that this fact was known to the other co-sharers. (Bhide, J.) KHUDA BAKHSH v. ATA MOHAMMAD. 201 I.C. 159=15 R.L. 33=44 P.L.R. 133=A.I.R. 1942 Lah. 135.

———Co-tenants—Ouster — Necessity — Mahomedan families with lady members—Proof of exclusion.

Although the possession of one co-tenant is not deemed adverse to the other co-tenants, the existence of the relation of co-tenants does not preclude one co-tenant from establishing an adverse possession in fact as against the other co-tenants. Much stronger evidence is required to show an adverse possession held by a tenant-in-common than by a stranger. A co-tenant will not be permitted to claim the protection of the statute of limitations unless it clearly appears that he has repudiated the title of his co-tenant and is holding adversely to him ; it must further be established that the fact of adverse holding was brought home to the co-owner, or there must be outward acts of exclusive ownership of such a nature as to give notice to the co-tenant that an adverse possession and disseisin are intended to be asserted. Mere possession, however exclusive or long continued, if silent, cannot give one co-tenant in possession title as against the other co-tenant. In the case of Mahomedan families the practice is common of leaving to the males the whole management of the family property including their (the women's) share and being content not to demand what they are entitled to receive but to receive such maintenance or care as the males choose to give them. In that state of fact it does not prove a custom of exclusion that women are in fact excluded. Nor does it suffice to prove ouster. One can no more prove ouster than one can prove custom to exclude by merely showing that in fact the women have been content to be looked after and have not inquired and have not been told what is being done by the males as regards the shares. ———Essentials—Actual knowledge of rightful owner—Necessity—Acts which would change nature of permissive possession or that held in fiduciary capacity.

Adverse possession need not be shown to have been brought to the knowledge of the rightful owner, but this rule can apply only to one who is a complete stranger. Ordinarily ignorance on the part of the true owner of his right or of its infringement does not prevent the operation of the statute but when one is in possession which is either permissive or held in a fiduciary capacity, one cannot by a mere secret and undisclosed wish alter the character of one's possession so as to get the time running in one's own favour. Held, that those acts of possession on his part destroyed the adequacy and interrupted that exclusiveness and continuity which is demanded from any person challenging by possession the title of a rightful owner. To constitute adverse possession, the possession should be nec vi, nec clam, nec precario. It is not necessary that the adverse possession should be brought to the knowledge of the owner. ———Interruption—Rival claimants—Government taking over possession—Effect.

Any break or interruption of the continuity of possession is fatal to the claim of the party setting up title by adverse possession; and the length of time a break or interruption in the possession exists is immaterial. If the Government holds possession of property to realize the Government revenue and pays over the surplus proceeds to one of the rival alleged owners, in such a case no question of adverse possession as between the rival owners, arises and it is only when the property is set free by the Collector that the possession of one of the claimants can become adverse as against the other. The plaintiff (a purchaser at a rent sale), having obtained a sale certificate obtained symbolical delivery of possession though he was entitled to get actual possession of the property purchased after removal of the defendant who had all along been living in a building in the holding purchased by the plaintiff. In a suit by the plaintiff for possession within 12 years of the symbolical delivery, the defendant pleaded that the suit was barred and that she had been in possession adversely for over 12 years before suit and that the symbolical delivery did not interrupt her adverse possession.

Held, that the taking of symbolical possession did interfere with the possession of the defendant and that the latter could therefore start her adverse possession only from the date of the symbolical delivery. ———Submerged land—Rule—Land not losing identity by submergence—Constructive possession of true owner—Principle of—If applicable—Constructive possession—If can be set up in second appeal for first time.

No general proposition can be laid down that there can be no possession of land while it is under water. The principle of constructive possession of the true owner over submerged land during the period of submergence can have no application to cases where the submergence is of such a nature that it does not interfere with the ordinary use and occupation of the land. Whether the submergence does or does not cause such interference is a question of fact to be determined in each case with reference to the nature of the land and the extent and duration of the submergence. Where the question has not been seriously pressed or argued in the Courts below, and the land in question is a small plot which does not lose its identity by the submergence, the party laying claim to it relying on the admission of the rival claimant that the land is jhil, cannot successfully set up a case of constructive possession in second appeal without findings of fact to support it. Though there may be some ground for assuming that a tenant had agreed to hold under a 7 years' lease in the case of leases executed early in the year, the same thing cannot be said in respect of leases executed later in the year in the absence of clear evidence to that effect. Hence in the case of a lease executed after the commencement of the agricultural year where there is no evidence apart from the recital in the lease to show that the tenant had agreed either before or at the commencement of the agricultural year to hold the land on a 7 years' lease, it is not a lease for a term of not less than 7 years and therefore the period of such lease could not be excluded from computation under S. 11, Agra Tenancy Act. ——Ss. 44 and 99—Termination of right of tenant in chief—Date—Applicability of S. 99—Condition necessary—Treating suit under S. 44 as one under S. 99.

A tenant in chief cannot lose his right merely because the zamindar has begun to treat a trespasser whom he had not put into possession as the tenant in chief. The time for a suit to eject such a tenant runs from the date the zamindar recognizes the trespasser as a tenant. Every litigious claim made by a defendant that he is holding the particular land from the zamindar does not render S. 99, applicable to the case. Before a case can fall under the section it must be shown that the claim to hold the land from the Zamindar is a bona fide one. A suit under S. 44 can be treated as one under S. 99. Where as a result of a compromise of a mortgagee's suit for profits a theka of the mortgaged property was given to the mortgagors and subsequently a suit for profits was brought by the mortgagee against all co-sharers it was held Per Sathe, J.M., affirming the decision of the lower Court—that the mortgagees were only entitled to claim the amount from the mortgagors and could have no claim against the remaining co-sharers of the khewat and that a suit against the former for arrears of rent could lie only under S. 132 of the Agra Tenancy Act and any amount which might be due from them could not be decreed in a suit for arrears of profits filed against all the co-sharers of the khewat and that the suit was therefore entirely misconceived.

Held, Per Shirreff, S.M., dissenting, that the claim for profits was a recurring one and that there was no reason why the fact that a previous suit was settled on certain terms should preclude a suit for subsequent arrears and that the suit as brought was maintainable. The amount recoverable under the Agriculturists' Loans Act, S. 5 in contradistinction to a sum recoverable under the Land Improvement Loans Act, S. 7 (1) (c) is a sum recoverable not as a land revenue but as an arrear of land revenue. Such a sum recoverable under the Act as applied to Berar is recoverable under S. 141 (d) and not under S. 141 (c) of the Berar Land Revenue Code. In the case of a sale for such a recovery what is transferred is not the holding free of all encumbrances but nothing more than the right, title and interest of the defaulter. Hence in a suit under S. 45 of the Berar Alienated Villages Tenancy Law against the tenant and such a purchaser, for the recovery of arrears of rent and cesses, the latter is liable to pay it, for he stands only in the position of the defaulter (Grille, J.) MAHADEO AMBADAS v. TRIMBAK KASHINATH. AJMER MUNICIPAL REGULATION (1925), Ss. 93, 94, Proviso and 234—Recovery of amount sought under S. 234—Forum of appeal against order —Appeal beyond time—Permissibility.

An amount sought to be recovered under S. 234 of the Ajmer Municipal Regulation is originally recoverable under S. 222 as a tax. Against an order of taxation an appeal lies to the Commissioner. Where an appeal in such a case is preferred to the Commissioner after the period of limitation owing to a mistaken choice of a different forum, the proviso to S. 94 would permit such an appeal if the appellate officer is satisfied that there was sufficient cause for the delay. ——Arbitrator — Misconduct —Arbitrator having personal knowledge of some of the facts of the case—Effect of—Award—If invalid.

No doubt cases might arise in which the use by an arbitrator of his personal knowledge as a ground for rejecting the evidence put before him might amount to misconduct; but much must depend upon the nature of the arbitration and the relations between the arbitrator and the parties. Where the arbitrator is from the family circle of the parties, he must necessarily make the inquiry in the light of his personal knowledge of the family, and so long as he bases his inquiry on the materials placed before him read in the light of his knowledge of the family, he cannot be held to be guilty of misconduct on that account.

Quaere: Whether as a matter of law an award can be invalidated merely because the arbitrator is personally acquainted with some of the facts upon which a decision is required. ——Award—Validity—Adjudication upon matters beyond limits of submission—Effect of.

While it is correct that since the recent Arbitration Act there need be no form of submission, and the authority and jurisdiction of the arbitrator is to be ascertained from the agreement for arbitration, nevertheless when the parties set out specifically what disputes have arisen and what relief is sought in consequence of the alleged default by one party, those are the only matters upon which the arbitrators are required to inquire and to adjudicate. If they go beyond what was required for their consideration and decide questions beyond which they were required to adjudicate, their award is void in toto. subject-matter in pending suit—Reference to arbitration through Court also — Award by arbitrators under Arbitration Act — Validity — Jurisdiction to make award.

If there is a reference under the Arbitration Act, relating to the subject-matter of a pending suit in which also there is a reference to arbitration through Court under Sch. II, C.P. Code, the reference and the award under the Arbitration Act are bad, for there cannot be two conflicting jurisdictions relating to one and the same matter, the jurisdiction of the Court in the suit, and the jurisdiction of the arbitrators under the Arbitration Act, even though the subject-matter of the two proceedings is, in part only the same. In such a case, it is impossible to separate the award made on the reference to arbitration under the Arbitration Act into parts so as to separate the part relating to the subject-matter of the arbitration through Court, and the award must fall in its entirety. The validity of the award under the Arbitration Act cannot be upheld as arbitrators must be held to have acted without jurisdiction. (Davis, C.J. and Weston J.) GOHRAM SHAMBAY v. JUMO. I.L.R. ——Reference—Construction — Reference empowering arbitrator to decide dispute in such manner as he thought just and equitable—Power to charge property.

The reference to arbitration related to a dispute over the estate left by deceased M. In the suit by M's widow A against B and C, the parties referred their dispute to an arbitrator who was given power under the reference to decide the dispute between the parties in such manner as appeared to him just and equitable. B raised an objection to the award that the arbitrator had no power to charge property belonging to him for A's maintenance which did not come to him under the award, but was already in his possession. This property was mentioned in the schedule to the plaint and a charge was placed on the whole of some survey number instead of being spread further upon parts of others, in the interest of B himself and all concerned.

Held, that the power given to the arbitrator under the reference was wide enough to cover the arrangement as to the charge of the widow's maintenance upon B's land. ——S. 19—Discretion of Court—Stay—If to be refused when difficult question of law is raised.

S. 19 of the Arbitration Act confers a discretion upon the Judge. It is a judicial discretion, but there is nothing in the section which would justify the Court in holding that the discretion should not be exercised on the ground that a difficult question of law is raised. It cannot be laid down as a principle that merely because a difficult point of law is raised a Judge must necessarily exercise his discretion in a particular manner, and that he must refuse to stay the suit. ——S. 19—Dispute arising out of agreement—Contract terminated under its provisions—Stay of suit.

Where a contract contains an arbitration clause and one party to it alleges breach by the other of provisions as to payment and claims to have terminated the contract on that ground under the provisions of the contract, the dispute is one arising out of the agreement and is referable to arbitration, and a suit in respect thereof should, therefore, be stayed. ——S. 19—Stay of suit—Grant of—Allegations of fraud—Contract—Arbitration clause—Suit impeaching clause in contract as forged and alleging fraud—When to be stayed.

Questions of fact and law upon which the jurisdiction of the arbitrator depends are for the Courts. It is not for an arbitrator to decide whether a contract, as put forward by one of the parties, contains forged clauses or interpolations or contains clauses which have been inserted as the result of fraud or mistake or the like. Such disputes go to the factum and existence of the contract and should be decided and must be decided by the civil Courts. A suit involving such questions should not be stayed and the issue as to whether an added or interpolated clause is binding on the party impeaching it should first be decided by the civil Court. Where there are serious allegations, which if established, would amount to a case of fraud, there is a prima facie case of fraud, and the civil suit should not be stayed. If the person opposing an application to stay a civil suit is charged with fraud, the Court will invariably refuse to stay; a charge of fraud is a very serious matter and any person charged with it has a right to have such a charge investigated by the Court. On the other hand if the party resisting an application to stay a civil suit is the party making a charge of fraud, different considerations will arise as the person charged does not desire trial by the civil Court. In such a case the Court will stay the suit unless a prima facie case of fraud, is made out. A suit in which a prima facie case of fraud has been established should not be stayed until it has been decided whether or not the added clause in respect of which fraud is alleged, is binding on the party alleging it. If the decision upon that question is in favour of the party impeaching the clause, further proceedings in the suit will be stayed and all other questions must be referred to arbitration as provided in the contract. ——— S. 16—Powers of Court—Award by arbitrators—Appeal—Constitution of board under rules governing proceedings—Subsequent withdrawal of one member of board after part hearing—Award on appeal by rest of the members—If nullity—Procedure for Court.

Where once a board of appeal has been constituted to hear an appeal from an award made by arbitrators on a reference, when that board has taken cognizance of the appeal, and has commenced to hear it, then that board constitutes the appellate tribunal, and it is not open to any member of that board to withdraw and for the remaining members to continue to hear the appeal, unless, of course, the parties agree to that course being adopted. In the absence of consent, the true rule is that the tribunal, which has commenced the appeal, must continue; and if any member is obliged to withdraw, and the parties are not willing to go on before the remaining members, then a fresh board must be constituted. The fact that under the rules governing the arbitration proceedings the board originally constituted consisted of more members than were necessary to hear the appeal and that even after the withdrawal of a member, the appellate tribunal would consist of more than the quorum requisite under the rules, would make no difference. When once a tribunal is constituted, it cannot be altered and the mere fact that more than the required number of members have been present at every hearing would make the proceedings regular. The parties are entitled to the united judgment of the appellate board, and it is no answer to the objection to the withdrawal of one member that his presence would probably have made no difference. The appellate board after the withdrawal of a member, is not properly constituted; and it cannot give a decision after such withdrawal in the absence of the consent of the parties. If it does so without such consent, the award made by the appellate tribunal is illegal and has to be set aside. It is really a nullity. In such a case the Court under S. 16 of the Arbitration Act can set aside the award of the appellate tribunal, but it will not set aside the award originally made by the arbitrators in the absence of misconduct of those arbitrators. The proper course is to set aside the purported award of the appellate tribunal and to refer the appeal back to the board to be dealt with according to law. (*Beaumont, C. If the claim made in the suit and the claim referred to arbitration under an arbitration clause are the same, the suit should prima facie be stayed. But the principle has often been acted on that if a dispute involves a charge, such as one of fraud, it ought not, if the party charged desires otherwise, to be decided by an arbitrator in privacy. If the facts alleged to constitute the fraud or misconduct would have mere evidentiary value in the investigation of the dispute they would not in themselves be a ground for refusing the stay of the suit on the application of either party. If on the other hand they are matters which would be directly in issue, then if the party against whom these charges are made wants the matter to be investigated in public, he ought to be allowed this, and the stay of the suit should be refused. In a case under S. 19 (f) of the Arms Act it is the primary duty of the prosecution to prove the possession of the accused, but there may be cases in which the circumstances are such that possession of the accused can safely be presumed, otherwise it will be impossible for the prosecution to secure a conviction. Hence the words 'and control' in the section must be taken in a wider sense and to mean something more than actual possession. Where it was found that the room from which the illicit arms were recovered was in the joint exclusive possession of the two accused and that other male members of the house lived in another portion of the house, it was held that the accused must be held to have the joint control of the room and that where there was no one willing to take the responsibility the only possible presumption the Court could make was that they were in joint control. BANKER AND CUSTOMER—Bank appointed Receiver—Moneys realised as receiver put into its current account under Court's order—If become assets of Bank—Companies Act, S. 153.

Where pending the hearing of a suit relating to an estate a Bank is appointed Receiver of that estate, the moneys realised by it as Receiver and deposited in its own current account under the direction of Court remain the moneys of the owners of the estate and do not become the assets of the Bank. The Receiver and the Bank in such a case are the same person; and the Bank as a receiver cannot become in law its own creditor by going through the formality of opening a current account with itself. The fact that it does so under an order of Court can not possibly alter the legal position. If therefore, the Bank embarks upon a scheme of composition with its creditors under S. 153 of the Companies Act, it should frame a scheme on the footing that the moneys held by it as receiver do not form part of its assets, and the Bank can be directed to deposit such moneys into Court. ——Contract between—Law applicable—Bank having their only office in Travancore—Fixed deposit by customer residing in Bombay—Amount paid by him to Bank's agents in Bombay—Receipt issued in Travancore—Law governing transaction.

A Bank incorporated in Travancore and having their only office in that State wrote to the plaintiff residing in Bombay, on enquiry made by him, informing him of their rates of interest on fixed deposits and enclosing the necessary opening forms for fixed deposit account. They also informed him that remittance made to their account with a certain Bank in Bombay would be accepted by them at par. The plaintiff remitted a certain amount to the Bank in Bombay and wrote to the Bank at Travancore enclosing the executed opening form, and also the specimen signature card and requesting the issue of a fixed deposit receipt for two years in his name and the Bank did so. Some time later, creditor's petitions were presented to the Travancore Court for winding up the Bank, and the Bank thereupon obtained the sanction of the Court to a scheme of arrangement approved by the majority of creditors. A question arose as to whether the plaintiff was bound by this arrangement and as to the law governing the contract of deposit, Held, (i) that the law which governed a contract depended upon the intention of the parties, express or implied, and if no intention was expressed in documents as in this case, the Courts were left to infer the intention by reference to considerations where the contract was made and how and where it was to be performed, (ii) that the contract in this case was made by the offer by the plaintiff in the opening form accepted by the Bank by the issue of the deposit receipt and therefore, the contract of deposit was made at Travancore, (iii) that the terms of the deposit receipt which formed part of the contractual documents providing that the receipt must be sent in for payment to Travancore pointed strongly to payment at Travancore, that therefore, the place where the contract was to be performed was Travancore and that consequently the law of that state which made the scheme of arrangement binding upon the plaintiff governed the transaction, (iv) and that the fact that the interest payments were made by a cheque on Bombay had very little bearing on the legal position. Where a customer intimates to the Bank the loss of a particular blank cheque and the number of it is given and payment under it is countermanded but the money is nevertheless paid under such a cheque, the customer cannot be debited with the amount. The Banker is no doubt under an obligation to honour his customer's cheques, but he is equally under an obligation not to cash them if he receives in good time express instructions of the customer countermanding payment though there is no express provision in the Indian law corresponding to S. 75 of the English Bills of Exchange Act which invalidates payment after a countermand by the customer, the Indian law recognizes a payment to be valid only when it is 'payment in due course' as defined in S. 10, Negotiable Instrument Act, (i.e.) in good faith and without negligence. ——Trust—Customer having current account at one branch making over to that branch cheques drawn on another branch for realisation and credit—Bank suspending payment before receipt of intimation by customer of realisation—Right to preferential payment.

A customer of the Bombay branch of the T. N. & Q. Bank, Ltd., having a current account in that branch, delivered on 16—6—1938, for realisation and credit in his current account, a cheque of that date for Rs. 1,500, drawn in his favour on the Anderson branch of the Bank at Madras and another cheque for a sum of Rs. 433 2-0 drawn in his favour on the same branch. According to the course of dealings with the bank he could draw on the said bank only after the said amounts were realised and intimation thereof had been given to him. But before he received such intimation, the bank suspended payment. The amount of Rs. 1500 was realised on 18—6—1938, and the other amount on 20—6—1938, by the Anderson branch at Madras. The customer claimed the amounts as held in trust for him.

Held, (1) that the proceeds of the cheques must be deemed to have been realised by the Bombay branch on the respective dates on which they were realised by the Anderson branch ; (2) that in regard to the amount of Rs. 1500, there was, on the facts, "ascertainment" that the proceeds had been realised by the bank, to make the amount available for drawing, the amount having been realised on 18—6—1938, and it being open to the customer to have easily ascertained that the amount was realised by the bank, but that in regard to the other amount of Rs. 433-2-0, it could not be held that there had been such "ascertainment". The customer was therefore entitled to rank as an ordinary creditor in respect of the sum of Rs. 1,500 and as a preferential creditor in respect of the sum of Rs. 433-2-0. BAR COUNCILS ACT (XXXVIII OF 1926), S. 8 —Madras Bar Council Rules, Rr. 1 (i), 16 and 22—Advocate enrolled in Rangoon High Court before separation of Burma—Application to Madras High Court after separation for enrolment there—Exemption from compliance with Madras Bar Council Rules—Power to grant—Enrolment fee under Art, 30, Stamp Act—If to be paid afresh.

The petitioner, an advocate of the Rangoon High Court, who had obtained the law degree of the Rangoon University, was enrolled as an advocate of the Rangoon High Court long before the province of Burma was separated from British India under the Government of India Act of 1935. As a result of the invasion of Burma by the Japanese, the petitioner came over to Madras where he was born, and applied to the High Court at Madras for enrolment as an advocate of that High Court. The Bar Council of Madras passed a resolution under the proviso to R. 16 of the Madras Bar Council Rules, recommending exemption from strict compliance with the rules requiring study for one year as a pupil in the chambers of an advocate practising in Madras and the passing of the prescribed examination etc. The petitioner who had already paid the stamp fee under Art. 30 of the Indian Stamp Act to the Rangoon HighCourt for his enrolment there also applied for exemption from paying the stamp fee over again for his enrolment in the High Court at Madras.

Held, (1) that the case was a fit one for granting an exemption from strict compliance with the Madras Bar Council Rules relating to enrolment; (2) that the petitioner, having once paid the stamp fee, as required by Art. 30 of the Stamp Act to the Rangoon High Court, which had the status of an "Indian High Court" at that time, came within the exemption contained in that Article, and was not therefore bound to pay fresh stamp fee on his enrolment in the High Court of Madras. ——Nature and incidents of benami transactions—Purchase by father in name of son—Onus—Effect of S. 82, Trusts Act.

In the case of benami transactions, in the sense of a real transaction, the benamidar becomes a trustee holding on a resulting trust. Hence in the case of a real as opposed to a purely fictitious purchase by a father in the name of his son in which the father admittedly provided the purchase money, a resulting trust in all cases arises in the father's favour, unless there is positive evidence of an advancement or gift. And, if a gift is alleged by the son in whose name the transaction stands, it is for him to prove it. S. 82 of the Trusts Act does not in any way alter the law. It says no more than that the Court has to be satisfied of two things before a resulting trust can be declared; first that some one other than the actual transferee provided the purchase money and secondly, that the person did not intend the money to be a gift. It does not say how the Court is to be satisfied of this latter fact and still less upon whom the onus of proving it is to lie. A sale held in execution of a mortgage decree was set aside by the executing Court on an application filed by the judgment-debtors under O. 21, R. 90, C. P. Code, and an appeal therefrom was also dismissed. But the High Court in revision remanded the case for a hearing on the merits. The executing Court received a notice under S. 34 of the Bengal Agricultural Debtors' Act before it proceeded to hear the application for setting aside the sale pursuant to the order of remand. The auction-purchasers deposited the balance of the purchase-money before the notice and by that deposit the entire decretal dues were satisfied.

Held, that the order of the High Court had the effect of wiping off the debt retrospectively and that as the debt was satisfied by the sale, S. 34 of the Bengal Agricultural Debtors Act had no application and that consequently the executing Court was not obliged to stay the proceedings, (Edgley and Akram, JJ.) BIJOY GOBINDA BASU v. NOAKHALI LOAN OFFICE, LTD. 46 C.W.N. 725=75 C.L.J. 499.

——S. 34—Stay of proceedings—Property transferred by judgment-debtor pending execution—Transferee applying to Board—Court, if should stay execution proceedings on receipt of notice—Transfer alleged to be benami—Question, if to be decided by Court or Board.

Where a judgment-debtor transferred a share in his putni while proceedings in execution of the decree against him was pending, and the transferee made an application under S. 8 of the Bengal Agricultural Debtors Act and the Board sent a notice under S. 34 of the Act to the executing Court.

Held, (i) that although the transferee was not personally liable for the decretal amount, he was bound to pay it if he wished to save the putni, that he was entitled to make a case that that liability was a debt within the meaning of S. 2 (8) of the Act and under S. 20 of the Act it was for the Board to decide whether that liability was a debt or not, and that the appropriate order for the Court to make on receipt of the notice would be that execution should go on against the judgment-debtor but that the tenure should not be brought to sale even to the extent of the interest of the judgment-debtor until the disposal of the application by the Board; (ii) that if the case of the decree-holder was that the transfer of the property was a mere benami transaction, that question must be decided by the Executing Court and not by the Board being outside the scope of S. 20 of the Act, and that if it was found to be benami the Court must proceed with the execution. A notice issued by a Debt Settlement Board under S. 34 of the B. A. D. Act can not prevent a civil Court from trying a suit which is one for a declaration of the plaintiff's title to a certain property based upon an alleged sale by the defendant and for recovery of possession thereof, although the main defence of the defendant is that the transaction was really a mortgage and that he has applied to the Board for settlement of the mortgage debt. Nor is there anything in S. 33 of the Act which bars the Court from proceeding to try the suit. (Henderson, J.) SACHIRANI BISWAS v.

——S. 52—Interpretation — Period between dismissal of application by Board and review application—Period between dismissal of review application and filing of appeal therefrom—If may be excluded.

S 52 of the Bengal Agricultural Debtors Act should be strictly construed. The words "the time during which such proceedings continued" in that section mean any period during which something in connection with the proceedings was going on. It does not include a period during which nothing was pending on the file at all. Therefore, the period between the dismissal of the application by the Board and the filing of an application for review, and the period between the dismissal of the review application and the filing of an appeal therefrom, cannot be excluded under the section. BENGAL ALLUVION AND DILUVION REGULATION (XI OF 1825), S. 4 (1) and (3), para. 2—Right to island chars—If can be claimed by subordinate tenant—Bengal Alluvion Land Settlement Act, S. 2.

The words "tenure" and "estate" in S. 4 (1) have been used not merely as connoting different modes of holding property but as referring to the land or the property itself which is held by a proprietor or the different classes of tenants. In fact, the words "estate" "tenure" and "land" have been used as synonymous expressions. The word "estate" in S. 4 (1) and S. 4 (3), para. 2 is intended to bear the same meaning. Consequently the words "whose estate or estates may be most contiguous" in S. 4 (3), para. 2 indicate that the right to island chars with fordable channels can be claimed not only by the zemindar or the actual proprietor of an estate but also by any species of subordinate tenant who holds lands under such zemindar. The right of the subordinate tenant under S. 4 (3), para. 2 to claim title to the island chars is not taken away merely because S. 2, Bengal Alluvion Land Settlement Act (XXXI of 1858), does not mention that his right is protected inasmnch as a mere omission in later Act cannot take away a right created by an earlier statute. Moreover S. 1 of Act XXXI of 1858 contemplates only alluvial accessions which are dealt with under Cl. (1) of S. 4 of Regulation XI of 1825 and it does not speak of any island char formed on the bed of a river. ——S. 4 (3)—Fordability of channel—Elements necessary.

Under S. 4 (3) it is enough if the channel is fordable at any season of the year and the word "year" refers to the year in which the formation of the island took place. Where the channel could be crossed on foot during the dry season of the very year in which the char was formed and there is nothing to suggest that the men who crossed the channel were not men of average height or that the channel was crossed only in a zigzag manner the channel must be regarded as fordable. ——S. 4 (3)—Title to island chars thrown up in navigable river—English and Indian Law.

Under the English law an island rising up in a tidal and navigable river prima facie belongs to the Crown. A subject may acquire title to the island arising in tidal waters where the bed and the soil of the tidal river were in the subject before the island arose. Thus under the Law of England the title to such an island is regarded as an incident of the ownership of the bed. The Indian law [S. 4 (3)] follows the same principle subject to the doctrine of fordable channel which is peculiar to it. ——S. 41—Rent payable—Decree for rent and cess at specified rate—Subsequent reduction of rent in rent reduction proceedings—Effect on cess decreed—Decree for cess—If affected.

There is nothing in Bihar Act IX of 1938 to suggest that after a decree has been passed, the decree-holder cannot recover the entire amount of the cess which has been decreed. Where a landlord has already obtained a decree for arrears of rent and for cess at a specified rate, and rent is subsequently reduced in rent reduction proceedings under S. 15 of Bihar Act IX of 1938, the decree for cess is not affected by the rent reduction proceedings, the cess being recoverable over and above the rent. The decree-holder is therefore entitled to recover the entire amount of cess decreed and there is no warrant for holding that cess must be charged under S. 41 of the Bengal Cess Act only on the amount of rent as reduced under S. 15 of Act IX of 1938. Sums recoverable under S. 58 of the Bengal Cess Act are sums due to the landlord. If a person is liable to pay a sum, such a sum is due from him. When the holder of an estate can recover double the cess from a tenure-holder who is in default, then when such a default occurs the tenure-holder is liable to pay double the cess, and that is a sum due from him to the landlord. Double the cess on a holding is certainly a liquidated debt and is a sum due. (*Harries, C. ——S. 64-A—Applicability—Double the amount of cess with interest under S. 58—Suit to recover—Limitation.

Ch. IV of the Bengal Cess Act is a self-contained Chapter dealing with the rights and obligations of the parties in respect of a rent-free tenure or holding. The Legislature intended that all sums recoverable in respect of such holdings should be recoverable under S. 64-A of the Act and that the 4 years' period of limitation would apply. Any sum which is recoverable is a sum due from the person from whom it is sought to be recovered. S. 64-A would therefore apply to a sum to recover double the amount of cess with interest under S. 58. The fact that the holder of the estate has an option in the matter does not affect that question. ——S. 64-A—Scope and effect of.

The effect of the introduction of S. 64-A into the Bengal Cess Act is that all claims under Ch. BENGAL COURT OF WARDS ACT (IX OF 1879), S. 10 (c)—Words "for seven years thereafter"—Interpretation.

In S. 10 (c) of the Court of Wards Act, the words "for seven years thereafter" are not attracted to decrees which do not carry any interest. Apparently, the Legislature thought that in cases of decrees carrying interest, if interest be paid regularly, no injustice will be done to the decree-holder if the levy of the execution be postponed for seven years more. BENGAL LAND REVENUE SALES ACT (XI OF 1859)—Construction—Jurisdiction of Collector to sell—Omission to issue notification—If renders sale void—Latest date—Discretion of Collector.

S. 5 of the Bengal Land Revenue Sales Act cannot be construed as meaning that the Collector is required to fix a date on or before which any arrears of revenue must be paid and that when no notification is issued and in consequence no such date is fixed, the Collector has no jurisdiction to sell the estate. The Legislature could not have intended to give the Collector a discretion in the matter. The intention of the Legislature in enacting S. 5 was to ensure that persons who had attached estates in execution of decrees and in certain cases the owners of estates themselves should be warned that there were arrears of revenue to be paid and that in default of their being paid before a certain date the estates were liable to be sold. The notification under S. 5 is to specify the latest date on which payment of arrears would be received. Such latest date to be inserted in the notification is one of the latest dates fixed by the Board of Revenue under S. 3; the discretion of the Collector in selecting the particular date is fettered by the direction that the notification should be published not less than 15 clear days preceding it. It is also well settled that when an estate is in arrears on one of the latest dates for payment fixed under S. 3, the Collector has jurisdiction to sell it, and that the omission to issue a notification under S. 5 in any case in which it is required does not render the sale void but a mere irregularity which may in certain cases render the sale liable to be annulled. ——S. 5—Applicability—Estate not attached but advertised for sale in execution of mortgage decree—Sale for arrears of revenue—Notification—Necessity.

S. 5 of the Bengal Land Revenue Sales Act does not apply to sales of estates which have not been attached but have been advertised for sale in execution of mortgage decrees. The words "arrears of estates under attachment by order of any judicial authority" in the 3rd clause of S. 5 must be strictly construed and do not cover such cases of sale in execution of mortgage decrees. A notification under S. 5 is not essential though desirable. (Agarwala and Shearer, JJ.) RAM RIJHAN SAHI v. RAZIA BEGAM. 21 Pat. 682.

——S. 5—"Land Revenue"—Nimaksayer—If part and parcel of land revenue or "other demand" in clause 4 of S. 5.

The words "other demands" in the fourth clause of S. 5 of the Bengal Land Revenue Sales Act must be construed on the ejusdem generis principle. Nimaksayer is clearly a sum annually payable to the Government by the proprietor of an estate in respect of it and hence is part and parcel of revenue for purpose of S. 5 of the Bengal Land Revenue Sales Act and is not one of the "other demands" enumerated in the fourth clause of S. 5. In view of the definition of revenue in Act XI of 1859 and Act VII of 1868, "land revenue" in S. 5 of the Act of 1859, cannot be construed as being the jama fixed at the time of Permanent Settlement. (Agarwala and Shearer, JJ.) RAM RIJHAN SAHI v. RAZIA BEGAM. 21 Pat. 682.

——S. 5—Omission to issue notification — Effect on sale.

In a case where a notification under S. 5 of the Bengal Land Revenue Sales Act was necessary but was not issued, it is incumbent on a person challenging the sale on the ground of the omission to issue the notification to show that it was specifically taken as a ground in the petition of appeal to the Commissioner and that in consequence of this omission substantial injury had been caused to him. A trivial error or mistake in mentioning the interest to be sold in one of many mauzas comprised in a residuary estate to be sold, in the notification issued under S. 6 of the Bengal Land Revenue Sales Act cannot be said to be a mistake which can in any way contribute to the property being sold for an inadequate price so as to render the sale invalid, when it is found that the notification was carefully drawn up and published and stated that what was to be sold was the ijmal or residuary estate, and it was intimated that if the property to be sold had not been exhaustively described, that is, if some mauza had been omitted or the interest shown against any particular mauza was in fact greater than

——S. 6—Notification—Sale of residuary estate for arrears due on it—Names of all proprietors—If to be set out in full.

S. 6 of the Bengal Land Revenue Sales Act does not require that the names of the various proprietors of the estate to be sold should appear in the notification, where the estate belongs to a very large number of persons many of whom have taken the precaution of opening separate accounts and when it is only the residuary estate that is being sold for arrears due upon it. It is clearly unnecessary to set out in the notification the names of all the proprietors, as persons intending to bid at a revenue sale do not at all require such information in order to know what the property advertised for sale is. A statement in the column headed "Name of the proprietor of the property which will be sold" "RR. and others" would be sufficient. ——S 25—"Appeal" — Nature—If an "appeal" under Limitation Act.

There is no warrant for holding that an appeal under S. 25 of the Bengal Revenue Sale Act is not really an appeal as contemplated by the Limitation Act. The word "appeal" in S. 25 of the Act cannot be interpreted in any different sense from that in which it is used in the Limitation Act. ——S. 25—Jurisdiction of commissioner—Appeal preferred beyond time—Order on after hearing—Revision—Interference by Board.

A commissioner's order under S. 25 of the Bengal Revenue Sale Law is final and the Board will not ordinarily interfere with his order in revision; but where the commissioner entertains an appeal which is preferred beyond the period of limitation prescribed for it by S. 2 of the Bengal Act VII of 1868, he acts without jurisdiction, and his order on such an appeal is therefore liable to be set aside in revision by the Board of Revenue. ——Ss. 25 and 26—Reference to Board by Commissioner—Competency—Non-issue of notice under S. 25—When amounts to hardship—Powers of Commissioner and of Board to set aside sale.

The non-issue of a notice under S. 5 of the Bengal Revenue Sale Act cannot be held to be a hardship if it was not required by law. The mere fact that on a previous occasion a notice under S. 5 was issued when it was legally necessary to do so would not mean that it amounts to a hardship if the notice is not issued when there was no legal necessity to do so. In such a case it is not open to the Commissioner to make a reference to the Board under S. 26 of the Act. He can set aside the sale himself under S. 25, if he thinks the notice was legally necessary, but the Board cannot set aside the sale under S. 25. The conditions which the Board of Revenue may impose under S. 26 of the Bengal Revenue Sale law, while setting aside a revenue sale, are not limited to the compensation laid down in S. 25. It can direct the arrears and all Government dues and interest at $6\frac{1}{4}\%$ to be deposited as a condition for the setting aside of the sale. ——S. 26—Applicability—Appeal time barred under S 25—Jurisdiction of Commissioner to make recommendation—Limitation Act, Ss. 2 (10) and 18.

An appellant under S. 25 of the Bengal Land Revenue Sales Act is not a person having a right to institute a suit or make an application within the meaning of S. 18 of the Limitation Act, an appeal not being a suit under S. 2 (10) of the Limitation Act. The Commissioner has therefore no jurisdiction to entertain under S. 25 of the Land Revenue Sales Act a time-barred appeal. Such an appeal not being a properly constituted appeal, he has no jurisdiction in respect of such an appeal to make a recommendation under S. 26 of the Act. ——S. 33—Fraud—Co-sharer not in default arranging with potential purchasers for reconveyance to him of his interest—Effect of.

Where an estate has been sold in consequence of a default on the part of some of the co-owners of the estate in paying the arrears of revenue, there is no reason why a co-owner who has not himself been in default should not re-purchase the property or his interest in it if he can. Such conduct is not in any way fraudulent so as to render the sale void or invalid. And it makes no difference if, knowing that a sale is bound to take place, he arranges with potential purchasers to reconvey his interest to him in the event of the property being knocked down to any of them or even sets up an agent to outbid them and buy the property on his own behalf. That does not amount to fraud which will vitiate the sale. (Agarwala and Shearer, JJ.) RAM RIJHAN SAHI v. RAZIA BEGAM. 21 Pat. 682.

——S. 33—Fraud—What constitutes—Ground for setting aside sale—Agreement among bidders not to bid against one another—Co-sharers parties to agreement—If vitiates sale.

In order to justify a revenue sale being interfered with on the ground of fraud it must be shown that the fraud in question took place not during the sale, but prior to it, the sale having been directly brought about or engineered by means of it and that the perpetrator of the fraud were the co-owners of the proprietors who challenge the sale or otherwise stood in a fiduciary relationship to them. An agreement between the bidders at an auction sale not to bid against one another and later to divide the property between them, to which some co sharers are also parties, is not void as against public policy and cannot be held to be fraud vitiating the sale. (Agarwala and Shearer, JJ.) RAM RIJHAN SAHI v. RAZIA BEGAM. 21 Pat. 682.

——S. 33—Revenue sale—Setting aside—Fraud—Inadequate price—Inference.

The mere circumstance that at the revenue sale the property fetched a low price does not at all warrant a conclusion or even by itself raise a suspicion that the sale was brought about by fraud, so as to render it void or liable to be annulled. In a suit for ejectment of an under-tenant under S. 37 of the Land Revenue Sales Act, the burden of proof lies on the defendant to prove that he comes within one or other of the exceptions mentioned in the section. Where the exception on which the defendant relies is that set out in the first clause, which saves an istimrari or mokarari tenure which has been held at a fixed rent from the time of the Permanent Settlement, the burden will be lightened to a great extent by giving effect to the presumption in his favour arising from proof of long and undisturbed possession. Each case must depend upon its own facts and circumstances as to what should be deemed to be sufficiently long possession for the purpose of justifying such a presumption. Where the tenure is proved to have been in existence in 1830, it is open to the Court to infer as a fact, in the absence of anything to the contrary, that the tenure did exist at the date of the Permanent Settlement. The very foundation of the exercise of the power by the Local Self-Government under the last part of S. 28 of the Local Self-Government Act for the removal of the Chairman of a District Board for persistent neglect of duty as chairman is the application of the Board. If there was no valid application by the Board to the Government, the foundation of the order for removal by Government is gone and there is no reason why the Civil Court cannot declare that order as inoperative. There is nothing in the Act which takes away the jurisdiction of the Civil Court to try this matter either expressly or by necessary implication.

Per Pal, J.—A Chairman of a District Board as such has a legal character and is prima facie entitled to a relief from a Civil Court from any interference with his right in that character. ——S. 2 (4)—Commercial loan—Test—Intention of parties or actual user—If material.

In determining whether a loan was a commercial loan within the meaning of S. 2 (4) of the Bengal Money-Lenders Act, what is material is the intention of the parties at the time when the loan is taken and it must be intended to be used solely for business purposes, but whether it was actually used or not is not material except that it might throw some light on the original intention. Where a preliminary mortgage decree directs an account to be taken of what is due for principal and interest on the mortgage at the date of that decree and also of what will be due for interest on the principal from the date of the decree up to a date six months subsequent to the date on which the report is submitted to the Court for counter-signature, and further directs the payment of the amount found due on the report within six months of the date of the counter-signature, the interest awarded to the mortgagee by the preliminary decree on the principal sum found due for the period between the date of that decree and the date fixed therein for payment is interest within the meaning of S. 2 (8) of the Bengal Money-Lenders Act. It follows therefore that although the amount of interest due on the mortgage bond calculated up to the date of the passing of the preliminary decree is not in excess of the maximum allowed by S. 30 of the Act, if the total amount of interest calculated up to the date fixed for payment is in excess of that maximum, the judgment-debtor is entitled to apply under S. 36 of the Act for relief from the payment of this excess of interest and claim that the decree should be reopened and a new instalment decree passed. An application to set aside an execution sale under O. 21, R. 90, C. P. It makes no difference that the application is made bona fide. Where, therefore, possession of the property which was sold in execution of a decree was delivered before 1st January, 1939, and only an application under O. 21, R. 90, C. P. The Bengal Money-Lenders Act does not totally abrogate the provisions of O. 34, Rr. 2, 4 or 11, C. P. Code. These provisions are only modified to the extent indicated in S. 34 (1) (a) and S. 31 of the Act. The power to award pendente lite interest in a mortgage-suit is not thus taken away by the Act. Three limitations only have been imposed by the Act on these provisions of O. 34 in respect of the award of interest, namely, (1) that the pendente lite interest and interest allowable under O. 34, R. 11 (a) (i) up to the period of grace, which must be determined in terms of S. 34 (1) (a) (ii) of the Act, would not be according to the contract rate, where there is such a rate, but would be according to the rate scaled down by S. 30 (1) (c) of the Act; (2) that the amount of that interest should not exceed the principal of the loan in accordance with the method of calculation to be made in accordance with S. 30 (1) (a) and (b) of the Act; and (3) O. 34, R. 11 (b) is not to apply where the loan was advanced before the Act. ——S. 34 (1) (a)—Preliminary mortgage decree—Grant of instalments—Power of Court to impose conditions.

In the case of a loan on a mortgage the Court in passing a preliminary decree has the power in a fit case to require additional security from the judgment-debtor as a condition of giving him instalments. It may also impose other conditions with a view to see that the decree-holder does not lose the full benefit of his security during the period that the instalments may be spread over by reason of any act or default on the part of the judgment-debtor. Where the loan is secured on revenue-paying properties and patni taluks, the Court may impose the condition that the judgment-debtor must pay up all past arrears of revenue, cess and patni rent, and also the revenue, cess and patni rent that may fall due and in default the decree-holder will be entitled to apply for a final decree. This additional right given to the decree-holder to apply for a final decree does not militate against the provisions of S. 34 (a) (ii) of the Act. The exercise of the power of the Court to order payment of the decretal amount by instalments under S. 34 (1) (b) of the Money-Lenders Act pre-supposes the exisience of a subsisting decree. An application under this provision is, therefore, not maintainable after the executing Court has entered up satisfaction of the decree in full by the proceeds of a sale in execution.

Per Nasim Ali, J.—It may be that if the sale be set aside later on under O. 21, R. 90 C. P. The Bengal Money-Lenders Act is not applicable to a loan advanced in Bihar on a promissory note although it is expressly made payable either in Bihar or at Calcutta, if the intention of the parties was that the contract should be governed by the law of the place at which the loan was effected, namely, the law of Bihar. Consequently a decree passed by the Calcutta High Court on the promissory note cannot be reopened under S. 36 of the Act. The expression "transactions of money-lending in Bengal" occurring in the preamble to the Act can only mean transactions of money-lending which take place in Bengal. If the Court takes a fresh account between the parties on the basis of the rate of interest permitted by the Bengal Money-Lenders Act and arrives at a figure other than that mentioned in the decree, it has of necessity to reopen the transaction between the parties. That being so, the Court ought to consider granting to the applicant the reliefs mentioned in S. 36 (2) of the Act. The Court cannot leave the decree and the sale held thereunder in tact, and merely release the applicant of all liability as regards interest in excess of the limits specified in S. 30 of the Act, although the price realised at the sale is insufficient to satisfy the dues of the decree-holder calculated in accordance with the Act. If a decree made in a suit to which the Bengal Money-Lenders Act applies, allows interest in excess of what is permitted under S. 30 of the Act, there is sufficient ground for reopening the decree. No appeal lies from an order granting an application under S. 36 of the Bengal Money-Lenders Act. But the aggrieved party can file an appeal against the amended decree. If the subject-matter of the appeal can be valued, ad valorem court-fees will have to be paid under Sch. I, Art. 1 of the Court-Fees Act on the memorandum of appeal. If the subject-matter of the appeal cannot be valued, the fixed court-fee provided for in Sch. II, Art. 17 (vi) will have to be paid. BENG. MONEY-LENDERS ACT (1940), S. 36.

An application to obtain relief under S. 36 of the Bengal Money-Lenders Act is not an interlocutory application such as is mentioned in O. 19, R 3 (1), C. P. Code. It is really a separate proceeding in the larger proceeding of the suit and the decision of the Judge, (subject of course to appeal) when given, is a final decision upon the rights of the parties under the Act. Therefore, the affidavit the Court must receive and act upon in such a proceeding must be confined to such facts as the deponent is able of his own knowledge to prove. An affidavit stating that the deponent learnt from somebody else that the loan was a commercial loan is not satisfactory evidence, nor indeed evidence upon which the Court could act. The rule that a final decree in a mortgage suit is fully satisfied when the mortgaged property is brought to sale and that thereafter the judgment-debtor may be entitled to have the personal decree reopened under S. 36 of the Bengal Money-Lenders Act but not the final decree, has no application to a case where the Court, instead of passing a final decree followed by a personal decree, has passed a composite decree. Section 36 does not abrogate S. 34, C P.Code. There is nothing in S. 36, Bengal Money-Lenders Act, itself to justify an inference that the power of the Court under S. 34, C P. Code, to allow interest for a period subsequent to the decree has been taken away. Consequently, when a new decree in a money suit is passed on an application for review under S. 36 (6) of the Act, the Court has jurisdiction to allow interest for the period between the passing of the original decree and the passing of the new decree. ——S. 36—Reopening of mortgage decree—Interest paid in excess of statutory rate—If may be appropriated towards principal.

In taking fresh accounts on the reopening of a mortgage decree under S. 36 of the Bengal Money Lenders Act, any interest which had been paid by the mortgagor in excess of the rate permitted by the Act should not be appropriated towards principal, but should be credited against interest due. All that the borrower is allowed under S. 36 (1) (d), is a refund of the excess paid. If the excess is allocated to principal, it would be a refund in effect of an additional rebate of interest. By allocating the excess payment to a reduction of principal, the interest payable on that reduced principal is similarly reduced and the mortgagor will obtain a greater advantage than seems to have been intended by S. 36. ——S. 36—Satisfaction of decree—Compromise decree in foreclosure suit—Entire sum payable in instalments—On default of any instalment mortgagee entitled to recover possession—Decree, if satisfied on default.

In a suit for foreclosure a compromise decree was passed under which the entire sum was to be paid in certain instalments. On default of any one instalment, the mortgagee was entitled to recover possession by taking out execution of the decree. Default was committed in 1938 and execution proceedings were pending on first January, 1939. It was contended that the decree could be said to have been satisfied as soon as default occurred in the year 1938 and as such S. 36 of the Act did not apply.

Held, that S. 36 speaks of satisfaction of the decree prior to 1st January 1939. The liabilities of the mortgagor might have been at an end as soon as the decree had become final, but the decree itself was not satisfied unless execution proceedings were taken and the mortgagee decree-holder got possession of the mortgaged property. Therefore the Court had jurisdiction to grant relief under S. 36. (Mukherjea and Sen, JJ.) SAMIRUDDIN MALTEY v. NOBA KUMAR SAHA. 201 I.C. 476=15 R C. 206=A.I.R. 1942 Cal. 224.

The Court exercising the power contained in S. 36 (1) (c) of the Bengal Money-Lenders Act in respect of a preliminary mortgage decree which allows interest in excess of what is allowable under S. 30 (1) (c) of the Act, should reopen that decree and pass a new decree in accordance with the provisions of the Act with the supersession of the preliminary decree, the final decree passed on the basis thereof must also go. The new preliminary decree which has to be passed must be in accordance with S. 34 (1) (a) (i) of the Act and must therefore give instalments to the mortgagor, if there is an application by him. It may impose conditions with a view to see that the decree-holder does not lose the full benefit of his security during the period that the instalments may be spread over by reason of any act or default on the part of the judgment-debtor. The Court has power to grant simple interest at the rate of 8 per cent. per annum on the principal of the loan from the date of the institution of the mortgage suit up to the date of the passing of the new preliminary decree and thereafter at the same rate up to the date of default, should the judgment-debtor fail to pay the instalments, provided the amount of interest directed to be paid together with the amounts already paid does not exceed the principal of the loan. The suit referred to in proviso (i) to S. 36 (1) of the Bengal Money-Lenders Act must be that type of the three types of suit contemplated by sub-S. (1) in the course of which the relief is being given, and in which therefore the question of the application of the proviso arises. If the question arises in the course of a straightforward suit by the creditor for his dues, the date will be the date of commencement of his suit, if it arises in the course of execution, that is to say in a "suit to which this Act applies", which happens to be an execution proceeding, the date will be the date of the application in execution, and if the question arises in a suit by a borrower for relief, the date will be the date of the borrower's suit. ——S. 36 (1), proviso (ii)—Preliminary and final mortgage decrees—When fully satisfied—Preliminary, final and personal decrees passed before 1st January, 1939—Execution of personal decree pending thereafter—Decrees, if can be reopened.

A preliminary mortgage decree gives the mortgagee the right to realise the amount declared to be due on the mortgage, and until that amount is realised in full the decree cannot be said to be satisfied. Where, therefore, the proceeds realised by the sale of the mortgaged property in execution of the final decree fall short of the decretal amount and the execution of the personal decree passed for the balance is still pending, the preliminary decree cannot be said to have been satisfied merely by reason of the sale and the passing of the personal decree. But a final decree for sale is fully and completely satisfied if the mortgaged property mentioned in the preliminary decree is sold and the sale proceeds applied in payment of the decretal amount, even if the entire mortgage money is not realised. Where in a case in which the preliminary, final and personal decrees were passed before 1st January, 1939, and the proceeding in execution of the personal decree was pending thereafter, an application for reopening the decrees under S. 36 of the Bengal Money-Lenders Act was made,

Held (1) that the preliminary decree was not fully satisfied before 1st January, 1939, but that the final decree was, and that, therefore, the former decree was not protected from interference by the proviso (ii) of S. 36 (1) of the Act, but that the latter decree was; (ii) that the scaling down of the preliminary decree would affect the final decree and the sale held thereunder and consequently it would amount to a disregard of the prohibition contained in the proviso, and that for this reason the preliminary decree could not be reopened; (iii) that the only decree that could be reopened was the personal decree, that the Court would have to calculate the amount that could be allowed to the mortgagee if a new preliminary decree was made and deduct from this the amount realised by sale of the mortgaged properties and pass a personal decree for only the balance, and that if the balance was negative, nothing would be recoverable under the personal decree but that the mortgagor could not claim refund of any amount as that would be doing something which affected the final decree. S. 36 (5) of the Bengal Money-Lenders Act applies to an assignee who became such even before the Act. Consequently a decree obtained by him cannot be reopened under that section. Other provisions of the Act do however apply. There is nothing in S. 30 which makes its provisions subject to their being invoked under S. 36. If, therefore, the borrower shows that the sum he has paid is equal to or exceeds twice the amount of the principal of the original loan, his liability is discharged by S. 30 which prevents the pre-Act assignee from recovering from him any further sum. It makes no difference whether the contract is executory or executed. S. 65 of the Contract Act, however, applies to such a case although an imperative provision of an Act has rendered the contract unenforceable and so void. Under this section, the party who has received any advantage under the contract is liable to make compensation to the other party, if the latter has suffered any loss. In order to attract the operation of S. 3 of Bengal Non-Agricultural Tenancy (Temporary Provisions) Act, what is necessary is that the suit or proceeding must be one for ejectment of a non-agricultural tenant and the ejectment must be sought for on a ground other than non-payment of rent. The words "suit for ejectment on account of non-payment of rent" refer to cases where the lease contains a condition that it will be forfeited if there is default in the payment of rent for a certain period. A suit for ejectment of a tenant on a ground other than non-payment of rent must, therefore, be stayed under the section, although rent is also claimed in such a suit. What the legislature intended is that only the suit for the ejectment should be stayed and that the Court should proceed with the suit so far as it relates to the recovery of rent. If the application for stay is made after such a suit is decreed and the decree is put into execution, the Court should stay the proceeding for the delivery of possession only and allow the decree-holder to proceed with the execution of the decree so far as it relates to recovery of arrears of rents and costs. ——S. 11, Cl. (2)—Cancellation of intermediate tenure—Requirements.

In order that the intermediate tenure may stand cancelled the requirements of S. 11, Cl. (2) of the Putni Regulation are the following:—(1) The putni taluk must be sold (a) under the rules of the Regulation, (b) for its own arrears. (2) The intermediate tenure must originate with the holder of the putni that is sold. (3) The putnidar who created the intermediate tenure had no special authority to grant such tenure from his superior landlord. The last few lines of the clause which purport to contain the reason for the cancellation of the intermediate tenure make it clear that the tenure which is thus liable to be cancelled must be the one carved out of the interest of the defaulting putnidar and consequently must necessarily be the one created after the putni that is sold. BENGAL PUBLIC GAMBLING ACT (II OF 1867), S. 3—Conviction under—Proof required.

A conviction under S. 3 of the Bengal Act (II of 1867) cannot be sustained in the absence of a finding that the premises in question were being used as a common gaming house within the meaning of the definition in S. 1. In order to establish this point, the prosecution would have to prove that the instruments of gaming found in the place were kept or used for the profit of the lessee of the premises. BENGAL RENT RECOVERY UNDER-TENURES ACT (VIII OF 1865), S. 16—"Incumbrance which may have accrued thereon by any act of any holder, etc."—Meaning of—Under-raiyat with occupancy right—If affected by sale for arrears of rent under Chota Nagpur Tenancy Act.

Although an under-raiyati interest is an incumbrance accrued on the holding by an act of the raiyat, the occupancy right which is acquired by the under-raiyat by custom is not a creation of the raiyat. It is a creation of custom, and therefore of law, custom having the force of law. Hence the interest of an under-raiyat who acquires occupancy right by custom cannot be said an "incumbrance which may have accrued thereon by any act of any holder of the said under-tenure" within the meaning of S. 16 of the Bengal Rent Recovery (Under-Tenures) Act of 1865. The section does not therefore entitle the purchaser of an under-tenure to eject an occupancy raiyat in actual possession of the land in a holding which is sold for arrears of rent under S. 208 of Chota Nagpur Tenancy Act. Nor does the section entitle the purchaser of a raiyati holding to eject an under-raiyat having occupancy right in the land. BENGAL TENANCY ACT (1885), S. 26-B.

period subsequent to the transfer comes to an end in spite of his personal covenant. The rule of English Law that his liability will only cease by reason of a privity of contract after the transferee is accepted a tenant by the lessor, is not applicable to such a case. The effect of a transfer being completed with all the formalities required by S. 12 of the Act is that there is a statutory obligation on the part of the lessor to recognise the transferee as a tenant. Of course if there is a contract between a landlord and a tenant that the tranfer shall not be valid and binding unless security is given or some other condition is fulfilled, the original tenant might still remain liable for the rent. But when there is no such condition, the lessor has got no other option but to recognise the transferee. ——S. 88 (6)—Order refusing application for sub-division on ground that applicant and opposite party are not co-sharers—Appeal, if competent.

The Civil Court hearing an application for the sub-division of a tenancy is entitled to decide whether or not the applicant and the opposite party are co sharers and a decision on this point is clearly a decision under S. 88 of the B. ——S. 88 (6)—"Prescribed fee"—Meaning—Fee not prescribed by Local Government—Appeal, if competent without any fee being paid.

The words "prescribed fee" in S. 88 (6) of the B. T. Act do not mean the "mutation fee" mentioned in sub-S. (4) but mean the fee prescribed by the Local Government. But the fact that the Local Government has not prescribed any fee cannot take away the right of appeal granted by sub-S. (6). The reasonable interpretation of the sub-section would be that until the fee is prescribed, the appeal would lie without any fee being paid. ——Ss. 104-H and 111-A—If provide alternative remedies.

It cannot be said that S. 111-A provides an alternative remedy, even if the remedy provided by S. 104-H is no longer open. Even if the language of the proviso to S. 111-A were loose enough to permit of it, the specific provisions of Ss. 104-H and 104-J cannot be cut down by any such construction; it would render nugatory the period of limitation of action provided by S. 104-H and the finality provided by S. 104-J. Therefore, where the lessees fail to institute within the prescribed period any suit under S. 104 H, their liability for the rent must be deemed to have been correctly settled by the Settlement Officer, in preparing the settlement rent-roll. ———S. 146-A (3)—Scope and effect—Representation in rent suits.

The doctrine of representation in rent suits does not rest solely on the provisions of S. 146-A of the B. T. Act. Sub-S. (3) of that section enacts no more than this that if the defendants in the suit include all the persons mentioned in the various clauses of that sub-section, then the entire body of co-sharer tenants shall be deemed to be represented by them, or in other words, that in that case there will be an irrebuttable presumption that the entire tenancy has been represented in the suit. It does not say that the non-joinder of any such persons or of any other persons having an interest in the tenancy will of itself negative representation. The question of representation is one of fact, and must depend on the particular circumstances of each case. There is no reason why, apart from the provisions of sub-S. (3), it may not be still open to a party interested to show that, in point of fact, the entire tenancy was represented in the suit by the persons who were actually joined as defendants. Where an original holding had been split up into two holdings and these holdings were in possession of different persons but a single suit had been brought to recover rent for different periods in respect of the two holdings, there can be no doubt that two separate causes of action were improperly joined in the suit for rent. But the decree passed in the suit could not be reversed merely on the ground of misjoinder even in a proceeding by way of appeal if it has not affected the merits of the case, in view of the provisions of S. 99, C. P. Code. If there was no appeal from the decree and no objection was raised by any of the defendants concerned to the frame of the suit, they cannot be heard to say in a subsequent suit that the decree was without jurisdiction. If in passing the decree, the Court moulded the decree in such a manner as to enable the decree to apply distributively to the two holdings in respect of which the suit was brought and the execution proceedings were also moulded on the same lines so that each set of defendants knew what they had to pay, the decree has the effect of a rent decree. A suit for ejectment of an occupancy tenant and for compensation on the ground that he had used the lands in a manner which rendered the same unfit for the purposes of the tenancy, such as is contemplated in S. 155 of the Bengal Tenancy Act, is governed by Art. 32 of the Limitation Act. It is well settled that if there is a misuse by the tenant even of a portion of the land comprised in the tenancy, the landlord's right to eject may and must be exercised in respect of the whole holding, and he cannot bring a suit for ejectment only from the portion which was actually misused. But this does not mean that where the tenants affect only a portion of the land by any acts of waste, the landlord shall be bound to sue at once and that he may not wait till further acts of waste are committed on the rest of the tenancy. Similarly, it does not follow that because a suit for ejectment may be barred, if it is founded on any particular act of waste or misuse, it may not yet be within time as regards other acts of a similar kind which might equally found a fresh cause of action. Therefore, in order to decide whether a suit is barred or not, it is necessary for the Court to come to an express finding as to when the plaintiff first came to know of each of the several acts of misuse or waste alleged. It is also necessary to see when the various acts complained of produced the result which would give the plaintiff the right to sue. The right to sue does not accrue until and unless the land has been rendered unfit for the purposes of the tenancy. The result is not necessarily reached as soon as the act is commenced. Neither can it be said that it is not reached until the act is finally completed. It is a question of fact, which depends on the evidence, as to when and at what stage the land may be regarded as having become unfit by reason of any acts committed by the tenants. P. Code, will operate to require a fresh proclamation to be issued and the proclamation will be one of the kind leading to the part of the sale, which is being adjourned, namely, a proclamation under S. 165 (1) for sale with power to annul encumbrances and not a proclamation under S. 163 of the B. T. Act for sale free from encumbrances. At this stage the words, "under R. 67" in R. 69 of O. 21, C. P. Code, are to be interpreted to mean R. 67 as varied by S. 165 (1) of the B. T. ——Ss. 167, 160 and 159—Sale of holding in execution of rent decree—When subject to under-raiyati interest.

BENGAL TENANCY ACT (1885), S. 168-A.

Section 159 purports to enact an exception to the general rule that the tenure or holding itself shall pass at a rent sale. A sale of a holding in execution of a rent decree can be said to be subject to the under-raiyati interest therein only when the under-raiyati was an "incumbrance" within the meaning of S. 161 but had not been annulled under S. 167 by the purchaser or that it was a "protected interest" as defined in S. 160. An interest will subsist, if it is a protected interest: it will also subsist, if it is an incumbrance and is not annulled; but an interest, which is neither a protected interest nor an incumbrance, must yield to the rights of the purchaser. If an interest is a protected interest, it cannot be an incumbrance, but the converse does not follow that if it is not an incumbrance, it must be a protected interest. An interest is not, therefore, necessarily saved from a sale by merely showing that it is not an incumbrance; it can be saved only where it is not an incumbrance because it is a protected interest. ——S. 168 A—Applicability—Pending proceedings.

Sub-S. (2) of S. 168-A of the B. T. Act shows that pending proceedings are not outside the scope of the section. If the sale of any property other than the defaulting tenure was completed before the section came into force the sale would certainly stand but if the property was attached and not sold, the judgment-debtor is given the right to apply for release of the property on payment of costs. The words of the sub-section are wide enough to include a case where the landlord having put up to sale the defaulting tenure before the section is introduced proceeds against other properties of the judgment-debtor which are attached but not sold when the section comes into force. Such cases would be governed by sub-S. (1), Cl. (a) and the expression "shall not be executed" occurring in that clause would impose limitations upon all proceedings in execution commenced or continued after the new section comes into force. There is nothing in S. 168-A which can be said to affect the Putni Regulation itself. No doubt it affects the putni tenures. But as there is nothing in the Putni Regulation relating to the execution of any decree for arrears of rent due in respect of the putni and as S. 168-A only gives certain special provisions relating to such execution, the provisions contained in the Putni Regulation are not affected by S. 168-A of the Bengal Tenancy Act. Where a zemindar after granting an ijara lease in respect of his zemindari mortgages it to another and assigns to the mortgagee his right to recover rent from the ijaradars and empowers him to appropriate so much of it as is necessary to pay the interest due to him, the rent paid to the mortgagee by the ijaradars is rent in the proper sense of the word. The newly enacted S. 168-A of the B. T. Act inserted by the Amending Act of 1940 is not rendered void to any extent by S. 107 (1) of the Government of India Act, 1935. It cannot be repugnant to the provisions of Ss. 51 and 60, C. P. Code, because of the saving provisions of its S. 4 (1) which withdraws the operation of the relevant provisions of the Code from the field covered by the new provision of the B. T. Act to the extent to which the latter covers that field and thus saves the latter from being repugnant to the former. As regards the Putni Regulation of 1819, its provisions do not fulfil the requirements of S. 107 (1) of the Government of India Act at all. A putni tenure is certainly a land tenure and the Regulation in "pith and substance" is one with respect to such land tenures. This is not one of the matters enumerated in the concurrent legislative list at all and consequently any repugnancy to its provisions is not made by S 107 (1) a vitiating cause affecting the provision of a Provincial Law. BENGAL TENANCY ACT (1885), S 168-A.

——S. 168-A — Validity—Whether repugnant to existing Indian Law—Government of India Act, S. 107.

S. 168-A of the B. T. Act is a valid piece of legislation and is not void under S. 107 of the Government of India Act as being repugnant to any provision of an existing India Law to the extent that it limits sales in execution of decrees for rent to the property in arrears Per Sen, J.—(1) There is no conflict between S. 168-A of the B. T. Act and S. 51, C. P. Code, because these two diverse provisions occupy different fields. The B. T. Act provides its own special procedure, although most of it has been borrowed from C. P. Code. S. 168-A is merely an item of that special procedure and does not in any way encroach upon the domain in which S. 51, C. P. Code, functions. (2) There can be no conflict or repugnancy between any provision of C. P. Code and S. 168-A which deals with the special form of procedure under the B. T. Act, in view of the provisions of S. 4, C. P. Code, (3) Even if S. 168-A is repugnant to the B. T. Act as it stood at the time of the amendment, it is not void under S. 107 of the Government of India Act, as the B. T. Act is not an existing Indian Law with respect to a matter enumerated in the concurrent list but it is a law with respect to item 21 of the Provincial Legislative List.

Per Pal, J.—(1) The Provincial Law in question in the present case is a provision contained in the Bengal Council Act XVIII of 1940, and as this Act in pith and substance is one with respect to Item No. 21 of the Provincial List and not with respect to any matter in the Concurrent List, it does not come within the mischief of S. 107 (1) of the Government of India Act. (2) If the rival existing Indian Law be taken to be S. 51, C. P. Code, as adapted by S. 143 (2) of the B. T. Act, even the provision of the existing Indian Law will not be with respect to any matter in the Concurrent List as that will, in pith and substance be a part of the law relating to landlord and tenant, and consequently S. 107 of the Government of India Act will not be applicable. (3) As S. 51, C. P. Code, does not give to the decree-holder a right to execute his decree against all the properties of the judgment-debtor but simply gives the procedure in execution, there is no repugnancy between this section and S. 168-A of the B. T. Act. (4) Even without the help of S. 4, C. P. Code, there will be no repugnancy between S. 51, C. P. Code and S. 168-A of the B. T. Act, as according to the recognised rules of construction the general provision of C. P. Code must give place to the special provision contained in S. 168-A of the B. T. Act. ——S. 168-A (1) (a), proviso—Applicability—Tenure not for fixed period—Extinction of tenancy by merger.

The proviso to S. 168-A (1) (a) of the B. T. Act is not limited in its application to a tenancy for a particular period only. Merger may be one of the methods by which a tenancy can expire within the meaning of that proviso. (Mukherjea and Blank, JJ.) ATUL CHANDRA CHAKRAVARTHI v. UPENDRA NARAYAN. I.L.R. ——S. 168-A (1) (a), proviso—Applicability—Tenure sold in execution of decree.

The proviso to S. 168-A (1) (a) of the B. T. Act contemplates a case where the defaulting tenure did not exist at the initial stage when the decree was first sought to be executed. It does not apply where the tenure was sold in execution of the very decree, for the balance due under which the subsequent execution case was started. The words "before an application is made for execution of such a decree" as used in the proviso refer to the first or initial application for execution and not to the subsequent proceeding which is started by the landlord after the defaulting tenure is purchased by him in execution of the same decree. It would make no difference whether the tenure was sold before or after the section came into force. (Mukherjea and Blank, JJ.) ATUL CHANDRA CHAKRAVARTHI v. UPENDRA NARAYAN. I.L.R. ——S. 168-A (1) (a) and proviso—Scope and effect—Words "term of the tenancy expires" in proviso—Meaning of—Proviso, if limited to tenancy for fixed period.

S. 168-A (1) (a) of the B. T. Act plainly and clearly prohibits execution by the attachment and sale of any property other than the entire tenure or holding to which the decree relates, and the proviso to cl. (a) withdraws this prohibition only when the defaulting tenancy which is the primary source of realisation of the decretal amount is no longer in existence. The words "term of the tenancy expires" in the proviso mean and refer to the extinction or cessation of the tenancy itself and not merely of the interest of the judgment-debtor in the tenancy. The proviso is not limited in its operation only to the cases where the defaulting tenancy is one for a fixed period, but extends to all classes of tenures or holdings. ——S. 171—Person making deposit—If necessary party to rent suit—Such person, if personally liable for rent.

By virtue of S. 171 of the B. T. Act, a person who makes a deposit to avert an intended rent sale becomes a mortgagee of the tenure, but his mortgage is postponed to the first charge of the landlord for rent. That being his position, he in his character as second mortgagee is a necessary party to a suit for rent by the landlord. As there is no privity of estate between such depositor and the landlord, he is not personally liable for the rent. ——S. 174—Application under—Allegation of fraud—Application prima facie time-barred—Points for consideration—Limitation Act, S. 18.

Where an application presented under S. 174 (3) of the B. T. Act to set aside a sale on the ground of fraud is prima facie barred by limitation, the Court ought to, first of all, consider whether the applicant's case of fraud has been established or not. If it is satisfied that the fraud alleged is established, it should then proceed to consider whether the case comes within S. 18 of the Limitation Act, that is to say, whether the auction-purchasers were parties to the fraud; if they were not, the application would be barred by limitation. Thirdly, if the auction-purchasers were parties to the fraud, the effect of that fraud would go on until knowledge of the sale was obtained by the applicant. If the auction-purchasers wished to show that, in fact, the applicant had knowledge of the sale at some earlier date than that alleged in the petition, the burden of proving it lies upon them. A judgment-debtor who is a party to the execution proceedings under Chap. XIV of the B. T. Act is entitled to see that they are conducted correctly according to law, and the Court conducting the sale should certainly hear and decide any objections he may make as to the procedure being adopted. It follows that prima facie the judgment-debtor may move the High Court in revision to interfere if the procedure is illegal. In view of the discretionary nature of the power given in S. 115, C. P. Code, the Court might well take into consideration the fact that a person not substantially concerned as to the particular point was moving it, and might make that a reason for refusing to interfere. A mortgagee entering into possession of a tenure on the basis of an order made under O. 39, R. 9, C. P. Code, becomes a landlord within the meaning of the B. T. Act, and a decree obtained by him in a rent suit against the tenants is a rent decree, although the claim in that suit comprises of arrears for the period of his possession as well as for the period prior to it. The non-joinder in the rent suit of a purchaser of the tenure at a sale in execution of a money decree held before the rent decree but not confirmed till after the sale in execution of that decree, does not affect the character of the decree passed in the rent suit as a rent decree. The purchaser at the money sale acquires, therefore, no title to the tenure on the basis of his purchase. (Nasim Ali and Blank, JJ.) PASHUPATI NATH PAL v. DURJODHAN ROY. 46 C.W.N. 893.

——Chap. XIV—Rent decree—Suit for putni rent—Some of plaintiffs having fractional share in putni impleaded as defendants also—Frame of suit—If bad—Decree, if rent decree.

Where in a suit to recover arrears of a putni rent, the entire body of landlords are plaintiffs and the entire body of the putnidars are defendants, the frame of the suit is not bad merely because some of the plaintiffs who have a fractional share in the putni are also impleaded as defendants. Where a Co-operative Society being a creditor agrees with his debtor before the Debt Conciliation Board by conciliate the debt due to him and obtains a charge over the property of the debtor for the payment of the amount due and the agreement between the parties is duly registered, the Co operative Society is a person having 'an interest in the property (of the debtor) by virtue of a title acquired before the sale' within the meaning of S. 155 of the Berar Land Revenue Code and is hence entitled to apply under the section and make the necessary deposit. The word 'consolidation' has not been defined in the Berar Land Revenue Code. The word 'consolidate' implies that there are no intervals between these parts of the body; nor is the discontinuity a negligible one. There is no reason for holding that the legislature intended the word 'consolidation' in S. 184 (2) to be used in a loose sense and to do so would lead to difficulties. The general rule is to allow pre-emption in case of exchange and the exception should be strictly applied. Mere convenience of cultivation is neither the criterion nor is it sufficient. The safer rule is to confine 'consolidation' to contiguity. (Gruer, J.) LAXMAN PANDHARI v. MUNNUSINGH. I.L.R. (1942) Nag. 315 = 200 I.C. 297 = 14 R.N. 330 = 1942 N.L.J. 218.

BERAR PATELS AND PATWARIS LAW (1900)—Dismissal of patel—Procedure—Appeal—Forum.

In Berar in matters of dismissal of patels, the practice is to seek sanction of the Commissioner after the enquiries are complete. A hearing is usually given by the Commissioner to the village officer and then when the proceedings are returned the Deputy Commissioner passes the formal order. Hence the order is virtually that of the Commissioner and an appeal against it cannot therefore lie to him, as a Court cannot hear an appeal against an order which has been passed by it after full consideration. The remedy of the village officer is to appeal to the Revenue tribunal. (Binney, F.C.) ROGHOJI GANPAT PATIL v. DEWAJI SYMBHAJI KUNBI. 1942 N.L.J. 597.

——S. 5—Effect of postponed adoption on succession to watandar Patel or Patwari.

BER. PATELS & PATWARIS LAW (1900), S. 5.

The effect of a postponed adoption (i.e.) adoption to a Watandar Patel or Patwari which is made after the office held by him has been filled by appointment of another member of the family in the case of a village where there is no rotation is, that on the death of the member so appointed, the watan would go back to the adopted son in preference to the son of the appointee. But where there is rotation, on the death of the watandar in the midst of his turn of office, the next rotatory patel would come into office, if there is no adoption by the widow of the deceased patel before the final order appointing a successor is passed. If there is an adoption made before such final order, then the adopted son would succeed to the unexpired term though he be a minor and would continue to be so for the unexpired period of rotation. Where the next rotatory patel steps in for the unexpired portion of the turn of a deceased patel and completes such turn and also completes his own turn, he would continue to work till the end of his life. He is not supposed to vacate at the end of his turn. A son adopted after the expiry of the term can claim against a person who was not appointed on his own merits, but he cannot claim against a person who was appointed on his own merits as they existed at the time of the appointment. The appointment of a major to complete a term in preference to an existing minor does not settle the question of title between them. The question remains to be settled when the minor attains majority. But the appointment of a major when the minor has not come into existence is a final decision of title and is permanent. ——S. 5—Right of substitute patwari to interfere in disputes between malik, his successor and Government.

——S. 5—Government Patwari—Appointment—Discretion—Relationship to prior incumbent—If of any value.

——S. 5—Scope and applicability.

S. 5 of the Berar Patels and Patwaris Law makes no distinction between appointments for life or in rotation. According to Cl. (c) of sub-S. (3) of S. 5 of the Berar Patels and Patwaris Law the qualifications required of a substitute to the office of patel are exactly the same as those required in regard to principals and where there have been sufficient reasons for appointing an unqualified person as a substitute, the same reasons will apply to his appointment as a malik in the same post in the same village. In such matters a revenue officer unlike a Civil Court is required to base his decision bot on principles of right and equity and on considerations of administrative convenience and not merely on rules. (Greenfield, R.A.) CHOUDAJIRAO v. UITAMRAO. 1942 N.L.J. 62.

——S. 7 (1)—Scope and meaning of.

S. 7 (1) distinguishes between two classes of appointment, one for life and the other for a term of not less than 10 years in the case of rotation. The plain meaning of the whole sub-section is that a person appointed in a turn of rotation to represent the watan family or a subdivision thereof is appointed for the period of that turn and not for life. (Burton, F.C.) NAMDEO BALIRAM v. PARASHRAM. 1942 N.L.J. 27.

——S. 21—Rules under—R. X—Basis of rule—Malik's nomination not in accordance with rule—If entitled to consideration.

R. 10 of the rules framed under S. 21 of the Berar Patels and Patwaris Law is based on the principle that the watan belongs to the family or sub-division and not to the individual. Hence when a malik does not care to conform to the rules with regard to nomination of a substitute there is no reason why the interests of the malik should be taken into consideration at all. (Binney, F. C.) LAXMAN v. WAMAN. 1942 N.L.J. 161.

——S. 21—Rules under—R. X—'Sub-division'—Meaning of—Instances when sub-division can be assumed.

There has been no definition of the term 'sub division' in the Berar Patels and Patwaris law. It is only used in the above and in the rules framed thereunder in connection with separated rights to hereditary offices 'of two or more families or two or more sub-divisions of the same family'. The trend of practice is to consider that a family has been sub-divided where there has been separation of the right of service. Sub-division can be assumed when there has been rotation, joint officiation of the separation of shares recorded in the early papers. It can also be assumed, where (as in many Deshmukh families) the elder branch has waived its rights to the office. In these cases a branch would be considered as sub-divided from the main watan family. (Binney, F. C.) LAXMAN v. WAMAN. 1942 N.L.J. 161.

BIHAR AGRICULTURAL INCOME-TAX ACT (VII OF 1938)—Validity of Act—Repugnancy to Permanent Settlement Regulation—Latter, if "Act of Parliament"—Power of Provinces to levy tax on agricultural income from permanently settled estates—Government of India Act, S. 108 (2) (a); List I, Entry 54 and List II, Entry 41.

The Permanent Settlement Regulation (I of 1793) is not an Act of Parliament within the meaning of S. 108 (2) (a) of the Government of India Act. It was only an enactment of a subordinate legislative authority which derived its own authority from an Act of Parliament. The Bihar Agricultural Income-tax Act is not therefore invalid on the ground that the previous sanction of the Governor-General was not obtained before its introduction in the Bihar Legislature. Before applying the rule of construction that general words in a later statute should not be held to repeal earlier legislation upon a particular matter, it must be found that both pieces of legislation deal with the same subject-matter. Regulation I of 1793 relates to the subject of Jama to be settled in respect of each estate, while the Bihar Agricultural Income-tax Act operates upon the income derived from land used for agricultural purposes. The two enactments do not deal with the same subject-matter. The Bihar Act does not in any way whittle down or derogate from the assurances given to zamindars and landholders by Regulation I of 1793 and there is no ground for confining the operation of the Act to income from estates settled otherwise than under the Permanent Settlement Regulation. Entry No. 54 of the Federal Legislative List with regard to "taxes on income other than agricultural income" and Entry No. 41 of the Provincial Legislative List with regard to "taxes on agricultural income" are complementary to each other and the tax imposed by the Bihar Act is, within the limits of the power vested in the provinces, a general measure of property taxation. ——Validity of Act—Definition of 'Agricultural income' in Act wider than that in Income-tax Act in some respects and narrower in other respects—How far affects its validity—Road cess collected under Bengal Cess Act for District Board—Whether assessed and collected by "officers of the Crown as such"—Government of India Act, S. 311 (2); List II, Entry 41.

The Bihar Agricultural Income-tax Act is not ultra vires the Bihar Legislature and was validly enacted. The validity of the entire Act cannot be questioned on the ground that the definition of "agricultural income" adopted by the Act is in some respects wider and in other respects narrower than the definition of that expression in S. 2 (1) of the Indian Income-tax Act. The fact that the definition in the Act is narrower cannot render the Act invalid. Inasmuch as entry No. 41 of List II of the Seventh Schedule to the Government of India Act empowers the Provincial Legislature to make laws with respect to taxes on agricultural income generally, a Provincial Legislature is entitled to impose a tax on some categories of agricultural income and not impose it on others. Local cesses or rates imposed upon lands within municipal limits which are used for agricultural purposes are not assesed and collected in the Province of Bihar by officers of the Crown as such, and income, if any, derived from such of these lands as are revenue-free would fall within the purview of the Bihar Act, VII of 1938, though such income is not agricultural income within the definition of that expression in the Indian Income-tax Act. But, even assuming the existence of such land in the Province of Bihar, the Act would be only inoperative so far as it includes such income. This would not affect the validity of the rest of the Act, if it was otherwise validly enacted. The definition of agricultural income in the Bihar Act should be so read as to confine its operation to income which can be properly classified as "agricultural income" within the meaning of the definition in the Income-tax Act, and in respect of which alone the Provincial Legislature was competent to legislate. Road cess levied upon land outside municipal limits in Bihar under the Bengal Cess Act, 1880, is assessed and collected not by the District Board but by the collector, and the collector in performing these functions acts as an officer of the Crown as such and not as a delegate or functionary of the District Board. The capacity in which the collector assesses and levies the cess is not affected by the destination of the proceeds of the cess when collected. A person who is invested by the Board of Revenue with powers of a collector under S. 100 of the Bengal Cess Act is in the same position as a collector and also acts as an officer of the Crown as such. ——Ss. 6 and 7—Scope of—If to be read together—Total agricultural income—Computation and assessment—Mode of.

Ss. 6 and 7 must be read together. The agricultural income dealt with under those sections is not of two different kinds. The Act does not profess to tax each village or each parcel of land that yields agricultural income but seeks to assess the total agricultural income of the assessee where it exceeds Rs. 5,000. The agricultural income of an assessee must be considered as a whole and proper deductions must be given from each class as provided by Ss. 6 and 7, as the case may be, provided that the deductions are not made twice over. It is incorrect to say that each portion of the land from which agricultural income is derived should be considered and a deduction of only those sums (or portions thereof) actually paid as Government revenue or rent to the landlord in respect of that land should be allowed provided those payments do not exceed the gross sum realised as income therefrom. Consequently, when an assessee is being taxed on his total agricultural income, calculation should be made by adding up his gross receipts from all the villages and by deducting from it the total expenditure which is allowed to him by S. 6, the difference being his total agricultural income which will be assessable if it exceeds Rs. 5,000. If the income of the assessee is also derived from land which is in his actual cultivation or which is let out by him on produce rent the income which he gets is still agricultural income. The gross income must be added up and also the proper deductions. S. 6 (a) does not warrant the splitting up of the assessee's agricultural estate into groups and limiting the deductions to the actual income from each group, and the assessee therefore is entitled to a deduction under S. 6 (a) and (b) of the total amount of Government revenue and cess which he pays for all the properties from which his total agricultural income is derived and such deductions cannot be limited to the amount which he actually receives as income. ——S. 8—Whether mahant of asthal is exempted from paying tax under S. 8—Relevant facts to be found stated.

An answer to the question whether the mahant of an asthal is exempted from payment of agricultural income-tax under S. 8, can be given only when all relevant facts which will support a finding whether the land is held in trust for public purposes of a charitable or religious nature and whether the income therefrom or any part thereof is applied to such objects have been found. That is, the board must find the necessary facts as to the nature of the property held by the mahant and the purposes for which it is held. S. 8 only exempts income from a trust created before the commencement of the Act which is for public purposes of a charitable or religious nature. There must be finding on these matters. The board must find further whether the income of the property or any part thereof is applied for religious or charitable purposes and if a part only is so applied what is the precise amount. The assessee was holding an impartible estate and was maintaining certain charitable, religious and educational institutions, which had from time to time been established and maintained by his predecessors. A previous holder executed a will which provided, inter alia: "My predecessors and I have from time to time established and I at present support various religious and charitable institutions in various parts of the country and it is my wish and I direct my executrix and executor and whoever may be in the enjoyment of my property either as my heir or under the provisions of this my will, do preserve and maintain and support such institutions in the manner I am doing and to avoid all difficulty in the matter, I have annexed hereto a schedule giving the names of the institutions aforesaid and the amount which I spend yearly for their respective support." It was found that the assessee was in fact maintaining the institutions named in the schedule and spending actually on those more than the total sum stated by the testator. The assessee claimed exemption from agricultural income-tax in respect of the sums thus spent by him under S. 8 of the Bihar Agricultural Income-tax Act, alleging that the income was derived from land held by him on trust. No land was, however, set apart for the maintenance and support of the institutions. Nor was the income from any particular property ear-marked for those objects.

Held, that the clause in the will was merely an expression of a pious wish of the testator that those following him should carry on the charitable and religious work which he had been and was actually doing, and did not create a trust for that purpose. The assessee was not therefore a trustee holding under a trust and the income in question was not exempt under S. 8 (1) of the Act. The board must state clearly and fully the material facts admitted or proved in evidence before it, which would enable the High Court to decide the question referred to it and apply the law. The board is not merely required to state the question of law and give its opinion; it is required above all things to state the facts upon which the questions of law must be decided. In stating a case care must also be taken to set out clearly what are the findings of fact and what are the conclusions of law based on such facts. The two should not be confused, for it must always be remembered that the High Court is bound by the findings of fact but not by the conclusions of law which may be based on such facts. An apportionment order under S. 54 of the Bihar and Orissa Co-operative Societies Act is not one of the orders which under S. 7 (3) of the Act cannot be called in question on any ground except on that of want of jurisdiction. Where the debtor against whom an apportionment order is made is unable to prove that he has ceased to be a member of the society, and is shown to have applied to the society for reduction of his liability, he cannot object to the apportionment order and say that nothing was due from him. ——S. 23—Scope—If refers to debts due by member to Society.

The Registrar of Co-operative Societies has clearly no jurisdiction over a person who neither is nor has been a member of a Co-operative Society; but he has jurisdiction over a past member, under S. 43 of the Co-operative Societies Act. It cannot be said that his award is without jurisdiction merely on the ground that the claim was barred by limitation or because the award was a second award in respect of the same debt which was the subject-matter of a prior award. These points are clearly within the Registrar's jurisdiction and the fact that he falls into an error of law in deciding them does not make his award any the less valid. (Wort, J.) BARHITOLA D. ——S. 57 (2)—Applicability—"Touching the affairs of the society"—Award against member—Certificate for enforcement under Public Demands Recovery Act—Attachment of house—Objection to attachment overruled—Suit to restrain liquidator from selling and to raise attachment—Leave of Registrar—If condition precedent.

The realisation of a sum due to a Co-operative Society is an affair of the society, and unless such debt is realised "the affairs of the society" cannot be wound up under S. 44 (7) of the Co-operative Societies Act. A dispute between the parties as to the manner of enforcement of payment, (a certificate having been obtained under the Public Demands Recovery Act for enforcing an award made by the Registrar) is a dispute touching the business of a society according to the Act. The Registrar of Co-operative Societies made an award against the plaintiff, who was a member of a Co-operative Society which went into liquidation, in respect of a sum of Rs. 1,200 and odd. To enforce the award the liquidator took proceedings under the Bihar and Orissa Public Demands Recovery Act for the realisation of the amount, and the certificate officer attached a house belonging to the plaintiff. The plaintiff's objection to the attachment based on various grounds was overruled and the plaintiff thereupon filed a suit to restrain the liquidator from selling the house and to obtain release of the house from attachment. Leave of the Registrar was not obtained and it was pleaded that therefore S. 57 (2) of the Bihar and Orissa Co-operative Societies Act was a bar to the maintainability of the suit.

Held, that the object of the suit was to prevent the liquidator who was proceeding as liquidator to realise the debt due to the society from realising the debt in question by sale of the house, and therefore the suit must be held to be one on a matter touching the affairs of the society. The dispute being one touching the business of a registered society, it was a suit touching the affairs of the society and could not be instituted or proceeded with under S. 57 (2) of the Act except by leave of the Registrar. BIHAR EXCISE (AMENDMENT) ACT (VIII OF 1940)—If ultra vires—Government of India Act, Ss. 100, 108 and 297 (1).

The Bihar Excise (Amendment) Act of 1940, in so far as it enables partial prohibition to be enforced in parts of the province, is not ultra vires the powers of the Provincial Legislature and the Governor who had before 1940 by proclamation issued under S. 93, Government of India Act, 1935, assumed all the powers vested in the Provincial Legislature. S. 100 and Art. 31, List II of Sch. VII, Government of India Act give Provincial Legislatures power to legislate with respect to the production, manufacture, possession, etc., of intoxicating liquors. The power is not confined to merely the regulation or restriction of such manufacture, production or possession, etc. It is impossible to say that prohibiting possession of certain forms of intoxicating liquor in specified areas is anything more than legislation with respect to possession or transport of such intoxicating liquor in such areas. The Bihar Excise (Amendment) Act of 1940 is not invalid for want of the Governor-General's sanction to its introduction or enactment, owing to the provisions of S. 108 (2) (b) of the Government of India Act. This section merely limits the power of Provincial Legislatures to repeal or amend Governor-General's Acts or ordinances enacted or promulgated under Ss. 42 to 44 of the Government of India Act. The Bihar and Orissa Excise Act of 1915 which was amended was in no sense a Governor-General's Act or even an Act of the Governor-General in Council. It was an Act of the Bihar Legislative authority which at that time required the assent of the Governor-General for its validity under S. 5, India Councils Act. Even if the prohibition of export from the province or the import into the province of intoxicating liquors is one of the objects of the Bihar and Orissa Excise Act, 1915 as amended, it does not become invalid by reason of anything contained in S. 297 (1), Government of India Act. This section does not deal with intoxicating liquors but merely limits the power of the Provincial Legislature to legislate with respect to trade and commerce within the province and with respect to the production, supply and distribution of commodities. Intoxicating liquors are not included in the general terms "trade or commerce" or "production, supply and distribution of commodities". In any event, the amending Act of 1940, in so far as it enables partial prohibition to be introduced, does not restrict legitimate import into, or export, from the province, and, therefore, cannot infringe upon the provisions of S. 297 (1), Government of India Act even if they applied to liquor. S. 11 of the Bihar and Orissa Excise Act as amended by the Government of India (Adaptation of Indian Laws) Order, 1937 strongly suggests that S. 297 (1), Government of India Act was never intended to apply to dangerous articles such as intoxicating liquors or narcotic or dangerous drugs. ——Validity of Act—Government of India Act, Ss. 108 and 297 (1); List II, Entry No. 31.

The Bihar Excise (Amendment) Act, 1940, which amended S. 19 (4) of the Bihar and Orissa Excise Act, 1915, was a valid Act and was within the powers conferred upon the Provincial Legislature by S. 100 (3) of the Government of India Act and entry No. 31 of the Provincial Legislative List. A power to legislate "with respect to intoxicating liquors" would, unless the meaning of the words used is restricted or controlled by the context or other provisions of the Act, include the power to prohibit intoxicating liquors throughout the Province or in any specified part of the Province. The words "that is to say, the production, manufacture, possession, transport, purchase and sale of intoxicating liquors, opium and other narcotic drugs" which follows "intoxicating liquors and narcotic drugs" in Entry No. 31 of the Provincial Legislative List, are explanatory or illustrative words and not words either of amplification or limitation. These words are apt to cover the whole field of possible legislation on the subject including the power to prohibit. The Amending Act of 1940 does not contravene the provisions of S. 297 (1) (a) of the Government of India Act, which refers only to legislation with respect to entry No. 27 and entry No. 29 in the Provincial Legislative List and has no application in respect to anything in entry No. 31. The Bihar and Orissa Excise Act of 1915 is not a Governor-General's Act within the meaning of S. 108 (2) (b) of the Government of India Act, and the Act of 1940 which amended it did not, therefore, require the previous sanction of the Governor-General. ——S. 3—Government notification dated 19th July, 1939—'Year'—Meaning of.

The word 'year' in the notification dated 19th July, 1939, issued by the Provincial Government under S. 3 of the Bihar Money-Lenders Act, should be taken in its ordinary connotation to be the period from 1st January to the following 31st December. ——S. 4—Applicability—Considerations.

In order to apply S. 4 of the Bihar Money-Lenders Act, 1939, what is to be seen is whether the plaintiff is registered and if he is not registered whether he is entitled to the benefit of the notification issued by Provincial Govetnment by reason of his total advances in the course of a year being not exceeding Rs. 500. It is immaterial that sometime during the year his advances were less than that amount. ——S. 4—Applicability—Notification—Scope and object of—"Year"—Meaning.

The reason for the exemption of persons from the operation of S. 4 as stated in the notification itself, was to avoid the necessity for the registration of persons who merely made casual advances to friends and so on, provided that the transactions of this nature did not exceed Rs. 500 in any one year. That was the test prescribed by the Local Government for the purpose of deciding whether a person should be exempted from registration. Ordinarily a year means a period from 1st January to the following 31st December and in deciding whether a person is of that class to which the notification was intended to apply, this definition of year, which is given in the General Clauses Act, should be enforced. Therefore where a person has advanced more than Rs. 500 in the period between January to December but less than Rs. 500 between May when the Act came into force and December, he is not exempt from registration by the notification and therefore is a person whose suit is barred by S. 4 of the Act. There is no foundation for the view that valuation of the property as required by S. 13 of the Bihar Money-Lenders Act cannot be fixed in execution cases arising from decrees on promissory notes. The section does not deal at all with promissory notes. Therefore even in the case of execution of a decree on a promissory note the executing Court is bound to make valuation of the property under S. 13, which is mandatory. If it does not determine the valuation, it fails to exercise a jurisdiction under S. 13, and its order is liable to be set aside in revision by the High Court. The Court is not justified to refuse an application by the judgment-debtor for valuation on the ground that the application was delayed and made only on the date of sale. S. 13 imposes a duty on the Court and the duty must be carried out before the sale is held. There can be no question of the judgment-debtor waiving his rights by refraining from making an application. ——S. 13—Scope—Non-compliance—If renders sale void or a nullity.

Under S. 13 of the Bihar Money-Lenders Act of 1937, the Court is not entitled to hold sale without previously valuing the property. But non compliance with this provision, though it would be a ground for setting aside the sale, does not render the sale void or a nullity. In other words the sale is only voidable. There is nothing in S. 13 to warrant the Court in holding that failure to value the property goes to the root of the Court's jurisdiction to hold the sale so as to make it a complete nullity. ——S. 13—Valuation—Onus—Judgment-debtor applying for re-valuation—Duty of—Valuation based on cess-revaluation papers of 12 or 14 years ago—Sustainability.

Where a judgment-debtor comes forward and asks for a fresh valuation on the ground that he has had no notice of the prior ex parte valuation, it is for him to show that the valuation already made is wrong and to produce the necessary papers showing the correct annual income. If he relies on cess revaluation papers, which it is open to him to do, it is plainly incumbent on him to show to the satisfaction of the Court how the figures in these papers had been modified by recent proceedings. It is not proper for the Court to fix the value on the cess revaluation papers of twelve or fourteen years ago minus a ten per cent. reduction, especially when owing to agrarian troubles including commutation and rent reduction, the income of the Zamindars have been reduced by thirty to forty per cent. and more. The onus is on the judgment-debtor who has obtained an order regarding instalments on certain representations regarding the income to show that they are not inconsistent with any representations since made by him or to explain away the inconsistencies to the satisfaction of the Court. ——S. 15—Applicability—"Holding" "Raiyat"—Meaning of—If same as in Bihar Tenancy Act.

There is no reason which compels a Court to apply the definition of "holding" and of "raiyat" given in the Bihar Tenancy Act to the words "holding" and "raiyat" used in the Bihar Money Lenders Act. Once it is conceded that the land held by a judgment-debtor is exclusively his, and can be sold to satisfy his debts, though it may not be a "holding" as defined by the Bihar Tenancy Act, it is clear that the land is held by him or his "holding" for purposes of the Money-Lenders Act. Similarly the word "raiyat" in the Money-Lenders Act has a wider meaning than that given to it under the Tenancy Act and denotes actual cultivators or agriculturists as opposed to zamindars, tenure-holders, ijardars, etc. The land held by the judgment-debtor formed part of a larger area held by a number of co-sharers; the co sharers divided the land amongst themselves without taking the necessary steps to create vis-a-vis the landlord distinct tenancies to each portion so divided. But it was held exclusively by each co-sharer.

Held, that for the purposes of S. 15, the judgment-debtor was a raiyat cultivating a holding. (Harris, C.J. and Dhavle, J.) RAMAPRASAD SINGH v. SAJAN MAHTO. 21 Pat. 357=A.I.R. 1943 Pat. 15.

——S. 98 (1) and (2)—Relative scope—Holdings having no habitable buildings—If exempt from tax.

S. 98 (1) of the Bihar and Orissa Municipal Act covers holdings with buildings of a character outside S. 98 (2) or holdings without any buildings on them at all. ——Ss. 107 and 115—Relative scope—Failure to give notice under S. 107 (2)—Effect on assessment.

S. 115 of the Bihar and Orissa Municipal Act clearly applies only to cases where a new list or a revised list is issued. The section cannot by its terms apply to a case where a list has been prepared or revised and subsequently it is found that property has been omitted from the list which should have been included or property has become assessable which was not assessable when the list was prepared or revised. These two latter cases are expressly dealt with in S. 107 of the Act which presupposes an existing list which has been published under S. 115, and that since such publication it has been found that property has been omitted from the list which should have been included or property has subsequently become assessable. If it is proposed to assess such property, a month's notice must be given to the person interested of any alteration the commissioners propose to make and of the date on which the alteration will be made. ——S. 107 (1) (f)—Scope—Application for reduction of valuation of holding—Decision of Municipality—Jurisdiction of Civil Court to question or review.

S. 107 (1) (f) of the Bihar and Orissa Municipal Act contemplates a reduction, on the application of the owner or occupier, of the valuation of any holding which has been wholly or partly demolished or destroyed, or the value of which has diminished from any cause. In the case of such holdings, the person liable to pay the tax can, in view of Ss. 116 to 119, only obtain reduction by applying under Cl. (f); and if the Municipality should deal with such an application in accordance with law, no objection can be taken to the decision of the Municipality in the Civil Court. The valuation of all holdings is a matter for the Municipality and not for the Civil Court under S. 119. If an assessment is not reduced under S. 107, the owner remains liable except in case of remissions under S. 110 or S. 111 but apart from that his liability cannot be questioned in the Civil Court. ——S. 117—Scope—Appellate tribunal—Constitution of—Resolution of Municipality appointing seven members as appellate committee—Four out of seven selected as tribunal to hear particular case and hearing same—Tribunal—If illegally constituted.

A Municipality, by a resolution, appointed seven members to act as an appellate committee under S. 117 of the Bihar and Orissa Municipal Act, and amongst those seven persons were persons who were elected for the ward in which the house of the plaintiff (assessee) was situate. Out of these seven four only sat on the particular appellate tribunal who dealt with the plaintiff's matter, and not one of the members was in any way connected with the ward in question,

Held, that appellate tribunal in the case was a perfectly legal and properly constituted body and was clearly within the spirit of S. 117 of the Bihar and Orissa Municipal Act. The Resolution of the Municipality was nothing more than the appointment of seven persons to form a rota from which three or more should be selected for any particular appeal as and when required; the resolution did not in substance mean that for each appeal all seven must sit. Hence the assessment was neither illegal nor ultra vires on the ground that the appellate tribunal was illegally constituted. ——S. 123—Scope—Non-service of notice under—Effect on right to sue for arrears of tax.

The notice under S. 123 of the Bihar and Orissa Municipal Act only affects the Municipality's right to levy arrears by distress and sale under S. 124, and not its right to sue under S. 130. The liability to pay tax in respect of a holding does not arise from the notice under S 123 at all, but from the earlier sections of the Act. There is no reason for holding that the right of the Municipality to sue for arrears is dependant on the service of a notice under S. 123. If distress cannot be made of sufficient property of the said warrantee you are to certify the same to us in returning the warrant."

Held, that the latter clause in the first sentence authorized the seizure of movable property belonging to any one other than the defaulter inspite of the omission to state specifically after the words "movable property" in that clause the words "of any other person", and that the omission to require a certificate in the case of property seized on the premises in respect of which the default occurred and belonging to a person other than the defaulter could not affect the operative part of the warrant. The powers conferred on the Municipality empowering them to impose taxes or levy fees are permissive powers, and the Municipality is not bound to exercise those powers. The mere fact, therefore, that the Municipality has not levied fees on the stall-holders on a public road before, does not provide a basis on which it can be held that a custom has grown up exonerating stall-holders from paying the fees which the Municipality may subsequently decide to levy. He cannot refuse to renew a licence granted under the bye-laws for any cause other than failure of the licensee to comply with the conditions of the licence or with any provision of rules made under the Act. The chairman should, however, state the ground on which he refuses to renew the licence, in order to enable the Court to see whether the Municipality acted with or without jurisdiction. The Court cannot make a presumption that the application for renewal was rejected on proper grounds. Where a landlord after having purchased his tenant's holding at a sale in execution of his rent decree in respect of arrears of rent for certain years and after settling the lands with another as tenant, takes out certificate proceedings under the Public Demands Recovery Act in respect of arrears of rent for subsequent years, the certificate sale passes to the purchaser only the landlord's interest which at the time of the sale is clearly subject to the rights acquired by the person settled on the lands as lessee; the purchaser at the certificate sale cannot therefore claim any better title in the lands than that possessed by the landlord at that date. A mere casual act by an officer of the Court who makes a mistake cannot be treated as the Court's act, so as to give the Court jurisdiction to make an order which it has no jurisdiction to make. The Court has no jurisdiction to extend the period of 30 days laid down in S. 31 of the Public Demands Recovery Act; and where the certificate debtor does not deposit the penalty or compensation provided for by S. 28 of the Act within the period of 30 days, the sale cannot be set aside, although he has deposited the demand amount and interest within the period of 30 days, and although the challan filed by the debtor without including the compensation money is accepted by the office of the certificate officer. A sale was held on 6—7—1940 and within the 30 days, the debtor applied under S. 28 of the Bihar and Orissa Public Demands Act depositing the amount of the demand and interest, but not the penalty or compensation of Rs. 5 payable under S. 28. The challan was accepted by the office and treated as correct and the case was treated as fully satisfied and on 6—8—1940, the certificate officer made an order "sale set aside. Realised in fully." Subsequently it was discovered that the compensation of Rs. 5 had not been paid, and a notice was issued to the debtor to show cause why the sale should not be confirmed. On 6—12—1940, the debtor turned up and paid the penalty amount of Rs. 5, but his petition was dismissed by the certificate officer who held that he had no power to set aside the sale when the full amount had not been deposited within the prescribed period. This order was upheld by the Deputy Collector, but the Commissioner reversed it on the ground that the certificate debtor had been misled by the mistake of the office.

Held, in revision by the Board of Revenue, that the responsibility for writing out the challan lay with the debtor and not with the certificate officer or his office, and the mere fact that the challan was accepted by the office under a mistake did not entitle the debtor to have the sale set aside and the mistake did not at all prejudice the debtor. A certificate sale took place in June, 1937. The certificate debtor was a Mahomedan widow, who had died before the issue of the certificate. The petitioners, who were two widowed daughters of the debtor applied in January, 1941, to have the sale set aside alleging that their brother had cheated them by allowing the property to go to sale. The petitioners alleged that they had no knowledge of the sale until they got notice in a land registration case.

Held, (1) that the certificate filed against the debtor was void ab initio, and the sale affected the interests of the petitioners who were therefore entitled to have the sale set aside; (2) that in the absence of evidence or even allegation to show that the petitioners were aware of the sale earlier, the application for setting aside the sale must be admitted though filed about 4 years after the sale. ——S. 43—Limitation—Computation—Adverse order on appeal by Collector—Revision to Commissioner and Board unsuccessful—Starting point of limitation.

Under S. 43 of the Bihar and Orissa Public Demands Recovery Act, limitation has to be computed from the date of the adverse order of the Collector which determines the matter against the plaintiff; when such order has been passed by the Collector on appeal there is no further appeal but only revision. A suit beyond six months of the Collector's order is therefore barred by limitation under S. 43, though it is within six months of the orders passed in revision by the Commissioner and the Board of Revenue. (Rowland and Chatterji, JJ.) SHEORAJ DHARI SINGH v. KAMESHWAR SINGH. 200 I.C. 309=8 B.R. 668=14 R.P. 647=23 Pat.L.T. 263=A.I.R. 1942 Pat. 378.

——Ss. 45 and 46—Scope of—Suit to declare certificate sale fraudulent and void—If barred.

S. 46 of the Bihar and Orissa Public Demands Recovery Act expressly exempts from the operation of Ss. 25 and 45 of the Act a suit which is based upon a fraud and which is for a declaration that a certificate sale was a fraudulent one and void on the ground of the purchase being a collusive one and on behalf of the real certificate debtors. Such a suit comes under the proviso to S. 45 and is not therefore barred by any rule in S. 46. ——S. 46—Scope—"Duly filed"—Allegation that part of demand is illegally included—Suit in Civil Court—Maintainability.

There is no basis for the argument that a certificate cannot be deemed to have been duly filed within the meaning of S.46 of the Bihar and Orissa Public Demands Recovery Act, merely because that a portion of the alleged debt was not due. The question of the precise amount of demand due is a question for the decision of the certificate officer and of the superior officers, and if no defect of procedure is alleged or proved, a suit in the Civil Court challeging the certificate proceedings on the ground that a portion of the demand has been illegally included is barred under S. 46 of the Act, because it relates to a matter referred to in S. 46. ———S. 3—Applicability and scope—Lands in landlord's possession by virtue of compromise—Title not traced from Court-sale—If can be restored.

A holding was owned by two groups of co-sharers, H and M. The H group obtained a decree for arrears of rent, put up the holding for sale and purchased it in May, 1933. Later the M group sued the tenants and the H group of landlords for two years' rent, obtained a rent decree against the tenants and a money decree against the H group of landlords, and brought the holding to sale themselves purchasing it in 1937. Later, the H group brought a title suit against the M group which ended in a compromise dividing the lands between the two groups half and half.

Held, in an application for restoration, that though the H group had apparently been in possession since 1933, their title to the ½ share allotted to them under the compromise was different from their title under the sale of 1933, which became eliminated by the sale in favour of the M group, and since the H group had no continuity of title, they were not in possession by virtue of the Court-sale and hence the land in their possession could not be restored. The fact that they never lost possession was irrelevant. (Middleton.) AJODHYA SINGH v. BAIJNATH PRASAD SINGH. 1941 P.W.N. 635.

———S. 6—Plot not in possession of purchasing landlord—Restoration of—Sale or surrender for consideration—If settlement.

A sale or surrender for consideration by a landlord of his rights under S. 22 of the Bihar Tenancy Act to a superior landlord is not a settlement for purposes of Bihar Act IX of 1938. Certain landlords purchased the occupancy rights in three bhauli plots in 1932. In a subsequent partition in 1937 among the landlords these plots were allotted to another co-sharer; in February 1938, the landlords who purchased the occupancy rights sold the rights which thay had under S. 22 of the Bihar Tenancy Act to the co-sharer in whose patti the plots fell. The tenant filed the application for possession in July, 1939, contending that the sale of February, 1939, was a settlement which, having been made after March, 1938, could not affect his right to restoration.

Held, that the transaction could not be considered to be a settlement and since the plots were not in the possession of the purchasing landlords at the time the application was filed, the application for restoration could not be allowed. (Swanzey.) SAHODRA KUER v. HARIHAR SINGH. 9 B.R. 7.

———S. 8—Portion only of decretal amount realised by sale—Amount paid by tenant for restoration of land—If has effect of satisfying entire decree—Right of landlord to realise balance.

There is no express provision in the Bihar Restoration of Bakasht lands and Reduction of Arrears of Rent Act as to what is to be done in a case where a portion only of the decretal amount has been realised by the sale of a holding. In such a case the payment made by the tenant under S. 8 of the Act for the restoration of the land cannot be taken to have the effect of satisfying the entire decree. The landlord decree-holder will, therefore, be entitled to proceed for the balance. He cannot however realise more than the decretal amount. He can execute his decree for such amount only as remains unpaid after deducting from the decretal amount the amount which has been paid by the tenant in the proceedings regarding the restoration of lands, after making allowance for the costs of the decree. S. 15 of the Bihar Act IX of 1938 applies only to occupancy holdings for the arrears of rent of which there is a suit or proceeding pending, and not to an occupancy holding for the arrears of rent of which there is no pending suit or proceeding. It is therefore not correct to say that S.15 comprehends all occupancy holdings and that S. 16 consequently does not apply to any occupancy holding. Where a proceeding is pending for recovery of the arrears of an occupancy holding, the holding is one to which S. 15 (b) applies and to which S. 16 cannot apply; and an application under S. 16 is not maintainable. The mandatory provisions of S. 15 (a) of the Bihar Restoration of Bakasht Lands and Reduction of Arrears of Rent Act are made applicable to proceedings for the execution of a decree by S. 20. The proceedings in execution do not terminate with the sale so that before the sale is confirmed the proceedings still continue to be proceedings in execution. Where, therefore, after a sale of a holding in execution of a rent decree in favour of the decree-holder but before its confirmation, the judgment-debtor obtains an order reducing the rent payable under S. 112-A (1) (d) of the Bihar Tenancy Act, he is not bound to deposit the full amount for which the sale was held when he applies to have the sale set aside under S. 174 of the Bihar Tenancy Act.

——S. 15 (a)—Applicability—'Rent"—If includes damages for use and occupation—Decree for damages for compensation for use and damages for period between sale and delivery of possession—If liable to reduction.

S. 15 (a) of the Bihar Act IX of 1938 clearly deals only with rent and not with damages or profits for use and occupation. Where after the sale of a holding for arrears of rent and purchase by the landlord, the landlord obtains a money decree against the ex-tenant for the period between the date of the sale and the date of delivery of possession to the landlord, such decree amount is not rent which can be reduced under S. 15 (a). The relationship of landlord and tenant comes to an end and ceases to exist when the holding is sold for arrears of rent; and what would be payable by the occupant is only damages for use and occupation and not rent. The fact that the land is subsequently restored to the tenant under the Bihar Act IX of 1938 does not have the effect of converting the suit and decree for damages for use into one for rent under S. 12 of the Act. S. 12 does not have that effect. As there is no claim for rent and as no decree for rent is passed, S. 15 (a) cannot apply. ——S. 15 (c)—Construction—"The amount of the arrears as so reduced"—Meaning of—Right of landlord to interest on amount of reduced rent and on amount knocked off.

There can be no doubt that the words "the amount of the arrears as so reduced" in S. 15 (c) of Bihar Act IX of 1938 refer to the reduced amount, that is to say, the amount which is payable as a result of the rent reduction proceedings. A decree-holder landlord is not therefore entitled to interest on the reduced amount. Nor is the decree holder landlord entitled to interest on the amount of arrears of rent which has been knocked off as a result of the rent reduction proceedings. Interest on the amount knocked off or disallowed is merely accessory to the principal disallowed and when the principal itself is not recoverable, the interest too is not recoverable. ——S. 15 (c)—Construction and scope—Landlord if altogether deprived of right to interest on arrears of rent on reduction.

S. 15 (c) of Bihar Act IX of 1938 has not the effect of depriving the landlord altogether of his right to interest on the arrears of interest when the rent has been reduced under the Act. The section has to be read as meaning only that he is not entitled to interest "on the amount of the arrear so reduced", i.e., on the difference between the original rent and the reduced rent. The addition of the words "on" the amount of the arrears so reduced" after interest in S. 15 (c) clearly indicates that the Legislature did not intend to deprive the landlord of interest to which he is expressly declared to be entitled by S. 67 of the Bihar Tenancy Act. It is clear that landlord is to get interest only on the basis of the reduced rent (Agarwala, J.) RAM RANBIJAY PRASAD SINGH

BIHAR TENANCY ACT (1885), S. 29.

A co-sharer landlord in posession under S. 22 (2) of the Bihar Tenancy Act (as amended in 1907), having purchased an occupancy holding in execution of a decree for rent in his favour against the tenant, is not a tenant under his co-sharers, and what is payable by him to them is not rent. A suit against such a co-sharer by the other co-sharers for what is payable by him under S. 22 (2) of the Act, is not a suit for rent as contemplated by Art. 8 of Sch. II of the Provincial Small Cause Courts Act, and is therefore cognizable by the Court of Small Causes. No second appeal lies in such a case. An application for execution of the decree in such a suit is governed by the general law of limitation and not by Art. 6 of Sch. III of the Bihar Tenancy Act. The section says in the broadest terms that it shall not be deemed to impair the value of the land materially or to render it unfit for the purposes of the tenancy. The question as to what proportion of the area of the tenancy is occupied by the structures erected thereon is no longer a point on which such a case has now to be decided. There is no warrant for holding that a Revenue Court cannot under the guise of commutation vary a contract between the landlord and the raiyat. A raiyat cannot contract himself out of his right to apply for commutation, and if the provisions of the law for effecting commutation make it compulsory (as they do) to have regard to certain factors which may result in a reduction of the rent, the landlord cannot plead that this reduction is illegal. The presumption arising under S. 51 of the Bihar Tenancy Act applies not only in respect of a particular succeeding year when it is proved that rent was realised for the immediately preceding year at a particular rate, but also to each successive year one after another, until its operation is arrested by proof on the part of the tenant that the conditions of the tenancy were altered in the meanwhile. Where the evidence for the landlord, consisting of the Terij Laggite of 1903, which is accepted by the Rent Reduction Officer as genuine specifies the rate of rent which tallies with the attested rent in 1915, that would be sufficient to show that the rents were not changed between those dates, and unless this is rebutted by the tenant, it must be held that the rent has been traced back to 1903. The landlord's evidence supported by the Attestation Note and the presumption under S. 51 of the Bihar Tenancy Act would be sufficient to show that the rent first became payable in 1903 or before that year. Once the Collector passes a final order under S. 70 (4) of the Act it cannot be ignored by the Civil Court. A landlord's suit for rent asking that the proceedings under Ss. 69 and 70 should be ignored is not an application to the Civil Court under S. 70 (6) to enforce the Collector's order as a decree, and the Civil Court is not entitled to ignore the proceedings under Ss. 69 and 70 of the Act. Under S. 103 of the Bihar Tenancy Act, an entry in a record-of-rights gives rise to a presumption as to its correctness, and it is only by evidence that that presumption is liable to be rebutted. One part of the entry cannot be used to rebut another part of it. A plot was recorded in the record-of-rights as the bakasht of the plaintiff (proprietor). In the remarks column however, there was an entry that so far as the trees on the plot were concerned half the interest belonged to plaintiff and half to P, the ancestor of the defendants who claimed that the land was their bhaoli kasht holding. The entry did not describe P as a tenant of the land.

Held, that the entry in the remarks column did not at all imply that P had any interest in the disputed plot, and was not in any way inconsistent with P not having acquired some interest in the trees by agreement or otherwise without having acquired any interest in the land on which the trees stand. That is to say, it was meant by Government to exclude raiyats not having that status. It was not meant to exclude raiyats such as raiyats at fixed rates of rent, who have a higher status, a status which, though being different in some of its incidents, nevertheless does include occupancy rights. A clear distinction is drawn between the occupancy raiyats and fixed rate (Sarahmoian) tenants not only in S. 4, Bihar Tenancy Act, but also throughout that Act. The terms "occupancy raiyat" and "fixed rate (Sarahmoian) tenants" are not interchangeable and the term "occupancy raiyat" when used in the Act clearly does not include sarahmoian tenants. ——S. 112-A—Applicability —"Raiyat"—Person holding land for building purposes—Right to relief.

S. 112-A of the Bihar Tenancy Act provides for the reduction of the rent of an occupancy holding, and relief under the section can only be given on an application of an occupancy raiyat in respect of the holding in which he has occupancy rights. A homestead is not an occupancy holding. A person holding an area of land settled exclusively for building purposes at a special rate of rent is not an occupancy raiyat who can apply for or get relief under S. 112-A. ——S. 112-A—Date when rent became payable—Settlement under S. 105—Subsequent sale of holding and purchase by landlord—Effect—Civil Court settling same rent deciding that rent is payable only on culturable land only—Effect of.

Where after the rent of a holding had been settled under S. 105 of the Bihar Tenancy Act, the holding was sold and purchased by the landlord, the rent settled previously ceases to exist, and the date of such settlement cannot be taken to be the date when the rent became payable for purposes of S. 112-A of the Act. Where further the Civil Court subsequently fixes the rent on the application of the landlord at the same figure as that fixed under S. 105, but decides that the landlord is to get rent of culturable lands only that is a different rent from that fixed earlier. Therefore the crucial date for purposes of S. 112-A is the date of the settlement by the Civil Court. (Middleton.) RAM RAN BIJOY PRASAD SINGH v. SHEOPUJAN RAI. 8 B. R. 506.

——S. 112-A—Revision—Question when rent became first payable—Finality—Interference.

The question as to the date when a rent became first payable under S. 112-A of the Bihar Tenancy Act is a question of fact and the finding on that by the lower appellate Court is final and cannot be interfered with in revision. (Middleton.) CHURAWAN MAHTON v. MD. MANIR AHSAN. 8 B. R. 518.

Where in proceedings under S. 112 of the Bihar Tenancy Act, reduction of rent is refused and the existing rent is settled, it is a clear bar for 15 years to the application of S. 112-A of the Act. Except on the grounds specified in Cl. (c) of S. 112-A (1) a reduction under Cl. (d) of S. 112-A (1) is clearly barred. ——S. 112-A—Year of commutation—Order not giving reason for taking particular year—If ground for interference in revision—Presumption as to basis of order.

Where it is found from the schedule to the order of the Rent Reduction officer that he took different years of commutation in different cases, it must be presumed that he did this on same system of account on the evidence produced in the cases before him. When the order further shows that in certain cases he referred to the landlord's jamabhandhi it is safe to assume that he took the various dates from that paper, especially when the landlord was aware of the procedure followed and raised no objection. The landlord cannot in revision object to the order on the ground that no reason is given for taking a particular year as the date of commutation, and the Board will not interfere with the order on that ground in revision. (Middleton.) HARIHAR PRASAD SINGH v. NATHUNI. 8 B.R. 805.

——S. 112 A (a) & (d)—Scope—Successive applications under different sub-clauses—Competency—Order reducing enhanced rent—Subsequent order cancelling enhancement and restoring original rent—Legality of.

A Court has no right to enhance a rent which had been lawfully reduced under S. 112-A (d) of the Bihar Tenancy Act. Such rent cannot, by reason of S. S. 113, be enhanced for fifteen years. Assuming that a tenant may apply successively under the different sub-sections of S. 112-A, it cannot be held that a second decision cancelling an enhancement of rent under S. 112-A (d), and restoring the original rent would completely destroy the effect of a prior decision under S. 112 A (d) reducing the enhanced rent to a figure below the original rent. The second order cancelling the enhancement amounts in effect to an enhancement of rent and hence is an order without jurisdiction and ineffective by reason of the earlier order reducing the rent. If only one application can be made by the tenant under S. 112-A, then the order on the subsequent application would necessarily be without jurisdiction and the prior order reducing the rent stands and no Court can grant a decree for rent in excess of that reduced rent. ——S. 112-A (b)—Applicability—Material date—Date of commutation order

For purposes of S. 112-A (b) of the Bihar Tenancy Act, the crucial date is the date of the commutation order. An order of commutation was passed on 12-12-1936, directing that the commuted rent would take effect from fasli 1344, i.e., September-October, 1936. In appeal the rent was reduced but the order that it should take effect from 1344 was maintained.

Held, that the rent was clearly commuted between the dates mentioned in Cl. (b) of S. 112-A, and the clause therefore applied. (Middleton.) SAH RADHAKRISHNA v. BANDHU MAHTON. 8 B.R 448.

——S 112 A (c)—Amount of remission to be granted—Question as to—Decision on—Finality—Revision—Competency.

The question of the amount of remission to be granted under S. 112-A (c) of the Bengal Tenancy Act is a pure question of fact and the finding of the lower appellate Court thereon is final; an application for revision cannot therefore be entertained. (Middleton). CHURAWAN MAHTON v. MD. MANIR AHSAN. 8 B. R. 518.

In order to attract the operation of S. 112-A (c) of the Bihar Tenancy Act, the onus is not upon the landlord to show that the land was of good quality but upon the tenant to prove that the land was of bad quality. (Manohar Lall, J.) SUKHRAJ RAI v. DIP NARAIN PANDEY. 197 I.C. 160=8 B.R. 153=A.I.R. 1942 Pat. 266 (2).

——S. 112-A (c) and (d)—Procedure—Jurisdiction—Application for reduction under Cl. (c)—Relief under Cl. (d)—Power of Court to grant.

Where the application for reduction is filed both in form and substance under Cl (c) of S. 112-A of the Bihar Tenancy Act, there is no jurisdiction in the Court to grant relief under Cl. (d) of the section when there has been no amendment or an application by the tenants in that behalf. (Middleton.) GOPAL MAHTON v. DULHIN KISHORI KUER. 8 B.R. 639.

——S. 112-A (c) and (d)—Procedure—Powers of Court—Prior applications under S. 112 A (d) dismissed for default—Subsequent application under S. 112 (c)—Court treating same as under Cl. (d) and allowing reduction—Legality.

Where two applications for reduction under S. 112-A (d) of the Bihar Tenancy Act, filed by the tenants have been dismissed for default, they cannot claim that a subsequent application by them under S. 112-A (c) should be treated as under Cl. (d) and allowed. If the Court treats such an application as under Cl. (d) without any request for amendment and allows reduction under Cl. (d), it acts without jurisdiction and its order is liable to be set aside in revision. (Middleton.) BABU LAL SAH v. JAGDEO SINHA. 8 B.R. 635.

——S. 112-A (c) (ii), proviso—Order allowing 25 per cent. remission—Remission—Appeal—Power of appellate Court to interfere.

Where the Rent Reduction Officer allows a remission of 25 per cent. under cl. (c) (ii) of S. 112-A of the Bihar Tenancy Act, the ordinary remedy of the landlord is under the proviso to cl. (c); but he is also entitled to an appellate order in his favour if he can persuade the appellate Court to hold that the remission should not have been granted at all. (Middleton.) SHARAFAT HUSSAIN v. SURAJDEO RAI. 8 B.R. 599.

——Ss. 112-A (d) and 178 (3)—Applicability—Agreement between landlord and tenant made before coming into force of S. 112-A that rents agreed upon should not be varied—Application for reduction of rent—Competency.

It is settled law that a person may have at the same time in respect of the same land a right of occupancy and also the right of a raiyat holding at a fixed rate. An entry in the record of rights showing the tenant as kaerni and not as sharahmoyian is not, therefore, actually inconsistent with the status of a tenant as holding at fixed rates. If the landlord and tenant have both agreed that the rent can neither be enhanced nor reduced, an application for reduction under S. 112-A, (d) of the Bihar Tenancy Act is incompetent. Nor will S. 178 (3) apply when there is a contract between the parties not to vary the rents agreed upon, made before the amending Act which brought S. 112-A into S. 178 (3) (f) of the Act. BIHAR TENANCY ACT (1885), S. 112-A.

Before S. 112-A (d) of the Bihar Tenancy Act can be invoked, it has to be shown that there has been a lull, not due to temporary causes, in the average local prices of staple food crops during the currency of the present rent. Where the rents date from a period of cheap prices in which there occurs only one year of famine when the prices go up temporarily, for the purposes of an application under S. 112-A of the Bihar Tenancy Act, such a temporary rise in one year should be disregarded as the rents clearly date from period of lower prices. The rent of a holding is what is lawfully payable, and an illegal enhancement which had been paid for several years and which has since been cut off, does not become part of the rent. Where the legal rent has remained the same since 1900, it must be held to have become payable in 1900 for purposes of S. 112-A (d) of the Bihar Tenancy Act. The fact that there was an illegal enhancement in 1900 and that it was being paid from 1900 till 1909, when it was cut off, is no ground for holding that the rent became first payable in 1909. Rents were enhanced from 1900, but this enhancement was cut off at the settlement and the rent prevailing in 1900 was attested in 1909 and had been paid since.

Held, that rent was what was lawfully payable, and therefore the illegal enhancement was not a part of the rent, the legal rent having remained the same since 1900, the currency of the present rent dated from 1900 and not from 1909, for purposes of S. 112 A (d). Rents were commuted in 1911, and in a collectorate Batwara under the Bengal Estates Partition Act, the holdings were partitioned among different maliks in 1922. The Rent Reduction Officer held that new rents and new holdings were created in 1922 by the Batwara and that the rent first became payable from 1923.

Held, that the fact that the tenants who originally paid certain rents to a certain landlord now paid the same total rent to more than one set of landlords did not amount to a breach in the continuity of the rent, and it could not be said that the currency of the present rent dated from the time when the rent was split up among more than one proprietor. ——S. 112-A (1) (a) (b) and (d)—Applicability and Scope—Case falling under Cl. (a) or Cl. (b)—If can be dealt with under Cl. (d).

It is not correct to hold that if a case falls under either Cl. (a) or Cl. (b) of S. 112-A (1) of the Bihar Tenancy Act, it cannot be dealt with under Cl. (d). Cl. (d) empowers reduction of the rent of any occupancy holding on account of a fall in prices during the currency of the existing rate, and there is nothing to indicate that the clause does not apply to cases in which the rent has been enhanced or commuted. On a plain reading of the section, it must be held that it is open to an occupancy raiyat to apply under Cl. (d) even if the circumstances are such that he could have applied under Cl. (a) or Cl. (b). (Middleton.) FOUJDAR ROUT v. NAGNARAIN SINGH. 8 B.R. 191.

——S. 112-A (1) (b) and (d)—Applicability—Application filed under Cl. (b)—Disposal as one under Cl. (d)—Jurisdiction.

Where an application is filed under Cl. (b) of S. 112-A (1) of the Bihar Tenancy Act, the Rent Reduction Officer has no jurisdiction to treat it as one under S. 112-A (1) (d) and deal with it. ——S. 112-A (1) (b) and (d)—Scope—If mutually exclusive.

There is no warrant for holding that no relief can be granted under Cl. (d) of S. 112-A (1) of the Bihar Tenancy Act in cases where Cl. (b) of the sub-section will apply. Cl. (d) plainly means that any class of occupancy rent can be reduced at any time, and there is nothing to justify the inference that the legislature did not intend that Cl. (d) should apply to cases to which Cl. (b) also applied. There is nothing in the section to justify the inference that Cl. (d) ought to be interpreted as though it were preceded by the words "subject to the provisions of Cls. ——S. 112 A (1) (d)—Rent, when first became payable—Landlord alleging mafi or remission—Rent receipts not mentioning mafi—Effect.

It was alleged that from 1924, which was taken to be the year from which the rent first became payable, that some remission or mafi had been given each year and the landlord produced laggits to show that mafi was given. The rent receipts, however, did not mention any mafi anywhere,

Held, that in the absence of any mention of reduction or mafi in the rent receipts, the case as to mafi could not be accepted, and the rent must be taken to have first became payable from 1924 and the rent was rightly reduced under S. 112 A (1) (d) of the Bihar Tenancy Act. ——S. 113—Applicability and Scope—Proceedings under S. 112—Rent not reduced as it was considered fair—Application under S. 112-A—Bar of.

Even when the rent is not reduced in proceedings under S. 112 of the Bihar Tenancy Act because the rent is considered fair, it amounts to a settlement, because the maintaining of the existing rents is a form of settlement under S. 104 A. Hence such settlement is a bar under S. 113 to an application under S. 112-A. (Middleton.) BANSROPAN SAH v. BRIJNANDAN SINGH. 8 B.R. 360.

——S. 113—Applicability and Scope—Proceedings under S. 112—Settlement of rent by maintaining existing rentals—Subsequent application under S. 112-A—Maintainability.

Where there has been a settlement of fair rents under S. 112 of the Bihar Tenancy Act, an application under S. 112 A of the Act is barred by S. 113. S. 104 A (d) clearly provides for settlement of rent by maintaining the existing rentals recorded in the record of rights as one of the methods by which rent may be settled. Even when the existing rents are maintained and entered, it amounts to a settlement and S. 113 operates as a bar to an application under S. 112-A. ——S. 113—Applicability—Order cancelling enhancement—Subsequent review and cancellation of rent roll and order maintaining existing rent—Order without jurisdiction—If bar to reduction of rent under S. 112-A.

The tenants applied in 1935 for cancellation of enhancements made in 1913 under S. 105 of the Bihar Tenancy Act, and the Assistant Settlement Officer cancelled the enhancements under S. 112, but later on, the landlord having raised objections, he revised the order of cancellation and maintained the existing rents by cancelling the rent roll under S. 104-E, and he advised the tenants to apply under S. 112-A.

BIHAR TENANCY ACT (1885), S. 163-A.

Held, that the Assistant Settlement Officer having been empowered in Notification No. 2817—II. T—34 R, dated 19—6—1937, only to deal with cases of money rent which first became payable on or after 1—1—1920, and on or before 31—12—1933 any decision under S. 112, whether positive or negative was clearly without jurisdiction; and S. 113 of the Bihar Tenancy Act would not therefore operate as a bar to reduction under S. 112-A of the Act. In the case of a joint Hindu family, which is the landlord, the fact that there was a minor member of the family who did not join either in the suit for rent or in the execution proceedings, would not prevent a decree and a rent sale. Where the minor was represented by his father in the suit, and the karta of the family appeared in the execution proceedings, there is sufficient and substantial representation of the entire body of landlords for the holding to pass under the sale under S. 158-B of the Bihar Tenancy Act. S. 163 A of the Bihar Tenancy Act only provides that a holding shall not be sold for a price lower than that specified in the sale proclamation. There is nothing in the section which can force the decree-holder to bid up to the amount fixed by the sale proclamation in default whereof the execution application must be dismissed. Where in execution of a rent decree the property is put up for sale, but the amount bid by the decree-holder is less than the amount fixed by the Court in the sale proclamation and the decree-holder refuses to raise his bid up to that amount, the Court will not be justified in dismissing the execution on that ground. The duty of the executing Court in such a case is to issue a fresh sale proclamation at the expense of the decree-holder and advertise the property again, and to call for a fresh set of bidders. ——S. 163-A—Scope—Sale in contravention of—Void or voidable.

S. 163-A of the Bihar Tenancy Act contains a clear statutory prohibition against the sale of a holding for a price less than the value fixed for it in the sale proclamation, and unless a case falls within one of the two provisos to the section, the Court has no power to sell at any price below that fixed. ——Sch. III, Art. 2—Applicability—Agricultural lease—Test to decide—Nature of lands or purpose of tenancy.

The question whether a lease of lands is governed by the Bihar Tenancy Act or not turns on the nature of the lands leased and not on the purpose of the tenancy. Under a registered kabuliyat the lessee was given the right to collect the rents of lands which were, in the main agricultural lands. He was also authorised to cultivate bakasht lands and appropriate the proceeds to himself. In a suit for arrears of thica rent,

Held, that a suit for rent was governed by Art. 2 of Sch. III of the Bihar Tenancy Act, and the claim for rent beyond three years would be barred.

Per Rowland, J.—The lease was of agricultural lands and the lessee was a tenure holder under the Bihar Tenancy Act. The predominant object of the lease was the collection of rents and it was a tenure.

Per Chatterji, J.—The lease was for agricultural purposes and therefore the suit for rent came within the provisions of the Bihar Tenancy Act, and was governed by the three years' rule in Art. 2 of Sch. ——Sch. III, Art. 3—Applicability—Conditions—Order under S. 145, Cr. P. Code, in landlord's favour—Suit for possession by tenant—Limitation—Limitation Act, Art. 47.

Art. 3 of Sch. III of Bihar Tenancy Act applies to a suit by a raiyat against a landlord who has dispossessed him qua landlord. For the application of this article two conditions are necessary, viz., that the plaintiff has been dispossessed and that the dispossession has been by his landlord as such. If these two conditions exist, the suit is of the class intended to be covered by this Article and as this Act is a special Act, it will govern in preference to the provisions of the general law of limitation. When an order under S. 145, Cr. P. Code, is made affirming the possession of the landlord and forbidding the tenant from disturbing that possession, nobody is dispossessed at all. Further even if the order is regarded as dispossession of the tenant, it is not dispossession by the landlord as such. It follows from that that in no case can an order under S. 145 be regarded as dispossession by a landlord for the purpose of Art. 3 of Sch. III of Tenancy Act. Consequently, a suit by the tenant to recover possession from the landlord in such circumstances is governed not by this article, but by Art. 47 of the Limitation Act. Where a landlord purchases in auction the lands of his tenants in execution of a money decree against them and fails to get possession through the Civil Court, and the tenants continue in possession, but long after the sale and Civil Court delivery of possession he dispossesses the tenants, such dispossession must be held to be a dispossession in his capacity as a landlord and not as auction-purchaser. A suit by the tenants for recovery of possession of the lands from the landlord is governed by Art. 3 of Sch. III of the Bihar Tenancy Act for purposes of limitation. ——S. 54 (b)—Construction—"Article liable to confiscation under cl. (a)"—Meaning of—Sale of beer without license—Raid—Liquor found in kitchen and godown of house of accused—Confiscation—Legality.

The expression "an article liable to confiscation under cl. (a)" occurring in Cl. (b) of S. 54 of the Bombay Abkari Act, cannot be construed as meaning an article which may become liable to confiscation under Cl. (a) on the commission of the offence which brings S. 54 into operation. The only sound way of construing the clause is to take the words literally, and to hold that the only articles which are liable to confiscation under Cl. (b) are articles lawfully imported, transported, manufactured, had in possession or sold along with something which had actually at the time become liable to confiscation. The accused was charged and convicted under S. 43 (1) (i) of the Bombay Abkari Act, for having sold without license two bottles of beer and a bottle of rum to a bogus customer who was sent by the police. The place was raided by the police who seized the bottles sold and also found a large quantity of liquor in the kitchen adjacent to the place where the sale took place and in a godown at the back of the house of the accused. In convicting the accused the magistrate also passed an order under S. 54, confiscating the liquor found in the kitchen and the godown.

Held, that the liquor in question found in the kitchen and godown was never had in possession along with the bottles sold after they became liable to confiscation, having been seized by the police after the sale when the liability to confiscation arose, and therefore the liquor in the kitchen and godown could not legally be confiscated. On the other hand, if the offence charged involves an act or acts which the accused is not required to do and which are outside its official duties, the liability to prosecution is unfettered. BOMBAY DISTRICT POLICE ACT (IV OF 1890), S 61 (1) (f)—Construction—"In any other way whatsoever"—Person inviting people and giving dinner to caste people in public street—Obstruction—Offence.

S. 61 (1) (f) of the Bombay District Police Act must be read as a whole in one part only and not in two parts or three parts separately. Under that section, a person is not entitled to obstruct a street by exposing things for sale in or upon any stall and so forth in the street, and that type of obstruction is prohibited apart from any regulation made by the District Magistrate. The general words "any other way whatsoever" must be read ejusdem generis with the words which have gone before.

Obstruction of a street by inviting people to sit in it for a length of time is of the same genus as obstructing it by leaving vehicles or animals or packages in the street. Hence where a person gives a caste dinner in the street outside his residence, and thus causes obstruction is liable to conviction under S. 61 (1) (f) of the Bombay District Police Act. ——S. 61-E—Burden of proof—When shifts to accused—Duty of prosecution to prove that property in possession of accused is stolen property.

Under S. 61-E of the Bombay District Police Act, before an accused person can be called upon to account for the possession of property, it is necessary that the Magistrate should be satisfied that there is reason to believe that the property is stolen property. There must be evidence, amounting to proof, to the satisfaction of the Court that the accused possessed a thing of which it could be predicated after judicial consideration by the Court that it may be reasonably suspected of being stolen. It is only then and not until then, that the burden of proof of innocence shifts to the accused. (Davis, C.J. and Weston, J.) MAHOMED VASI ABDUL GHANI v. EMPEROR. I.L.R. ——S. 80 (1)—Applicability—Illegal acts done with knowledge of their illegality — If protected—"Good faith."

S. 80 (1) of the Bombay District Police Act does not extend a general protection to a police officer for all acts in good faith under colour of his office; the protection is limited to any act done in good faith in pursuance or intended pursuance of any duty imposed or any authority conferred on him by any provision of Act or any rule, order or direction lawfully made or given thereunder. The section must, however, be read with S. 51 of Act, which by its wording extends the protection to acts done under other laws. S. 80 (1) read with S. 51 is intended to protect illegal acts. But S. 80 (1) is not intended to apply to illegal acts which are done with the knowledge that they are illegal. S. 80 (1) cannot apply to a case where a Sub-Inspector of Police with open eyes breaks the law, and he is not entitled to invoke the protection of S. 80 (1); he cannot be said to act in good faith when he knowingly breaks the law. A man is answerable under the law for his own acts. He cannot plead the unlawful order of his official superior as his defence. (Davis, C J.) HAJI MAHOMED KHAN v. EMPEROR. I.L.R. BOMBAY HIGH COURT (APPELLATE SIDE) RULES (1936), App. E, Rr. I and VI—Advocate's fee—Computation—Suit for injunction—Valuation—Principles.

Appendix E of the Appellate Side Rules of the Bombay High Court does not refer to the value for purposes of Court-fee or jurisdiction. It bases the amount of the advocate's fee on the amount of the subject matter in the suit. The true rule to be derived from the terms of Appendix E is that the advocate's fee should be computed on the value of the subject-matter in dispute, where that value can be ascertained by the Taxing Officer from materials on the record. In the case of an injunction it may frequently be quite impossible to ascertain that value, e.g., in a suit for an injunction to restrain interference with a right of way. In such a case the proper course is to allow the minimum fee. But if the materials on record enable the Taxing Officer to say what is the value of the subject matter in dispute, he should base the advocate's fee on that value subject to the qualification that the value of the subject-matter should never be regarded as greater than the amount necessary for ascertaining the pecuniary jurisdiction of the Court. The Taxing Officer should never base the advocate's fee on an amount in excess of the pecuniary jurisdiction of the Court which tried the suit. ——Costs—Taxation—Fees of three counsel as between party and party—When to be allowed—Discretion of taxing master.

According to the English practice, which is applicable in the Bombay High Court, the Taxing Master has a discretion to allow the fees of more than two counsel and he can therefore allow fees of three counsel. But it is an unusual expense and therefore it requires a very strong case to induce the Court to sanction the fees of more than two counsel as between party and party. The test is whether the case was one in which a reasonable and prudent man, acting with ordinary prudence, would not have ventured to come into Court without three counsel. When there is no dispute as to facts, the taxing master is not justified in allowing fees of three counsel merely on the ground that matter was of considerable importance, when the point of law, though important, was within a comparatively narrow compass. If any occupation thereafter of the land would be a wrongful occupation rendering the holder to summary eviction, and if the Government decide to evict such person, they can do so by giving a notice under S. 202. Such a notice is not a mere communication to hand over possession, but is a decision that the occupant is bound to hand over possession of the lands. It is a decision though it takes the form of a notice under S. 202, and therefore S. 11 of the Bombay Revenue Jurisdiction Act applies. ——Ss 202 and 203—Scope—Powers of Government to issue notice of eviction without previously passing order—Such notice—If decision or order under S. 203—Notice—If should expressly mention section.

It is clear that Government can pass an order for eviction of a person who is wrongfully in possession of land by giving him a notice as prescribed by S 202, Bombay Land Revenue Code. Such a notice in fact amounts to a decision or order contemplated by S. 203. It is not necessary that before a notice under S. 202 is given the Government should actually pass an order and communicate it to the party concerned. It is open to the Government to pass an order in the form of a notice and to serve it on the party concerned and if that is done, the Government must be deemed to have complied with the provisions of the Land Revenue Code. Nor is it necessary that the notice should mention that it is given under S. 202, if it is clear on the wording thereof that it is under that section and under no other provision of law. The Government possesses larger powers than a private landlord. While a private landlord has no power to summarily evict a tenant who is holding over, the Government have that power, and at the termination of the period for which a particular right had been granted by Government to any person, it is open to Government to give him a notice to vacate it and if the holder still remains in possession after its expiry, he must be deemed to be holding the land in wrongful possession. That being so, the Government would be entitled to give a notice as required by S. 202 of the Land Revenue Code. (Divatia and Macklin, JJ.) SECRETARY OF STATE v. CHIMANLAL JAMNADAS. I.L.R. All the properties specified in sub-S (2) of S. 63 of the Bombay Municipal Boroughs Act are properties of a public character and include public wells. When property of the nature specified in S. 63 ceases to be used for the purpose which led to its being vested in a municipal borough, as for example, when a public well ceases to be used as a public well by getting filled up, the land does not vest in the Provincial Government. The scheme of the Act is that property used for a public purpose, as specified in S. 63, is to vest in the Municipality, and if it ceases to be used for the public purpose, the municipality can sell it with the consent of the commissioner and the proceeds will form part of the municipal fund. There is nothing in the Act which suggests that Government has any interest in the matter. There is nothing inherently unjust or unreasonable in the Legislature having provided that property once vested in the municipality shall for all times be held for the benefit of the local public.

Those rates may be imposed in the form of rates assessed on buildings and lands or in any other form including that of charges for supply of water. But what is imposed must be a rate, and not an arbittrary lump sum. It is clear that a lump sum imposed arbitrarily by the standing committee of a Municipality on certain trade and not on the district generally and not depending on the value of the property assessed is not a rate, and is not authorised under S. 73 (x) or S. 91 of the Act. The power conferred upon the Municipality for the purposes of the Bombay Municipal Boroughs Act to "stop up" streets under S. 114 of the Act cannot be extended to cover a case where the Municipality authorizes or rather purports to authorize certain individuals to build a wall across a public street for their own purposes. The "stopping up" of a street does not mean its obstruction in the ordinary sense of that word. ——S. 186 (2)—Applicability—Imposition of daily penalty—Condition precedent to—Penalty in anticipation of repetition of offence—Legality.

A daily penalty under S. 186 (2) cannot be imposed n anticipation of a repetition of the offence. S. 186 (2) does not indicate that an order of fine for further continuance of the nuisance must necessarily be passed in the same order as that which records the first conviction. Therefore on the principle that a person should not be punished in anticipation of the commission of an offence, it is necessary in every case where a fine for continuance of the offence is sought to be imposed, for a fresh prosecution to be instituted. There must be a conviction for a previous breach and then a subsequent fresh conviction for continuing the breach after the date of that first conviction before the daily penalty under S. 186 (2) can be imposed. ——Rr. 46 and 167—Scope and effect of—Share-broker—Suit for losses sustained in transactions of constituent—Cause of action—Express averment as to incurring of liability and payment in respect of losses—If essential—Cause of action.

In a claim for indemnity, e.g., a claim by a share-broker for recovery of losses sustained by him in respect of transactions entered into for his constituent, the plaintiff must aver that he has sustained the losses for which he claims to be indemnified. Where the plaint contains an allegation that the plaintiff was carrying on business as a certified share, stock and exchange broker in the Bombay Native share and Stock Brokers' Association and had entered into certain contracts on behalf of the defendant (his constituent) for which contract notes had been sent to him, and those contract notes state that they are subject to the rules and regulations of the Native share and Stock Brokers' Association, it does certainly disclose a cause of action. It is not necessary that there should be an express averment that the plaintiff incurred liability in respect of the transactions of the defendant and that he made payments in respect of the losses incurred in respect of the transactions of the defendants. BOMBAY PREVENTION OF GAMBLING ACT (IV OF 1887), S. 4 (a)—Sentence—Fine—Amount—Discretion—First offence—Imprisonment—Desirability.

It cannot be held that lack of means on the part of the accused is not a special reason justifying the imposition of the less than the maximum fine under the proviso to S. 4 (a) of the Bombay Prevention of Gambling Act. The vice of a fine as a means of punishment is that its severity necessarily depends on the financial position of the accused. The Court has discretion to impose a sentence of imprisonment or fine; and where the accused is shown to be gambling on a large scale, and may be presumed to be making a good deal of money out of it, it may be that the only punishment, likely really to act as a deterrent, would be imprisonment. Prima facie, however, it is undesirable to impose a sentence of imprisonment for a first offence. ——S. 11—Scope—Bar of suit—Order passed without jurisdiction—If need be set aside—Bar under S. 11—If arises.

An order which is ultra vires does not invoke the bar of S. 11 of the Bombay Revenue Jurisdiction Act. Where a Revenue Officer purports to do an act or to pass an order which is invalid, his action does not operate to raise a bar under S 11. The principle is well-established that where an authority which purports to pass an order is acting without jurisdiction, the purported order is a mere nullity, and it is not necessary for anybody, who objects to that order, to apply to set it aside. He can rely on its invalidity when it is set up against him, although he has not taken steps to set it aside. An order which is a nullity does not give rise to any right whatever, not even to a right of appeal. This principle applies to S. 11 of the Bombay Revenue Jurisdiction Act also. (*Beaumont, C. under S. 202, Land Revenue Code—If illegal—Failure to appeal—Suit in Civil Court—Bar of.

If a person claims to remain in possession of Government land merely on the strength of his long possession in the past though without any rightful title in him, Government have the right to assert their ownership which has not been divested by any act of the occupant, and they have a right of resumption so long as the occupant does not prove any acquisition of right in him by adverse possession against Government. The giving of a notice by Government under S. 202 of the Bombay Land Revenue Code to the occupant cannot be regarded as an invalid or ultra vires act. It may be an incorrect order liable to be set aside on appeal under S. 203. But merely because it is incorrect, it cannot be said to be invalid or illegal in law. It would not be a case where the notice or order is vitiated by want of power, excess of jurisdiction or any other illegality, so as to take it out of the operation of S. 11 of the Bombay Revenue Jurisdiction Act when no appeal has been preferred against it. BURMA CONTRIBUTORY PROVIDENT FUND RULES, R. 5 (3) and Burma General Clauses Act, S. 2 (44)—Construction of R. 5 (3)—Person—Meaning of—Validity of nomination of a Charity Home to receive fund.

BURMA DEFENCE RULES.

R. 5 (3) of the Burma Contributory Provident Fund Rules says that a subscriber may nominate a person or persons to receive the fund and in order to discover, what is the meaning of 'a person' it is necessary to refer to the Burma General Clauses Act; and in Cl. (44) of S. 2 of that Act it is enacted that " 'person' shall include any company or association or body of individuals, whether incorporated or not" unless there is anything repugnant to the subject or context. There is nothing repugnant to this meaning of 'person' in the Burma Contributory Provident Fund Rules. Hence if a subscriber has no family, he is not compelled to leave it to an individual or individuals. The nomination of a Charity Home for girls as the person entitled to receive the fund, is therefore quite a valid one. (Sharpe, J.) HANNAY v. RODRIGUEZ. 1941 Rang L.R. 712.

——R. 5 (3)—"Person"—If includes association.

In construing the act and the Rules made thereunder for the purpose of carrying out the Act regard must be had to the provisions of the Burma General Clauses Act. In view of the provisions of S. 2 (44), Burma General Clauses Act, the word "person" in R. 5 (3) must be taken to include any company, association or body of individuals whether incorporated or not. (Roberts, C.J. and Dunkley, J.) ELLEN FLORENCE RODRIGUEZ v. EDITH MARY HANNAY. A.I.R. 1942 Rang. 64 (2).

——R. 5 (7), (3) and (6)—Previous nomination in form valid but cancelled by subsequent nomination which was found invalid—Effect.

The subscriber to the Government Provident Fund who had no family, nominated "Bishop Strachan's Home, Prome Road, Rangoon," on 27th July, 1935, in the nomination form as her nominee to receive the full amount of her provident fund in the event of her death. On 14th February, 1939, she made a second nomination which was exactly the same as the first; it was in favour of "Bishop's Home Strachan for Girls," this being merely an inversion of the proper name of the Home and Bishop Strachan's Home was again nominated to receive the whole amount of her provident fund. But shortly before the subscriber's death the second entry was crossed out by a single ink line and underneath it were typed the words "The Lord Bishop of Rangoon, the Rt. Rev. G. A. West," and under this typed entry appeared the subscriber's signature. The signature under the last nomination not having been witnessed by two witnesses as required by the rules was held invalid.

Held, that under R. 5 (6) a nomination could be cancelled only by another nomination, i.e., another valid nomination, and when the subsequent nomination in favour of Rt. Rev. G. A. West was found to be invalid the result was that the previous nomination of 14th February, 1939, still remained uncancelled and was a perfectly good nomination. But even if this nomination was also invalid, the only result was that the nomination of July, 1935, remained valid, and in any case the nominee to receive the whole of the provident fund was the Bishop Strachan's Home for Girls. No rule can be laid down for the exercise of the Court's powers under Rule 35 of Chap. On the application for confirmation of the report by the Judge, two counsel were engaged for more than one day and refresher fees were paid to them. In the taxation for costs as between attorney and client, the client objected to the allowing of fees to two counsel with refresher fees on the ground that they were unusual fees and should not be allowed in the absence of a written consent of the client under Ch. CALCUTTA IMPROVEMENT ACT (XVIII OF 1911), S. 77 (2)—Execution of award of tribunal by Small Cause Court—Certificate of non-satisfaction—If must be obtained—C. P. Code, O. 21, R. 6.

Under S. 77 (2) of the Calcutta Improvement Act, the award of the tribunal is to be executed by the Small Causes Court as if it were a decree made by that Court. This clearly shows that that Court is not to be deemed to be a transferee Court and the procedure laid down in O. 21, R. 6, C. P. Code, will have no application to the award. The party in whose favour that has been made need not, therefore, obtain a certificate of non-satisfaction to get it executed by the Court of Small Causes. CALCUTTA MUNICIPAL ACT (III OF 1923), S. 127—'Let'—Meaning of—House owned by firm occupied by one of its partners without rent—If assessable under Cl. (a) or (b).

The word "let" in S. 127 of the Calcutta Municipal Act means "granting the use of the land for rent". Where a house owned by a firm is occupied by one of its partners who neither pays any cash rent nor renders any service to the firm in lieu thereof, his occupation, in the absence of any evidence to the contrary, is that of one of the co-owners of the house and not that of a tenant. Such a house, when there is no suggestion that it was erected for letting purposes, is assessable under Cl. (b) and not under Cl. (a) of S. 127 of the Act. The English principle of valuing "rebus sic stantibus" (i.e.) with reference to the property in its actually existing condition taking into account neither the past conditions nor the future possibilities, can with perfect propriety be applied to cases coming under S. 127 (a) of the Calcutta Municipal Act where the owner has put the property to some use. The annual value in such cases must be determined on the basis of the rent expected from a hypothetical tenant who takes it from year to year. The above principle of English Law can have no application to a case where land is kept vacant and the owner does not put it to any use at all. Such a case can not possibly arise in English Law, as a owner who does not use or occupy his land is not rateable under the English Law at all. Under the Calcutta Municipal Act, an owner who keeps his land vacant is bound to pay rates. In determining the value of such land, the standard cannot be the amount of rent payable by a tenant who would keep it fallow and unoccupied. As the owner is not using it in any particular way, there is no presumption in favour of the continuance of any kind of user. The standard in such cases must be the rent which could be expected from a tenant, who would take the land as it is, and put it to such use as is possible for a yearly tenant to do. Where a piece of vacant land is not used by the owner except occasionally as an imperfect golf course, and the owner has expressly asked the Corporation to ignore such occasional user and treat it as vacant land so that he may have the vacancy remissions, it would be proper to value the land on the basis of annual letting value of lands in the vicinity let out as vacant lands to yearly tenants (Mukherjea and Akram, JJ.) BENGAL NAGPUR RAILWAY CO., LTD. v. CORPORATION OF CALCUTTA. I.L.R. ——S. 127 (b)—Value of land—Mode of assessment—English system of rating—If applicable.

The Legislature has not laid down any definite method of estimating the present value of the land required to be estimated by S. 127 (b) of the Calcutta Municipal Act. There may be different methods of making this estimate and it will be for the expert valuers to make the estimate in each particular case and for the Court to come to a decision whether or not their valuation is correct. The word 'value' in this part of the section means the selling price of the property in question between a willing seller and a willing purchaser, subject to the advantages or disadvantages involved in its present condition. As Cl. (b) of S. 127 has been introduced to meet the cases where determination of the 'annual rent' by any direct method is impossible, it will be absurd to suggest that in valuing the land the self-same impossible item was intended by the Legislature to supply the starting point. Therefore, the profits basis or the contractor's basis of rating prevailing in the English system, which are all methods not of determining the value of the land but of ascertaining the hypothetical annual rent, have no application in determining the value of the land under the section. The fact that when he was told by the Corporation to take steps for the removal of the business he protested that the refusal of the license was unwarranted and urged that no licence was required, is irrelevant. Only S. 3 of the Central Provinces Children Act is made applicable to male persons in the whole of the Central Provinces with effect from 15th September, 1932. That section contains the definition of the expression 'youthful offender' but it cannot include the case of a boy under the age of 16 years at the time of conviction and sentence who has been convicted of any offence punishable with death. It is wrong for the Sessions Judge to suppose that the whole Act was brought into force in the Central Provinces and under that mistaken impression fail to award the sentence provided by law. CENTRAL PROVINCES COURT OF WARDS ACT (XXIV OF 1899)—Scope—If contemplates taking over of a partnership business by the Court of Wards against the wishes of other partners.

The Central Provinces Court of Wards Act limits itself throughout to the 'person or property' of the Government Ward. A partnership business and its assets are not the property of the Ward. They belong to the firm and cannot be split up among the partners until dissolution. The Act does not contemplate the taking over of a partnership business by the Court of Wards against the wishes of other partners. ——S. 13 (1)—Scope of—Substantial compliance with—Sufficiency.

The provisions of S. 13 (1) of the Central Provinces Court of Wards Act are of course mandatory, but they are procedural and all that the section requires is substantial compliance with its terms rather than compliance with the letter, and provided there is no prejudice or injury, the Court of Wards can waive small and unessential irregularities. S. 15 (3) of the Central Provinces Court of Wards Act only speaks generally of "a claim" and not of a claim submitted in accordance with the provisions of S. 12 (1). Hence when "a claim" though not strictly in accordance with S. 12 (1) is once received and the documents produced are accepted the force of Ss. 12 and 13 spends itself so far as the claim submitted and received and the documents produced are concerned. When the parties are unable to agree as to the settlement of the claim, S. 15 (3) of the Act comes into operation. ——S. 12—Scope and object of the Act—Fraudulent concoction of debts to show the necessary percentage of consenting creditors—Refusal of relief.

The Central Provinces Debt Conciliation Act was designed to secure a particular class of debtors from the rapacities of creditors and was never intended to be used as an instrument of fraud. The whole basis on which conciliation proceeds is destroyed, if a debtor when coming before such a tribunal under the powers conferred by such an Act, fraudulently concocts debts so that an imaginary percentage of creditors appears to be willing to agree. Where false creditors falsely appear to agree to a false agreement, the Board necessarily brings into play powers which it would know it did not possess were it not for the fraud. Where a creditor had behaved in an extremely untractable manner before the Debt Conciliation Board and not only refused what the Board considered a fair offer but also refused to make a settlement on any terms whatever, it was held that it was manifestly unfair that such a person should be awarded the maximum rate of 6 per cent. which the law provided and that 2 per cent. would be the proper rate. CENTRAL PROVINCES EXCISE ACT (I OF 1915), Ss. 34 (a) and 37 and Rr. 84 (7) and 498—Rules regarding collection of a fee or the necessity of licence in respect of purchase or indent of foreign liquor—If ultra vires.

Before Government can make rules for licence or collect fees in respect of purchase or indent of foreign liquor, it must be empowered to do so under the Act. The C. P. Excise Act (as distinct from the rules) nowhere authorises the collection of a fee or requires the possession of a licence in respect of the purchase of or indent of liquor. The Act nowhere prohibits or regulates or restricts the purchase or indent of liquor, whether foreign or otherwise. Such restrictions or prohibitions cannot be imposed by the rules. Hence Rr. 84 (7) and 498 are consequently ultra vires in so far as they attempt to regulate the purchase or indent of liquor. A violation of such rules cannot be punished as offences under the Act. CENTRAL PROVINCES LAND REVENUE ACT (II OF 1917)—Irrigation rights—Entry in settlement khasra—Value.

The entries in a settlement khasra as to irrigation from a particular source does not necessarily imply a right to irrigation. In the absence of an indication that such a right was recognized at settlement, it would ———Scope of the conclusive effect of revenue entries.

The conclusive effect of revenue entries should be restricted to the purposes of the C. P. Land Revenue Act under which they are made. They should not lightly be allowed to destroy legal rights, and when such rights exist they should not be found against unless one is compelled so to do as the consequence of a conclusive presumption. Proceedings under S. 149 of the C. P. Land Revenue Act can only be initiated when there has been a change of the possession recorded in the register of proprietary mutations. If there has been a transfer of possession, the Thasildar has to decide whether the person who has entered into possession is in "lawful possession'. If he finds that no one can be said to have entered into lawful possession, he has to report to the Sub-divisional Officer who decided which person is best entitled to the property and who can, if necessary, oust a person who has obtained unlawful possession. But sub-Ss. (2) and (3) cannot be used independently of sub-S. (1) to remove a recorded proprietor whose title has been found to be defective but who has not lost possession. ———S. 56—Right of Provincial Government under—If lost by transfer of military land without recovering capitalisation of land revenue.

The Government of India held certain land on behalf of the Secretary of State who had prescribed rules which covered the disposal of that particular kind of land. These rules are shown in Revenue Book Circular 17. The note to R. 8 makes it clear that the Government of India is not entitled to dispose of land as a revenue free holding unless the capitalized value of the land revenue has been paid to the Local Government. Where in such a case there was nothing to indicate that the capitalized value was recovered from the purchaser, it was held that in the circumstances the Provincial Government's rights under S. 56, C. P. Land Revenue Act, to levy land revenue was not affected by the transfer even though the transfer mentioned that it was free from all encumbrances. (*Binney, F. ———Ss. 106 (a) and 88—Lands within settled mahal—Enhancement of assessment—Powers.

The C. P. Land Revenue Act does not permit the enhancement of the assessment of a mahal on the ground that it had escaped assessment at settlement. S. 106 (a) of the C. P. Land Revenue Act which empowers settlement officers to assess land revenue on lands which are liable to assessment but have not been assessed, cannot be invoked to impose assessment on lands in a settled mahal. The assessment on the mahal is fixed for the period of settlement. It is only under the second proviso to S. 88 (1) that assessment can be revised. S. 145 of the C. P. Land Revenue Act lays down that the deposits may be made within 30 days from the date of the sale. The implication is that the deposits may be made within Court hours and there is nothing in the section which could possibly justify the refusal of an amount offered in Court hours but after the closing of the treasury to public transactions. That would be a sufficient compliance with the provisions of S. 145. Revenue Book Circular 11-15 does not affect the law on this subject. (Binney, F.C.) MOOLCHAND v. MST. ——S. 146—Sale under proclamation issued without authority—Receipt of sanction prior to sale—Sale if can be impugned.

There is no jusitification for holding that a sale by public auction properly advertised is void because the officer signing the proclamation had not at the time of the issue of the proclamation authority to insert a condition that it was subject to encumbrances, which condition was subsequently approved by the proper officer prior to the actual date of sale. It is only in rare cases, such as in proceedings under S. 157 of the C. P. Land Revenue Act, and in recovery of instalments under the Debt Conciliation Act and the Relief of Indebtedness Act, that recoveries are made on behalf of individuals. There is nothing objectionable in permitting such individuals, if the property is purchased by them, to set off the amount due to them in the proceedings. Hence a superior proprietor who has obtained an order under S. 157 can be allowed, if he bids at the sale, to set off the amount due to him. C. P. LOCAL SELF-GOVT. ACT (1920), S. 73.

The lambardar is under S. 188, Land Revenue Act, under a statutory liability to account. He is the person entitled and bound to recover the village profits and he is bound to account for them to his co-sharers. If he allows another person to recover some portion of the profits, then that person must be regarded as his agent and that in no way relieves the lambardar of his responsibility. ——S. 188—Village profits—Right to interest on—Plea of non-realisation of rent—Onus.

Interest can be allowed on village profits which are unreasonably withheld. Where parties are members of the same family and one or other is associated in the management of the property it is not right to allow interest until such time as relations became strained and one side demanded profits and interest from the other. When the lambardar pleads non-realisation of certain rents, the onus is on him to prove that they were not in fact realised. When a person in exclusive ownership of sir land transfers it to another, he becomes the tenant of his vendee and not of the entire proprietary body and pays the rent only to the vendee. The plain and natural meaning of Rr. 9 (a) and 12 (a) of the Rules and bye-laws framed by the Local Government for the assessment of conservancy and water rates is that when a portion of the same building or a range of buildings is occupied separately by a family having a separate source of income that portion should be deemed to be an independent and separate building notwithstanding that the portion forms an integral part of a larger structure. It was held that the residential quarters which are attached to a police station could be assessed separately as if they were distinct and independent buildings. The words 'such other day' in the proviso to Sub-S. (2) to S. 32 of the C. P. Municipalities Act cannot mean the same day. The word 'other' is used in contrast to the 'same day'—when the statute expressly uses the word 'other' it must, by necessary implication, exclude that day which is not 'other day'. Hence an adjournment of a meeting to some later hour of the same day would not be in accordance with law and any business transacted by the meeting would not be at a properly constituted meeting. CENTRAL PROVINCES (AND BERAR) PROHIBITION ACT (1938), S. 3 (h)—Liquor—If includes methylated spirit.

——Applicability—Proceedings pending at the time of expiry of the Act.

The effect of expiry of a statute is that it is no longer in force and in the absence of a provision to the contrary, no proceedings can be taken on it, and proceedings already commenced determine ipso facto. Hence an applicant for relief under C. P. Reduction of Interest Act though he had filed his application when the Act was in force could not be given any relief if the application is decided after the expiry of the Act. (Bose, J.) JASRUP BAIJNATH v. SETH PARAMANAND DAS. I.L.R. (1942) Nag. 764=202 I.C. 465=15 R.N. 83=1942 N.L.J. 400=A.I.R. 1942 Nag. 122.

——S. 3 (1)—Nature of interest if intended to be affected by the Act—Agreement of parties, if the deciding factor.

The Central Provinces Reduction of Interest Act only contemplates a reduction in the rate of interest and not any change in the nature of interest. Hence, when parties have agreed to compound interest, the rate allowed in the schedule for compound interest can be awarded, while in cases where parties have agreed to simple interest, the rate allowed in the schedule for simple interest can be awarded, but it is not permissible to change from one side of the schedule to the other because one works out at a higher amount than the other. (Stone, C.J. and Clarke, J.) ABDUL HUSSAIN v. RATANLAL. 1942 N.L.J. 42.

It is clear from the wording of S. 3 (1) of the Central Provinces Reduction of Interest Act that the courts have no power to reduce interest beyond the period between 1st January, 1932 and the date fixed by notification (i.e.) 31st December, 1939. ——S. 3 (1) and (3)—Limits to power of appellate Court to grant relief.

An appellate Court is a Court which is intended to put right decrees which were wrong at the date when they were passed. Where a decree was right when it was passed it is sub-S. (3) of S. 3 that applies and not sub-S. (1) of S. 3 of the C. P. Reduction of Interest Act. According to that sub-section the application would have to be made to the lower Court and when the Act has expired such a course is useless. The appellate Court can correct the decree and give relief only when the decree appealed against was wrong. (Stone, C.J. and Clarke, J.) ABDUL HUSSEIN v. RATANLAL. 1942 N.L.J. 42.

CENTRAL PROVINCES RELIEF OF INDEBTEDNESS ACT (XIV OF 1939), Ss. 5 (1) and 6——Suit for specific performance of contract to sell land—If can be stayed on defendant's application for relief under Relief of Indebtedness Act—Liability of defendant if a debt.

A relief for specific performance of a contract to sell is not in respect of any liability that can be said to be 'owing' and the prayer that a defendant may be compelled to execute a sale deed can in no sense of the term be described as a 'debt' within the meaning of definition of the word in the Relief of Indebtedness Act. As regards the alternative relief of compensation that is not yet 'owing'. It may never become due, because the Court may decree specific performance itself. Hence there is no 'debt' in respect of that relief also. It follows that a suit for specific performance of an agreement to sell land cannot be stayed under the Act because the defendant is not a 'debtor' under that Act. (Bose, J.) DEBI PRASAD v. LAKHMICHAND. 1942 N.L.J. 460.

——Ss. 6 and 23—Scope of—Stay of pending proceedings in Civil Court—Necessity of notice under S. 6 (3)—Mere filing of application to Debt Relief Court, not sufficient.

Ss. 6 and 23 of C. P. and Berar Relief of Indebtedness Act appear to overlap somewhat and the two sections must be read so as to be consistent with each other. Pending proceedings in a Civil Court will not be stayed merely because an application has been made to a Debt Relief Court. There must be a notice issued to the Civil Court announcing the filing of such an application. (Pollock, J.) DAMROOLAL v. GOKULPRASAD. I.L.R. (1942) Nag. 675.

——S. 6 (1) and (3)—Notice of application under the Act served after sale—Stay of confirmation—Proceedings for confirmation if proceedings for the recovery of the debt.

A notice of application made under sub-S. (1) of S. 6 of the Central Provinces and Berar Relief of Indebtedness Act does not operate to stay the confirmation of a sale of the judgment-debtor's property in which the bid was accepted before the notice of the application was given for this reason that proceedings for confirmation cannot be said to be proceedings for the recovery of the debt. (Burton, F.C.) RAMCHANDRA v. PANDURANG. 1942 N.L.J. 59.

——S. 6 (3)—Construction—Proceedings meaning—Sale of joint family property on father's insolvency—Son's application under the Act—Sale in spite of notice under S. 6 (3)—Validity.

S. 6 (3) of the C. P. Relief of Indebtedness Act is an enactment that takes away jurisdiction from the ordinary Courts and must be construed strictly. The proceedings referred to therein must mean proceedings against a person who has applied to the Debt Relief Court as made clear in the amendment. Hence where an Insolvency Court sells the joint family property on the insolvency of the father, though the sons applied to the Debt Relief Court, and notice of it was given to the Insolvency Court, the latter Court was not obliged to stay proceedings and the sale in spite of the notice is quite valid. (Pollock, J.) VINAYAK v. DHONDO. 1942 N.L.J. 36.

——S. 6 (3)—Duty of civil Court on receipt of notice—Question as to maintainability of application for relief if can be gone into.

When notice is received by a Civil Court under S. 6 (3) of the C. P. Relief of Indebtedness Act the civil Court must stay proceedings and leave it to the parties to raise the question whether the application lies to the Debt Relief Court. It is not for the civil Court to decide whether the application lies and its jurisdiction to do so is barred by S. 23 of that Act. (Pollock, J.) GULAM ALI v. ABDUL HUSSAIN. 1942 N.L.J. 52.

——Ss. 6 (3) and 17—Jurisdiction of Debt Relief Courts in case of mortgage claims—Proceedings for passing final decree for foreclosure, if can be stayed under S. 6 (3).

Reading the relevant provisions of the C. P. Relief of Indebtedness Act as a whole it is clear that mortgages were intended to fall within the purview of the Act and are intended to be included in the definition of 'debt'. But though such claims are so included, a distinction is drawn between the position before decree and after decree. S. 17 of the Act which deals with mortgage decrees, restricts the jurisdiction of the Debt Relief Court after decree in a mortgage suit to cases in which a decree 'for payment of money on the mortgage has been passed'. Hence, where a preliminary decree for foreclosure has been passed, there is no decree as contemplated by S. 17 and it follows that proceedings in the Civil Court for making such a decree final cannot be stayed under S. 6 (3) of the C. P. Relief of Indebtedness Act. (Stone, C.J. and Bose, J.) DAN BALWANT SINGH v. MT. BINDABAI. I.L.R. (1942) Nag. 357 = 200 I.C. 709 = 15 R.N. 13 = 1942 N.L.J. 113 = A.I.R. 1942 Nag. 88.

——Ss. 6 (3) and 23—Position of Collector to whom decree is transferred for execution—Receipt of notice from Debt Relief Court—Proper procedure to be followed—Relative scope of Ss. 6 (3) and 23 of the Act.

The legal position, when a decree is transferred to a Collector for execution is that he is acting under the orders of the Civil Court and is only bound to comply with an order from that Court. If he receives intimation of an application to a Debt Relief Court which is likely to lead to a stay order from the Civil Court, he should grant a suitable adjournment to enable the judgment-debtor to obtain a stay order. But the Collector would not be acting beyond his jurisdiction in refusing to grant such an adjournment. Ss. 6 (3) and 23 do not overlap and S. 23 only bars the assumption of jurisdiction regarding a matter which is being dealt with or has already been dealt with by a Debt Relief Court. But in any case S. 23 only applies to Civil Courts and the Collector is not a Court. (Binney, F.C.) CHINTAMAN RAMJI v. BALKRISHNA. 1942 N.L.J. 167.

——S. 6 (3)—Stay of execution— Scope—Decree against agriculturist principal debtors and non-agriculturist surety—Agriculturist debtors seeking debt relief—Decree against surety also, if should be stayed.

Where a money decree is passed against certain agriculturist principal debtors and against a non-agriculturist surety and all the former only apply for relief to the Debt Relief Court, when notice under S 6 (3) of the Relief of Indebtedness Act is sent to the executing Court the decree against the non-applying surety also should be stayed. The scheme of the Act is not to allow a man not entitled by law to recover the full amount of his debt from his debtors to nevertheless evade the law by being able to execute a decree for the full amount against the surety. (Grille, J.) RAJESHWAR VISVANATH v. MADHO MORESHWAR. 1942 N.L.J. 391.

——Ss. 6 (3) and 23—Stay of proceeding in civil Court—Notice under S. 6 (3), necessity of.

According to S. 6 (3) of the C. P. Relief of Indebtedness Act, proceedings before the civil Court are not to be stayed until the civil Court has received notice under that section—Pending proceedings in a Civil Court will not be stayed merely because an application has been made to a Debt Relief Court. Where though a defendant in a mortgage suit had applied under the Act during the pendency of the suit but no notice was issued under S. 6 (3) to the Civil Court and a final decree was passed it was held, that it could not be set aside on the ground of the pendency of proceedings under the C. ——S. 23—Applicability — Jurisdiction of civil Court to execute award under Co-operative Societies Act—If barred.

The jurisdiction of the Civil Courts in the matter of executing an award (having the force of a decree under the provisions of the Co-operative Societies Act) where by a liability is created and the sum becomes due to a society registered under the Co-operative Societies Act is not barred by S. 23 of C. P. Relief of Indebtedness Act. The reason is this. Owing to the operation of Ss. 4, 4 (b) of that Act, S. 26 of the Act has no application to such a liability. Unless a matter is transferred to the Debt Relief Court under S. 26 the matter is not "pending before a Debt Relief Court". CENTRAL PROVINCES TENANCY ACT (I OF 1920), S. 11 (amendment of 1940)—Applicability—Retrospective operation—Principle as to—Rights of succession—Crucial date.

An act which affects vested rights and is not merely procedural, that is to say, one that affects merely the method of the enforcement of the rights, cannot be presumed to have retrospective operation. The amendment of 1940 deleted the proviso contained in S. 11 of the C. P. Tenancy Act and is silent as regards its retrospective operation. Hence rights of succession to tenant who died prior to the amendment would be governed by the Act as it stood prior to its amendment. (Niyogi, J.) TULARAM v. TEJIRAM I.L.R. ——Ss. 12, 13 and 14—Object of legislature in enacting—Interpretation of Act in consonance with—Duty of Court.

Ss. 12, 13 and 14 of the C. P. Tenancy Act are designed to protect the heirs of a tenant and to preserve to them, as far as that can be done, the very special estate of inheritance which the tenancy Act and its predecessors have created. That is the broad aim of the legislature. It therefore behoves Courts when interpreting the Act to give effect to that object as far as they can, bearing in mind of course all the usual rules of interpretation. Whenever there is doubt or room for reaching a decision either one way or the other, the endeavour should be to further, as far as that is practicable, the aims of the legislature as gathered from the Act itself. ——Ss. 12, 13 and 14—Scope and effect of—Transfer in violation of S. 12—Effect—Proceedings under Ss. 13 and 14—Liability of the person put in possession, for arrears of transferor.

C. P. TENANCY ACT (1920), S. 24.

S. 12 of the C. P. Tenancy Act does not render transfers in contravention of its provisions void. They are only voidable, and that by a limited class of persons and in a very special and limited way. Hence there is no determination of tenancy on such a transfer. Now by virtue of Ss. 13 and 14 the heirs of the transfering tenant steps into the shoes of the transferee and thus acquires the tenancy subject to all its liabilities, just as much as he would have done had he succeeded as an heir on death. The usual rule that the assignee of a tenant's rights is liable for arrears in the same way as the original tenant because of the privity of estate between the landlord and himself, would apply. ——S. 12 (2)—Effect of sale of proprietary interest reserving khudkasht—Transferor if becomes occupancy tenant who can claim exemption from attachment and sale.

When a proprietor's entire interests in a village is sold excluding khudkasht, it is doing that which is legally impossible so far as khudkasht is concerned. The khudkasht is not his to be so reserved or excluded. The sale of the share would be good and would stand. The reservation or exclusion would be bad in the sense that no right, title or interest in the land would remain in the proprietor or transferor. It may well be that it would not be altogether ineffective as between the transferor and transferee, It may be that an estoppel would arise as between them but it would not affect the rights of third parties and it would not make the transferor a tenant of some sort so as to claim exemption from attachment and sale so far as the khudkasht is concerned. Where a surrender of an occupancy holding is accepted by a co-sharer who was for long working as joint lambardar and taken to be such by all including the lambardar appointed it is not open to the latter to seek to set aside the surrender as being in contravention of S. 12 of the C. P. Tenancy Act inasmuch as he himself had acquiesced in treating the other as joint lambardar, though not really appointed as such. The latter must be taken to have acted as a co-sharer on behalf of the proprietary body and with the implied consent of the lambardar. The proper order would be that the party should take all necessary steps to obtain sanction, the other party being given liberty to apply to Court for further directions should it appear that steps are not being taken to carry out Court's orders. It is not necessary that the officer presiding over the executing Court should be a Revenue Officer. ——S. 5—Jurisdiction of District Judge to decide if a trust was a trust to which the Act applied.

S. 5 of the Charitable and Religious Trusts Act confers powers on the Court to arrive at a decision on the question whether the trust was a trust to which the Act applied, upon a summary enquiry and it is clearly necessary where objection is taken to the applicability of the Act, that the Court shall decide this question. But this is subject to the provision in S. 5 (3) which provides for stay of proceeding to enable the contesting party to file a suit for a declaration. Where a party fails to file a suit within the time allowed the District Judge is perfectly justified in making a summary enquiry and coming to a finding that the Act was applicable. CHOTA NAGPUR TENANCY ACT (VI OF 1908), —Revision—Powers of Commissioner—Rent reduction case—Application by landlord for revision—Further reduction of rent by Commissioner—Legality.

Under the law the Commissioner has wide powers of supervision, including the power of correcting mistakes even when such correction is against the interests of the party applying in revision. CHOTA NAG. TENANCY ACT (1908), S. 49.

——Ss. 26 and 33-A—Rent, when first became payable—Rent payable and rent paid—Distinction—Proceedings under Chapters XII and XIII—Finding that rent was Rs. 14-4-0 from 1954 to 1961, Sambat and thence Rs. 15 up to 1913, A. D—Restoration to Rs. 14—4—0 —Material date—1954 Sambat or 1913, A. D.

S. 26 of the Chota Nagpur Tenancy Act was designed to legalise in certain circumstances enhancements which under the old law had been illegal. There is further a distinction between the rent payable and the rent paid. Where in a proceeding under Chapters XII and XIII of the Chota Nagpur Tenancy Act, the finding was that from 1954—1961 Sambat, the prevailing rent was Rs. 14—4—0, that from 1961 to the time of inquiry in 1913 A. D. the prevailing rent was Rs. 15, and Assistant Settlement Officer in those proceedings re-established Rs. 14—4—0.

Held, that the Rent Reduction Officer was clearly justified in acting on this finding and in taking 1954 Sambat as the year in which the rent first became payable, and it was wrong to take 1913, A. D. as the year when the rent first became payable for purposes of reduction. (Swanzy.) CHOTA NAGPUR BANKING ASSOCIATION LTD. v. ASHUTOSH PATHAK. 8 B.R. 830.

——S. 47—Scope—Occupancy raiyat—Money decree against—Appointment of receiver in execution—Jurisdiction of Court.

S. 47 of the Chota Nagpur Tenancy Act only prohibits the sale of a holding of an occupancy raiyat in execution of a decree against him; it does, however, prevent execution of a decree, against an agriculturist in any other way open to the decree-holder, such as, by the appointment of a receiver, which is one of the modes permitted by S. 51, C. P. Code. The Court has therefore jurisdiction to appoint a receiver in execution of a money decree against an occupancy raiyat, although sale of his holding in execution is prohibited by S. 47 of the Chota Nagpur Tenancy Act. Bhuinbari lands, which are referred to in S. 48 of the Chota Nagpur Tenancy Act include Pahnai lands; hence it has to be held that the provision in S. 49 for the transfer of Bhuinbari tenures includes transfer of Pahnai lands. ——S. 49 (2) and (a)—"Reasonable and sufficient purpose"—Meaning of—Transfer of part of encumbered tenure—If can be sanctioned.

It cannot be said that the examples of "reasonable and sufficient purpose" given in S. 49 (2) of the Chota Nagpur Tenancy Act are solely for the benefit of the tenure itself, and not for the benefit of the tenure-holder as well. It is difficult to make an abstraction of what benefits the tenure but does not benefit the tenure-holder. It is not unreasonable to say that as only a part of the tenure is being transferred, the transaction is to the benefit of the remainder which will be the unencumbered property of the proprietors, whereas other-

There is no warrant for holding that when a tenure is extinguished the rights which existed under it, including the right of the raiyat to apply for a Pradhan service, still survive. S. 74-A of the Chota Nagpur Tenancy Act is concerned with a case in which a Pradhan has been evicted by a landlord; a case of purchase of a tenure at an execution sale does not come within the terms of S. 74-A. S. 10, C. P. Code, is not limited to suits. It applies to an application for letters of administration by reason of the provisions of S. 141, C. P. Code. An application for letters of administration filed in the High Court while a similar application in respect of the same estate previously filed in the Court of the District Judge is pending, cannot be stayed under S. 10, C. P. Code, when the property situate outside the province of the District Judge exceeds Rs. 10,000 in value. The Court of the District Judge not having jurisdiction to grant the relief claimed in the application before the High Court, the section can have no application. The words of S. 10, C.P. Code, are mandatory and enjotn the Court not to proceed with the trial of any suit in which the matter in issue is also directly and substantially in issue in a previously instituted suit. The fact that an application for stay is delayed is no ground for refusing stay. But before a stay can be ordered it must be made out that the matter in issue in both the suits is the same, although the reliefs asked for in the one is not of the same character as in the other. The real test whether the two suits are parallel is that if the first was determined, the matters raised in the second suit would be res judicata by reason of the decision of the first suit. deemed to constitute one cause of action, it cannot be said that a composite cause of action relating to arrears of more than one year is a different one from that relating to one year. If it is possible to treat the entire cause of action upon which the later suit is founded as divisible and if in the earlier suit one of the component parts of the cause of action was relied on then the previous decision will stand as a bar to the extent of the matter involved in the previous suit. If an earlies decision bars a suit to recover arrears of rent for one year, it must logically bar a suit in respect of any other year. Hence, a decision in a suit for arrears of rent for one year would operate as res judicata in a later suit between the same parties for the recovery of arrears of rent for a number of years filed in a Court of a grade higher than that in which the earlier suit was filed. The competency of the Court to try the subsequent suit refers to its competency at the time when the first suit was broughf. (Niyogi, J.) TEKCHAND KAPURCHAND v. BIRZABAI. I.L.R. ——S. 11—Execution proceedings—Executability of decree—Judgment-debtor's right to raise in later application for execution—Omission to raise in previous applications—Effect—Res judicata.

There is some limit in time and opportunity as to when objections to the effect that a decree is not executable can be taken in the execution of the decree. It cannot be held that the judgment-debtor can at any time, however remote, raise for the first time objections which go to the root of the decree. He must do this at the first suitable opportunity, and if he does not, then the point must be deemed to have been raised and decided against him, by reason of the principle of res judicata which applies to execution proceedings as much as to other legal proceedings. Where, however, previous execution applications are found to have never been made the subject of a proper contest and decision, but to have been settled by reference to private arbitrations, it cannot be said that the question of the executability of the decree was ever heard and decided or that it was, by necessary implication, heard and decided. In such a case, therefore, the question as to whether the decree can and to what extent, be executed, can be raised in a subsequent execution application. ——S. 11—Execution proceedings — Matter not decided on merits—If can be re-opened.

The rule of res judicata as laid down in S. 11, C. P. Code, with reference to matters decided by a Court of competent jurisdiction in a previous suit is neither relevant nor applicable in any subsequent proceedings arising out of the same decree. If a matter has once been finally decided between the parties to those proceedings, the effect is the same as that of an interlocutory judgment in an ordinary suit and is binding upon the parties for the rest of the proceedings, if it has been allowed to become final. On this view, if a matter has once been allowed to be finally decided, there is no reason why the matter should be allowed to be re-opened whether it has been decided on the merits or not. ——S. 11—Execution proceedings—Plea of limitation raised and abandoned—If can be raised at later stage—Res judicata.

It is a well established principle that a party is not entitled to raise at a later stage of a proceeding a plea in bar which was open to him at an earlier stage and which he had an opportunity of raising, or which, having been raised, has been overruled. When a plea in bar of execution is not taken or is overruled, the judgment-debtor is not at a later stage entitled to challenge the validity of the proceedings on that ground. Where a point of limitation is raised and apparently abandoned or is not pressed, it cannot be raised again at a later stage, by reason of the principal of res judicata. (*Harries, C. ——S. 11, Expl. 4—Might and ought—Mortgage suit—Question of paramount title—Relevancy—Decision in suit—If res judicata.

It is well-settled that as a general rule paramount title cannot be ordinarily drawn into controversy in a mortgage suit without the consent of the parties. But if there is any allegation in the plaint derogatory to the title of a prior mortgagee, and if the prior mortgagee, being a party to the suit, consents to have that title decided, then he will be bound by that decision in the suit, and the decision will operate as res judicata in a later suit. If, however, the question of paramount title is in conflict with the title of the mortgagor as well as of the mortgagee, that is a matter which should not ordinarily be decided in a mortgage suit. If the issue is not also raised and decided, the rule of constructive res judicata should not be applied.

Manohar Lall, J.—The question of priority of mortgages is a necessary issue in mortgage actions, as for instance where a subsequent encumbrancer claims priority on the doctrine of subrogation, and in such a case he must raise that issue. On the other hand where the person impleaded sets up a title adverse to the mortgagor, that question is obviously beyond the scope of the mortgage action, and unless that question is distinctly raised and decided, the decision in the suit cannot operate as res judicata. Iu an action in personam the Courts of a foreign country do not acquire jurisdiction from the mere possession by the defendant at the commencement of the action of property locally situate in that country, or from the presence of the defendant in such country at the time when the obligation in respect of whlch the action is brought was incurred in that country or from the fact that the defendant was car ying on husiness in such country through a manager or agent at the time when the obligation in respect of which the action is brought was incurred. The defendant against whom an ex parte decree was obtained in a Court in Baroda State in 1939, was a British Indian subject and had at no time material to the litigation resided within the state of Baroda. One R held a power-of-attorney from the defendant and lived In Baroda when the suit transaction took place, but the power-of attorney was revoked before the suit and R had left Baroda and gone to British India and lived there for many months before the date of suit. At the date of the suit there was no agent of the defeudant within the jurisdiction of the Baroda Court, The business of the defendant had ceased as early as October 1936. The suit summons was served on the defendant in Bombay in January, 1939. The power-of-attorney held by R entitled him to appear and to file suits in the Baroda Courts and to engage pleaders, to sign vakalatnamas in the defendant's name and to exercise in his name "all the lawful rights which the had in the matter of. . . ." etc.

Held, that the Baroda Court was not a Court of competent jurisdiction within the meaning of S. 13 (a), C. P. Code, and hence the decree did not bind the defendant and could not be executed against him in British India. The defendant had not submitted to the jurisdiction of the Baroda Court by reason of the power-of-attorney given by him to R, which existed at the time of the transactlon but which was revoked before the suit. To decide the question of jurisdiction of a Court to entertain a suit based upon a contract regarding purchase of certain goods, three points arise; one is the place of the contract; second is the question of delivery of the goods; and the third is the question of payment for the goods. ——S. 20 (c)—Cause of action—Contract of hiring—Dramatic work converted into film and hired to cinema company for exhibition—Film exhibited in pursuance of contract—Suit by author of dramatic work for infringement of copyright—Jurisdiction—Suit at place of exhibition of film—Maintainability.

In the absence of any specific terms in the actual contract between the parties to the contrary, a transaction of hiring cannot be completed until the article hired is in the hands of the person to whom it is hired; an article cannot be said to be hired until it reaches the hands of the person to whom it is to be hired. The plaintiff brought a suit for damages for infringement of copyright in respect of a dramatic work, claiming that he had written that work which according to him, had been converted by the defendants into a cinematograph film. He complained that the defendants, who were a movietone company of Madras, entered into a contract with the proprietor of a cinema at Rajahmundry to exhibit the film and that the film was duly exhibited at Rajahmundry in pursuance of the contract. He brought his suit in Rajahmundry. The defendants contended that no part of the cause of action arose at Rajahmundry and that the suit therefore lay only in Madras and not in Rajahmundry.

Held, that the question whether the contract was completed in Madras or Rajahmundry was entirely irrelevant as the mere completion of the contract was no part of the cause of action; that the action of hiring out this film was not complete until the film reached Rajahmundry and was delivered to the proprietor of the cinema. Part of the cause of action therefore arose in Rajahmundry and the suit would therefore lie in Rajahmundry. ——S. 20 (c)—Cause of action—Jurisdiction—Suit for damages for a breach of contract.

The cause of action in a suit for damages for a breach of contract arises either at the place where the contract was made or at the place where the contract was agreed to be performed or the place where the money was agreed to be paid or where the breach of contract actually took place. Where the contract actually takes place at F, where the defendant resides and the defendant agrees to perform it within the B. district, the breach of contract takes place in district B. when the defendant fails to perform it. Though there is a clause in the contract that the entire accounting would take place at F. it refers to the final adjustment, between the parties in the event of the contract being performed. Hence where it is not performed, that clause could have no operation. (Ghulam Hasan and Madeley, JJ.) MAHOMAD IDRIS v. RATI RAM. 199 I.C. 446=14 R.O. 489=1942 A.L.W. 40=1942 A.W.R. ——S. 20 (c)—Cause of action—Promissory note—Suit on—Jurisdiction—Note made at specified place—No reference to place of payment—If payable at place of payee—Duty of debtor to seek out creditor.

The cause of action for a suit on a promissory note is the promissory note itself and not the consideration which gave rise to the note; and in a suit founded on a promissory note it is not permissible to go into the consideration for the note and to read into the note something founded on the circumstances giving rise to it. A promissory note made at a particular place and containing no stipulation as to the place of payment, cannot be regarded as being payable at any place other than the place where it is made. The common law rule that the debtor must seek out his creditor has no application to a negotiable instrument, and hence a suit on such a promissory note has to be instituted only at the place where the note is made. ——S. 35—Costs—Liability of legal practitioner for—Circumstances justifying order against pleader.

C. P. CODE (1908), S. 35.

There is no justification for the assumption that S. 35, C. P. Code, is not intended to cover any case where the act of a legal practitioner comes within the term 'misconduct' within the meaning of the Legal Practitioners and the Bar Councils Acts. A pleader may therefore be liable for costs of the proceedings taken by him in cases where the costs occasioned to his client are the direct result of the initiation and prosecution of the proceedings by him. Where an application for review purports to be made by a pleader personally on his own behalf and not on behalf of his client the minor or his gauardian, on grounds wholly untenable, there is no justification for his action and he can be asked to pay the costs personally. (Ghulam Hasan and Madeley, JJ.) SRIPAL SINGH v. MAHARAJ SINGH. 199 I.C. 385=14 R.O. 486=1942 A.W.R (C.C.) 65=1942 O.A. 43=1942 A.L.W. 73=1942 O.W.N. 68=A.I.R. 1942 Oudh 279.

——S. 35—Costs not following the result—Absence of notice prior to suit, if a sufficient reason.

The mere fact that a successful plaintiff did not issue notice to the defendant prior to suit is no ground for not following the rule that costs should follow the result when the suit has been contested and it is not suggested that no costs would have been incurred if notice had been issued. ——S. 35—Costs—Power of Court to award costs against stranger to litigation—Relief against real plaintiff in suit by benamidar.

Per Iqbal Ahmad, C. J. and Ganga Nath, J.—Under S. 35, the Court may, in exceptional cases, award costs even against a stranger to the litigation. The Court, of course, will not, and cannot, award costs against a person without giving him an opportunity of being heard. It follows that if a party to a litigation desires costs to be awarded against a stranger to that litigation, he must, at an appropriate stage of the litigation, raise the point before the Court, so that the Court may, if it thinks proper to do so, implead the stranger as a party to the litigation and give him an opportunity of being heard. It is open to a defendant in a suit by a benamidar to say that the real plaintiff is a person other than the person in whose name the suit has been filed, and to ask the Court to implead the real plaintiff and award him costs as against the real plaintiff but if the defendant in such a suit does not adopt such a course, he cannot, after the termination of litigation, raise the question of costs by a separate suit. The question of costs of particular suit is a matter incidental to that suit and cannot, therefore, be made the subject of a separate suit. Where a clause in a scheme for regulating and managing a charitable institution empowers a District Judge, of his own motion or upon the application or representation of any person interested in the institution, to remove from the management any trustee who may be found to be unfit or incompetent or negligent, it must be held that such power is given to him as persona designata and not in a judicial capacity. ——S. 37—"Include" — Interpretation — Original Court, if excluded.

The word 'includes" as used in S. 37, C. P. Code, though it extends the meaning of the expression "Court which passed the decree" in one sense, does in another sense restrict it. The effect of the words is to exclude, under the circumstances specified in Cls. (a) and (b) of the section, the original Court and substitute for it another Court which for purposes of the section is to be regarded as the only Court which passed the decree. Thus when a decree is passed in exercise of appellate jurisdiction as contemplated by Cl. (a) of S. 37, it cannot be said that the word "include" would not exclude the appellate Court which passed the decree, and that both the original and the appellate Courts are proper Courts for execution, to either of which an application for execution of the decree could be made. Similarly, to bring a case within the purview of Cl. (b) of that section, it is essential that the Court which originally passed the decree has ceased to exist or to have jurisdiction to execute it, and then only can the other Court, which would be entitled to try the suit if it was then instituted, be regarded as the Court which passed the decree. The other Court is substituted for and not added to the original Court. If the original Court has ceased to exist or has ceased to have jurisdiction to execute the decree, an application for execution cannot be made to that Court. A Court which passes a mortgage decree does not cease to have jurisdiction to execute that decree merely by reason of a subsequent order of a District Judge under S. 13 (2) of the Bengal, Agra and Assam Civil Courts Act assigning the particular area on which the mortgaged property is situate to another Court in the same locality. Such an order is only an arrangement for distribution of civil business and cannot in any way curtail the jurisdiction of the Court which passed the decree over the entire area as determined by the Local Govt. under S. 13 (1) of the Civil Courts Act. The Court to which the particular area is assigned has no jurisdiction to entertain an application for execution of the decree as its competency is affected by S. 38, C.P. Code, which lays down that a decree could be executed only by the Court which passed it or the Court to which it was sent for execution The decree-holder cannot invoke the provisions of S. 150, C. P. Code, in his favour, as an assignment of business under S. 13 (2) of the Civil Courts Act is not a transfer of business within the meaning of S. 150, C. P. Code. The expression "jurisdiction to execute it" as used in S. 37 (b), C. P. Code, does mean and include the competency of the Court to entertain an application for execution of the decree. Even if in the circumstances of a particular case a Court cannot effectively execute the decree, that would not mean that it has ceased to have jurisdiction to execute it. It still remains a competent Court for purposes of execution, though the decree-holder might have to apply for transmission of the decree to another Court for the purpose of obtaining the relief which he wants. ——S. 44-A (3)—Decree not given on merits—Burden of proof.

It is quite clear from the provisions of S. 44-A (3), C. P. If the judgment-debtor alleges that the matter was adjudicated upon without evidence being given by the plaintiff, it is for him to prove it. ——S. 45—Court of Political Agent of Quetta—If one established or continued by Governor-General in Council.

That the Court of the Political Agent, Quetta, is one established or continued by the Governor-General in Council is shown by Notification No. 3072-F.B. of 16th October 1903 which is reproduced in British Enactments in force in Indian States Edn. 4, Vol. I, page 68. The Governor-General in Council had issued a notification extending the provisions of S. 45 of the Code to the Courts established or continued by him in Baluchistan—Notification No, 786-I-B. Published in the Gazette of India of 12th April 1913, and that notification still continues to be in force by reason of para. 9 of the Government of India (Adaptation of Indian Laws) Order, 1937, until it is revoked or varied by the competent authority which is now the appropriate Provincial Government. Consequently an application to a Court in British India for transfer of a decree for execution to the Court of Political Agent Quetta is a valid application and can constitute a step-in-aid of execution for the purposes of limitation. It is not correct to say that Baluchistan is composed of two parts only, British Baluchistan and the tribal areas, for the territories of the Khan of Qalat are also situated within the borders of Baluchistan and there can be no doubt whatever that he is a foreign or Indian Prince within the meaning of S. 311, Government of India Act, for he is under treaty obligations with His Majesty as is shown in Vol. 9, Part 3, p. 398 of Aitcheson's Treaties. ——S. 47—Adjustment of decree by subsequent agreement—Power of parties—Limits to powers of the executing Court with reference to such agreement.

The C. P. Code, contains no general restriction of the parties' liberty of contract with reference to their rights and obligations under the decree. Where it appears to a Court acting under S. 47, C. P. Code, that the true effect of an agreement between parties to a decree is to discharge the decree forthwith in consideration of certain promises by the debtor, then there would be no occasion for the Court to enforce it in execution proceedings and the creditor would have to bring a separate suit upon the contract. But where it is clear that the agreement in adjustment of the original decree is an agreement intended to govern the liability of the debtors under the decree and to have merely an effect upon the manner of its enforcement and is not an agreement whose effect is to discharge the decree forthwith, such an agreement is a matter to be dealt with under S. 47, C. Where the subject matter of an application in respect of amounts realised by sale in execution of a decree and lying in Court is a question regarding the right of the decree-holder to obtain further sums by way of interest upon his decree amount, the question falls clearly under S. 47 C. ——S. 47—Bar of suit—Execution sale of property in contravention of S. 12-A, Chota Nagpur Encumbered Estates Act—Objection—Dismissal—Suit to declare sale void and for possession from auction purchaser—Maintainability.

The question whether a certain property can be sold in execution in contravention of S. 12-A of the Chota Nagpur Encumbered Estates Act is essentially one falling under S. 47, C. P. Code and must be decided in execution. The judgment-debtor cannot raise this question in a separate suit although such suit may be brought not against the decree-holder but against the auction-purchaser at the sale and though it may be assumed that the auction-purchaser is not a representative either of the judgment-debtor or of the decree-holder. Further if the judgment-debtor in execution objects to the sale on the ground that it is prohibited by S. 12-A of the Chota Nagpur Encumbered Estates Act and his objection is dismissed and the property is sold, the order which becomes final as against the decree-holder becomes final against the auction-purchaser as well. Where in a mortgage suit some defendants plead that they are entitled to the property in suit and claim the mortgaged property or an interest in it by title parmount, and the Court holds that they are not necessary parties to the suit, the Court should order their names to be struck out of the plaint. It is not correct for the Court to dismiss the suit as against them. Where, instead of so directing that such parties should be struck out as having been improperly impleaded, erroneously makes an order dismissing the suit as against them, such persons cannot properly be said to have been parties to the suit within the meaning of the Explanation to S. 47, C.P. Code. A question which arises between them and the decree-holder in the execution of the decree cannot also properly be said to be one relating te the execution of the decree. A separate suit is therefore not barred by S. 47 (Agarwala and Shearer, JJ.). KUSMI v. SADASIVA MAHTO. 21 Pat. 601=201 I.C. 196=8 B.R. 770=15 R.P. 34=23 Pat.L.T. 354=A. I.R. 1942 Pat. 432.

——S. 47—Bar of suit—Partition suit—Decree—Provision that sharers other than plaintiff will be put in possession of shares on paying necessary Court-fee—Separate suit by defendant-sharer for recovery of share—Maintainability.

Where a decree in a partition suit provides that the remaining sharers other than the plaintiff shall be put in possession of their respective shares on paying the necessary Court-fee, the proper method of reading such a decree is that it declares the right of the sharers to the properties allotted to them and gives an option to the defendant-sharers to pay the Court-fee in respect of the properties allotted to them and seek possession if they like in execution of that decree. But it does not oblige them to do so, and hence a separate suit for possession by a sharer defendant is not barred by S. 47, C.P. Code. But a decree may be passed in favour of a defendant without any condition particularly as regards his payment of Court-fee. Such a decree may be one executable under S. 47, C. P. Code, and may bar a separate suit. But before a separate suit can be barred, there must be an unconditional decree giving a defendant a right to execute the decree to get the properties allotted to him. ——S. 47—Executing Court—Powers of—Question whether and to what extent decree is executable—If can be raised and decided.

The question as to how far a decree is capable of execution as an executory as opposed to a declaratory decree is one which can be taken in execution. Such a plea does not go behind the decree. The question falls under S. 47 and has to be decided by the executing Court, as it is entirely distinct from the question whether the decree to be executed was or was not a valid decree. ——S. 47—Executing Court—Power of—Power to award relief expressly denied in suit—Issue raised in suit and decided against plaintiff—Right to ask some relief in execution—Interpretation of decree—Reference to judgment.

A Court executing a decree is bound by the decision in the suit in which the decree was passed. When there was a distinct issue raised in the suit on a point and decided against the plaintiff, a particular relief being thereby refused, it is open to the executing Court to give the plaintiff what was expressly denied to him by the decision in the suit. Where the plaintiff specifically prays in his suit for recovery of the amount due to him by sale of certain ornaments pledged with him and that prayer is refused, the Court executing the decree has no jurisdiction to sell those ornaments in execution. If the decree is in any way ambiguous the executing Court can always interpret the decree with reference to the judgment. ——S. 47—Powers of executing Court — Decree against dead person—Execution against his legal representative—Objection that decree is a nullity, if can be gone into.

It is correct to say that an executing Court cannot go behind a decree but that presumes that there is a valid decree in existence. When a decree is passed against several persons one of whom was dead before the decree and it is sought to be executed against his legal representatives and their contention is that the decree is a nullity either in whole or in part, then to the extent of the nullity there is no decree. Consequently the executing Court is not going behind the decree in such a case but is considering whether there is a decree or not. The executing Court is the proper Court to decide this. A preliminary decree on a mortgage was passed on 26—2—1937. The plaintiff in due course applied for a final decree and notices were served on the defendant. On 19—9—1937, without waiting for the final decree to be made, he applied for execution. Notices were served on defendants and the sale was held on 7—1—1939. In the meanwhile the final decree was passed on 14—1—1938. The defendants raised no objection to the proceedings in execution or to the sale. On 7—5—1940, one of the defendants applied under S. 47, C. P. Code, challenging the validity of the sale and the execution proceedings on the ground, mainly, that the Court has proceeded to sell the property in execution of the preliminary decree.

Held, that since the final decree was passed and a sale proclamation was actually issued thereafter before the sale, even assuming that there was any irregularity in the procedure, the sale could not be held to be void, especially because there was no objection raised by the defendants and no prejudice was shown to have resulted. A Court is not bound to pass a decree or an order for the administration of the estate of a deceased person at the instance of a creditor when the question between the parties can be properly determined without such a decree or order. Where a creditor obtains a decree for recovery of his debt against the assets of the deceased, in the hands of his legal representative, but instead of proceeding to execute his decree under S. 52, C. P. Code, against the assets in the hands of the legal representative, files a separate suit to have the estate of the debtor administered, the Court will not pass a decree for administration of the estate. If the holder of an unsatisfied decree wishes to continue the execution proceedings or wishes to execute the decree against the legal representatives of a deceased judgment-debtor, he must make an application to that effect under S. 50, C. P. Code, and a notice has to be served on such legal representatives in accordance with O. 21, R. 22 (1), C. P. Code. The mere fact that in connection with a rent decree obtained under the B. T. Act, execution proceedings are taken against the holding of the deceased person makes no difference. The holding represents a portion of the estate of the deceased judgment-debtor and the latter's heirs are, therefore, entitled to be brought on the record of the case and to receive the notice which the law requires in order that they may be given an opportunity either to satisfy the outstanding decree or to show cause why execution should not proceed. A sale held in execution of a rent decree is void and not merely voidable in a case in which there has been no application under S. 50 and consequently no issue of notice under O. 21, R. 22 (1), C. A right to future maintenance in order to be non-attachable and non-transferable should be personal as distinguished from being heritable. Hence where such a right is heritable it is not exempt from attachment. The language of S. 51 shows that a receiver can be appointed even in cases in which attachment can not be made and it follows that in the case of a right to future maintenance a receiver can be appointed over it in execution of a decree against the person entitled to the right even though the right is exempt from attachment. S. 51 (d), C. P. Code, is subject to O. 40, R. 1, C. P. Code, and relief by way of appointment of a receiver under S. 51 (d) is not a matter of course or of right, but can only be given where it appears to the Court to be just and convenient. In other words a proper case must be made out for the exercise of the Court's discretion to appoint a receiver by way of execution, e.g., by showing an impediment preventing the decree-holder from obtaining satisfaction of his decree by an ordinary execution sale. The valuation fixed by the Court under S. 13 of the Bihar Money-Lenders Act, is not such an impediment to an ordinary execution as would entitle the decree-holder to the appointment of a receiver for the purpose of selling the property of the judgment-debtor by private sale. The valuation under Ss. 13 and 14 of the Money-Lenders Act is a judicial decision binding on both the decree-holder and the judgment-debtor, and it would be a clear evasion of law to treat this valuation as an impediment to an ordinary execution sale by the Court and let the decree-holder have a receiver for sale of the property by private treaty on the ground that no bidders can be found for the value fixed by the Court. The Collector is to divide the estate in accordance with the rights declared in the decree, in the manner he thinks best, bearing in mind the convenience of the land as a revenue paying estate. If the judgment-debtor is committed to the civil prison the state of affairs is just the same as if the surety had never come forward so that the Court cannot concurrently proceed against the surety or his property. S. 55 (4) is explicit; the decree-holder having given up his rights against the surety by proceeding against the judgment-debtor and sending him to jail cannot be allowed to reopen the matter by asking that the surety should be proceeded against. ——S. 60- 'Debt'—Unpaid mortgage money.

The unpaid balance of the consideration for a mortgage is not a "debt" due by the mortgagee to the mortgagor, and, therefore, it is not liable to attachment in execution of a decree against the mortgagor. ——S. 60 and O. 21, R. 46—'Debt'—Unpaid Purchase money left with vendee for payment to vendor's creditors—If attachable immediately after sale-deed—Locus standi of such creditors to object to attachment.

The unpaid purchase price of a property left with the vendee for payment to the creditors of the vendor but which the vendee has not actually paid to them is a 'debt' due by the vendee to the vendor. It is the vendor's money in the hands of the vendee, which he is under an obligation to pay to the vendor and in the absence of a contract to the contrary, this obligation arises at the moment the sale transaction is completed. The fact that the money is, by agreement, made payable at a future date or that the vendor has asked the vendee to pay it to a third party makes no difference. It is none-the-less an existing and completed obligation and, as regards it, the relationship between the vendor and the vendee is that of a creditor and debtor.

If, therefore, at the instance of a person who holds a decree against the vendor, a prohibitory order under O. 21, R. 46, C. P. Code, is served on the vendee, before he has paid out the amount to the nominees of the vendor in accordance with the directions set out in the deed, the attachment is good and neither the vendee nor the vendor can object. The vendor's nominees of course have no locus standi to object, for there is no privity of contract between them and the vendor and the mere direction of the vendor to the vendee to pay the amount to them creates no jural relationship between them. The direction is, ordinarily, revocable at any time before payment has actually been made. Further, the decree-holder of the vendor can attach it even immediately after the execution of the sale-deed and need not wait until the lapse of reasonable time from the sale, within which the vendee could have paid, but has neglected to pay, the vendor's nominees. ——S. 60 (1) (c)—'Agriculturist'—Who is.

No definition of an agriculturist can be formulated because the circumstances of every individual judgment-debtor have to be taken into consideration to decide whether he is an agriculturist or not. It is for the Courts to decide whether a particular individual situated as he is with reference to his occupation or other circumstances is an agriculturist or not. The judgment-debtor derived his whole income from his lands and had no other profession or occupation. The lands were mainly under the cultivation of tenants but as a landlord he had to take interest in the cultivation of his land in order to get the most out of it and had also to see that his share in the produce reached him. Moreover, it was in evidence that he was cultivating about 800 ks. of land through his servants and labourers and not through his tenants. In fact he had been working at the plough himself and had been telling people that he did so on grounds of health.

Held, that all the considerations when taken together led to only one conclusion, that the judgment-debtor was an agriculturist within the meaning of S. 60 (1) (c). (Almond, J.C. and Mir Ahmad, J.) ASADULLAH KHAN v. CHETAN DAS. 202 I.C. 770 = 15 R. Pesh. 52 = A.I.R. 1942 Pesh. 65 (2).

A person would be regarded as a labourer within the meaning of S. 60 (1) (h), C. P. Code, if he does or is expected to do that class of work which requires manual labour, such as the work of spinning in a textile mill. If the doing of manual labour is a term of his employment, he is a labourer and the remuneration earned by him, constitutes "wages of a labourer" within the meaning of S. 60 (1) (h). The head jobber, i.e., the head of a gang of workmen employed in a textile mill industry, is a labourer if he participates in the work of his gang occasionally, though not necessarily continuously, as a term of his employment. The remuneration earned by him must therefore be held to be "wages of a labourer" exempt from attachment under S. 60 (1) (h), C. P. Code. The first clause of S. 60 (1) (h), C. P. Code, is not controlled by the second clause, and "salary" in the second clause does not include "wages of labourers" in the first clause. The second clause is designed to protect to a limited extent, salaries of servants who are outside the class of labourers and domestic servants. The money due to a railway servant on his account in the Provident Fund is not liable to attachment by his creditor until it is paid over to him. In order to decide whether the money has been paid to him, the test to apply is whether the railway has obtained a valid discharge. After his retirement a railway servant filled in the necessary form asking for payment of the money due to him on his account in the Provident Fund. The railway authorities requested the Reserve Bank to send a cheque to Messrs. Thomas Cook and Sons. A creditor of the railway servant obtained an order from Court attaching the money. Messrs. Thomas Cook and Sons in the meantime had returned the cheque to the railway authorities alleging that the railway servant had no account with them.

Held, that the railway authorities would be discharged if, in asking the Reserve Bank to send the cheque to Thomas Cook and Sons, they were acting in accordance with the instructions given by the railway servant. The moment the attachment ends as a result of the sale being set aside all claims which were enforceable under it cease to be enforceable and a creditor who would have had a right to rateable distribution if the sale had stood, cannot therefore challenge an alienation by the judgment debtor under S. 64. as his claim has ceased to be enforceable on the sale being set aside. The very object with which S. 64, C. P. Code, has been enacted is to save right which do not conflict with the claims enforceable under the attachment. The expressions "contrary to such attachment," and "as against all claims enforceable under the attachment," limit the operation of S. 64 only to certain transfers or acquisitions of interest or payments to the judgment-debtor. It does not render void any transaction or part of a transaction which in no way prejudices the claims of the decree-holder against the property which he has got attached. ——S. 64—Scope—Attachment before judgment—Sale by debtor—Subsequent decree in suit—Insolvency of judgment-debtor afterwards—Application for sale of attached property—Official Assignee, if necessary party—Sale if void absolutely.

A private alienation by a judgment-debtor of property attached by a creditor is, under S. 64, C. P. Code, not void absolutely, but only void against claims enforceable under the attachment in question. An adjudication of the debtor would automatically put an end to an attachment and vest the property in the Official Assignee free of attachment, but it has no such efficacy as regards an alienation made by the insolvent before his adjudication. Until the alienation is set aside by appropriate proceedings, it stands good, and the Official Assignee would therefore have no present interest in or title to the property in question. Hence the Official Assignee is not a necessary party to an application for sale of the property in execution by the attaching creditor. The appellant who filed a suit against his debtor obtained an order for attachment of the debtor's property before judgment and the property was attached on 19—4—1939. Later on 16—1—1940, the debtor sold the attached property to the respondent on 10—1—1941, the appellant obtained a decree in his suit against the debtor for Rs. 4,043-1-0 and interest. On 25—2—1941, the debtor was adjudged insolvent, and his estate vested in the Official Assignee, Madras. On 3—5—1941, the appellant applied in execution of his decree for sale of the attached property after bringing on record the respondent who had purchased the property pending the attachment. The application was dismissed as not maintainable on the ground that Official Assignee in whom the debtor's estate was vested was not made a party to the execution proceeding.

Held, that the property would not become the property of the debtor or vest in the Official Assignee until the latter obtained a declaration for setting aside the alienation and therefore the decree-holder (appellant) was not obliged to implead the Official Assignee in his application for sale in execution. So long as a Hindu joint family is undivided, the power of the father to sell the son's share, is not lost. The attachment of the son's interest may prevent the alienation taking effect as against claims enforceable under the attachment, in view of S. 64, C. P. Code and when a sale of the share is effected in pursuance of the attachment, the power of the father may be destroyed but the power does not cease till the sale takes place. So long as the power of disposal subsists, there is no reason why it should not vest in the Official Receiver on the insolvency of the father subject to the same disabilities as it would be subject to in the hands of the father at the date of vesting. During the pendency of the attachment, if the Official Receiver chooses to exercise the right of sale, the alienee will get a title which will prevail against the son though it may not prevail against the claims enforceable under the attachment. In other words, if a sale takes place in pursuance of the attachment, the purchaser under that sale would get an indefeasible title and the purchaser from the Official Receiver will not get any. The purchaser from the Official Receiver cannot resist the claim of the attaching decree-holder to bring the properties to sale or to contest the rights of a purchaser at such a sale, but the son would have no right against the alienee as his interest must be held to have been validly sold. Where an execution sale is set aside under O. 21, R. 89, C. P. Code, on deposit of the decree amount the attachment in pursuance of which the sale was held comes to an end. When the attaching creditor's sale is set aside and his claim is satisfied, the particular attachment necessarily comes to an end. Another creditor who had applied for and might get rateable distribution if the sale had stood, cannot therefore say that he has a claim enforceable under that attachment within the meaning of S. 64, C. P. Code. A private purchaser from the judgment-debtor after the sale and before its setting aside, would get a good title, because the effect of the setting aside of the sale is to declare that the judgment-debtor had a good title to convey his property from the date of the sale itself and not merely from the date of its setting aside. A creditor attaching the property after the private sale and before the setting aside of the execution sale is not entitled to rely on his attachment to impeach the private sale and such attachment cannot affect the rights of the private purchaser under S. 64, C. P. Code. (King, J.) SUBRAMANIA AYYAR v. ANNAVI PILLAI. 202 I.C. 451=15 R.M. 503=1942 M.W.N. 412=55 L.W. 274=A.I.R. 1942 Mad. 522=(1942) 1 M.L.J. 556.

S. 66, C. P. section imposes a statutory and unqualified obligation upon the Court, and a suit instituted during the currency of the notice required by the section is unsustainable in limine and must be dismissed. Where the facts stated in the plaint themselves show that the suit has been instituted before the expiry of the two months from the issue of the notice to the Secretary of State, it cannot be said that silence on the part of the Secretary of State to plead the sections as a bar to the maintainability of the suit amounts to an admission by him that the section is not a bar to the suit or to a waiver of the objection based upon the section. Where the applicability of S. 80 depends upon proof of certain facts and the Secretary of State does not deny facts alleged in the plaint, he would under the ordinary rule of pleadings be held to have waived his objection to the proof of those facts. For instance where the plaintiff states in the plaint that the notice has been sent with all the requisites beyond the period of two months, or that the notice has been served on a certain date which is beyond two months of the date of the suit, and the Secretary of State does not deny that the notice was received by him or does not raise any objection, he cannot during the trial be heard to say that he has not received the notice, and would be debarred from challenging the facts alleged in the plaint in the course of the trial. But where the facts are admitted by the plaintiff himself and he fails under the express provisions of the statute, though in a Procedure Code, no question of waiver can arise. ——S. 92—Applicability—Suit by trustee against co-trustees—Allegation of breach of trust and prayer for accounts and inquiries and directions—Sanction of Advocate-General—Necessity.

The plaintiff and defendants were to be the trustees under a deed of settlement after the death of the settlor, who by the deed among other things, created a trust for public purposes of a charitable and religious nature. The plaintiff brought a suit against the defendants alleging breach of trust, namely that one of them had appropriated all the rents and profits of the property to himself, and praying, among other things, that the settlement deed may be construed, that the trust may be administered by and under the directions of the Court, that accounts may be taken, that the defendant No. I, may be ordered to pay to the plaintiff, or the trust estate, the amount found due and payable to him on the taking of such accounts and that the property may be sold, and that the plaintiff may be paid a claim in respect of a debt which he alleged was due to him from the trust estate.

C. P. CODE (1908), S. 92.

Held, that the plaintiff having alleged a breach of trust created for public purposes of a charitable and religious nature, the suit fell clearly within the express words of S. 92, C. P. Code, though the plaintiff brought the suit really for the purpose of enforcing payment of the amount alleged to be due to him from the trust estate. The suit was not merely a suit by a beneficiary for the purpose of enforcing a private right of his own, but was one which fell under S. 92, C. P. Code, and hence was not maintainable without the consent of the Advocate General. (Blackwell, J.) GAJANAN LAXMAN v. BHALCHANDRA KESHAV. I.L.R. If a trustee brings a suit which he is not entitled to bring according to S. 92, without complying with its terms, he must bear the consequences for the failure of such a suit. The mere fact that he has brought a suit against a co-trustee cannot be allowed to outweigh the ordinary rule that a man who brings a suit in a form not permitted to him, which suit must therefore necessarily fail, must bear the consequence. The plaintiff must be held liable for costs and cannot be permitted to have the costs out of the trust estate. (Blackwell, J.) GAJANAN LAXMAN v. BHALCHANDRA KESHAV. I.L.R. ——S. 92—Court, if functus officio after framing scheme—Power to vary scheme—Powers of Judge in the appointment of trustees under a particular scheme.

In a suit under S. 92 for the framing of a scheme for a religious institution the power of the Court to make orders in the suit does not come to an end when the decree is passed and the Court has power to vary the scheme. Where the Court appoints trustees under the scheme framed by it and reserves to itself the power to sanction the appointment of a new person in the vacancy of a trustee and an application to secure such appointment is made, the order which the Court thereupon makes is a decree in the suit itself and therefore is appealable. The scheme framed by the Court under S. 92 for a pagoda directed the appointment of nine trustees and made provisions for the filling of vacancies among this number. The trustees were enjoined to hold a meeting of the Burmese Buddhist inhabitants of the town for the purpose of ascertaining the wishes of the inhabitants with regard to the filling of the vacancy. After the meeting had been held the trustees were to apply to the District Court to appoint a new trustee to fill up such vacancy. On receipt of such application the Court merely refused to appoint the new person as trustee suggested by the other trustees.

Held, that the District Judge was bound to appoint a trustee for the pagoda. If he thought that the person suggested by the trustees was not a satisfactory person to be appointed, he might have asked the trustees to assist him by suggesting another name, or might have taken evidence on the point, or might have appointed some one not suggested by the trustees and purely on his own discretion.

Held, further, that it was unnecessary, and indeed not desirable for the Judge to examine the methods by which the trustees chose to inform themselves as to the public opinion in the town, in the way he would do if he were

——S. 92—Interest—What would constitute.

The nature of the 'qualifying' interest may vary widely with the character of the trust itself. If the trust itself is clear, precise and narrow, it may well be that an 'interest' would, in order to qualify a plaintiff, have to be precise and clear cut too. In other trusts of a more vague and general kind, the qualifying interest might itself be less definite. The interest required is something more than a mere abstract sentimental interest. Whether and to what extent, the interest must be 'actual' is, perhaps, a matter of doubt and may, vary in individual cases. Even an abstract interest is in a sense an 'actual' interest. It is genuine interest, even though in the abstract, if it proceeds from a real concern for one's own faith. Where certain plaintiffs in a suit under S. 92, C. P. Code, in respect of a trust for the benefit of Hindus, in various directions, did not even trouble themselves to come into Court and say whether they had any concern at all in the suit they sponsored or what their interest was nor even whether they had one, it was held that the qualification required by S. 92 was not satisfied. ——S. 92—Public charitable or religious trust—What constitutes—Temple—Public user for long time without objection—If proves public character—Property acquired by sadhu for temple descending from chela and chela—Presumption as to dedication to religious uses.

In order to constitute an express or constructive trust for a public purpose of a charitable or religious nature, the author or authors of the trust must be ascertained, and the intention to create a trust must be indicated by words or acts with reasonable certainty, and further, the purpose of the trust, the trust property and the beneficiaries must be indicated so as to enable the Court to administer the trust if required. Public user of a temple for a long period without objection is not conclusive of the temple being a public temple, though it is strong evidence. There is no doubt a presumption that where property has been acquired by a sadhu and has descended from chela to chela it has been dedicated to religious uses. But such presumption is limited to cases where the religious persons concerned are grihasthas and not celibates, so that there may be a conflict between the chela and the natural heirs of the guru. A Sanyasi's heir is always his chela. When in the case of sadhus belonging to a celibate order, there has never been any question of any property held by them, whether trust property or secular property, going by succession to any one but their chelas, the fact that all the properties have been held by chelas does not give rise to any presumption that the properties have been dedicated to religious uses. ——S. 92—Scheme suit—Decree—Executability—Test—Clause vesting trust properties in trustee and empowering him to realise them through Court if necessary in execution—If part of scheme—Executability.

The provisions of a decree in a scheme suit would be inexecutable if they form a part and parcel of the permanent scheme of administration and are not intended to be given effect to independent of the constitution framed by and embodied in the decree, even if they happen to be directory in their nature. They would be executable even if they happen to stray into the wording of the scheme if they are intended to be immediately executable for the purpose of introducing the scheme or otherwise. The true distinction is not whether a provision in a scheme is directory or declaratory, but whether the provision sought to be executed is or is not in what is really the scheme part of the decree. In a suit under S. 92, C.P. Code, for removal of a trustee and for the settlement of a scheme, a decree was passed under which a scheme was framed by the Court and a new trustee was appointed as a sole trustee for management of the trust. He was to manage the trust as per terms of the scheme, and it was provided that the trust property was to be realised and administered by the trustee, and that "all the trust properties either cash or movables shall vest in the trustee for the time being and he shall take possession of the same through Court if necessary in execution of this decree and manage the same on behalf of the public."

Held, that the decree was not executable and that the realisation of the trust properties was an essential part of the scheme and cannot be held to be executable as a money decree. (Abdur Rahman, J.) ATCHUTARAMA RAO v. BAPANAYYA. 55 L.W. 627=A.I.R. 1942 Mad. 748.

——S. 100 and O. 41, R. 27—Discretion, exercise of—Interference in second appeal—Principles governing—Admission of map after issuing commission by first appellate Court.

A distinction has to be drawn between 'jurisdiction' and 'discretion.' When the first appellate Court exercises its 'discretion', the Court of second appeal should always be reluctant to interfere. In fact when a discretion is vested in a Court by the provisions of the C. P. Code the Court is bound to exercise such discretion one way or other and a refusal to exercise it or the non-exercise of it amounts to a defect in procedure. The Court while exercising such discretion must do so judicially and on sound legal principles. It should not exercise it in a non-judicial or arbitrary manner. Where a Court has exercised a discretion in a judicial manner there is no error either of law or of procedure, and consequently such exercise of discretion should not be interfered with in second appeal. Where a first appellate Court considers that for the proper decision of an appeal before it a map of the locality concerned is necessary and that a decision without it would not be possible and in the exercise of its discretion issues a commission and admits the map as additional evidence, such exercise of discretion cannot be interfered with in second appeal. ——S. 100—Second appeal—Competency—Incompetent appeal entertained and dismissed on merits—Second appeal—If lies—Jurisdiction of the High Court to interfere.

It is well established that when a lower appellate Court entertains an appeal which is not competent and modifies the decision of the trial Court, a second appeal will lie. But it is doubtful whether such a second appeal will lie when the lower appellate Court has dismissed the appeal preferred to it. If the lower appellate Court has dismissed the appeal as incompetent, a second appeal against that decision cannot be entertained. If the lower Court wrongly entertains an appeal and dismisses it on the merits, the only order which can be properly passed in second appeal is to set aside the incompetent appellate order. There is no justification for going into the trial Court's order in such a case which is unaffected by the incompetent appellate decision. Should the High Court, when hearing a second appeal against an incompetent appellate order come to the conclusion that the trial Court's order is wrong on the merits, in a proper case the High Court will interfere in revision with the order of the trial Court. ——Ss. 109 and 110—Subject-matter of valuation of appeal—If to include interest subsequent to appellate decree sought to be appealed against.

The grant of interest subsequent to the date fixed for payment in a mortgage decree is discretionary and grantable under S. 34, C. P. Code prior to 1929 and the law is the same even after 1929. Therefore even if the Judicial Committee is likely to reverse the decision of the High Court on appeal on the facts of the particular case it might refuse to award interest from the date fixed for payment in the lower Court. Therefore what may or may not be awardable is not to be included as part of the claim and if without adding the interest the value is less than Rs. 10,000 a party is not entitled to leave to appeal to the Privy Council.

The term "decree" used in connection with the High Court and the expression "decision" used in regard to the lower Court in S. 110, C. P. It cannot be said that any variation in a decree is enough to take it out of the last paragraph of S. 110. A suit on behalf of a trust for recovery of possession of certain properties was dismissed; in appeal the High Court also rejected the prayer for possession but directed the defendant to pay into Court a sum of Rs. 12,100 for the benefit of the trust, on the offer and undertaking of the defendant's counsel as a matter of concession and not as a decision of the Court. ——S. 110—Question of law—Judges differing—Discussions and exchange of views between them—If amount to sufficient deliberation—Question, if one of fact or law.

Where Judges happen to differ they need not confer with each other till the last moment with a view to bring unanimity amongst them. Even if they do not, the separate judgments which they deliver can be regarded as judgments. It is quite true that there must be discussions and exchange of views amongst judges composing a Division Bench before the judgments are prepared and delivered. But if there are consultations amongst them, it is for them and them only to judge if further discussions would be fruitful and for them only to say at what stage the discussions amongst them should cease. There cannot be an absolute rule of law as to what will amount to a sufficient conference for the purpose. The question whether or not the conferences or discussions amount to a sufficient deliberation by which the Judges composing the Division Bench mutually assist each other in arriving at a decision is at most a question of degree, and as such, a question of fact (and not a question of law) to be determined with reference to the facts and circumstances of each particular case. An order refusing a person to permit to sue as a pauper amounts to a "case decided," for it finally disposes of the question whether the petitioners should sue in forma pauperis or not. It is not therefore of an interlocutory nature. Further the right to continue the suit on full court-fee cannot be called an alternative remedy for obtaining permission to sue in forma pauperis. Therefore, there is no way out of the situation for the petitioner except to get the order vacated on revision and hence a revision is competent. The High Court is reluctant to interfere with orders passed by Subordinate Courts in exercise of their discretionary powers, such as an order for payment of a decree by instalments under S. 12 of the Bihar Money-Lenders Act. Such discretionary power must, however, be exercised judicially and the Court should be careful to indicate in its order the reasons for it so that the High Court may be satisfied that the discretion has been exercised judicially and all the relevant matters specified in S. 12 of the Bihar Money-Lenders Act have been taken into consideration. Where the order does not show that all the circumstances have been taken into consideration and does not give reasons the High Court will not hesitate to interfere in revision and will set aside the order. The mere fact that the decree-holder who objects to the instalments, subsequently withdraws from the Court an amount of instalment deposited in Court will not debar him from challenging the instalment order in revision on the ground that he has taken a benefit under that order. There is no benefit to the decree-holder merely because an instalment order is passed as he is entitled to the money deposited under his decree. ——S. 115—Illegality or material irregularity—Failure to consider important point of fact—Effect of —Interference in revision.

Where the lower Court fails to take into consideration an important question of fact which is indeed conclusive in the case, and the consequence of which is that it has given a decision which otherwise it would clearly not have given, S. 115 (c) applies, and the lower Court must be held to have acted illegally or with material irregularity so as to justify interference by the High Court in revision. ——S. 115—Illegally or with material irregularity —Summary proceeding—Exclusion of secondary or indirect evidence—If justifies interference.

Where in a summary inquiry in proceedings under S. 182 of the Succession Act, the District Judge excludes certain statements which are in the nature of secondary or indirect evidence on the ground that the admission thereof would unduly prolong the inquiry, it cannot be said that he acts illegally or with material irregularity so as to justify interference in revision. ——S. 115—Interference under—Principles—Interlocutory orders—If revisable.

A strict compliance with the conditions laid down in S. 115, C. P. Code, is the sine qua non to the exercise of jurisdiction, under that section. Considerations of possible irreparable injury or failure of justice cannot be invoked to give jurisdiction to the Oudh Chief Court to interfere with any interlocutory order. If interference with orders of lower Courts in interlocutory matters are allowed on such grounds the trial of suits in the lower Courts will be unduly hampered and protracted. Hence an order remodelling an issue being an interlocutory order and not amounting to a case decided cannot be interfered with in revision. ——S. 115—Interlocutory order—Order reviving proceedings which had terminated—If open to revision.

An order passed on review setting aside an order of dismissal of an application for the removal of a mutwalli, is one reviving proceedings which had definitely terminated and so cannot be described as an interlocutory order so as to bar a revision under S. 115. It cannot be said that merely because the lower Court has not sufficiently distinguished between conditions in India and England or has not considered a relevant decision of the High Court of the Province and has followed a decision of the High Court of another Province, any question of jurisdiction arises. S. 144, C.P.Code, is not confined to cases where an order is reversed only in further stages like appeal, etc., but applies to any reversal. A suit brought under O. 21, C.P. Code, cannot be dissociated from the claim petition which has given rise to it, and is in fact an action in the nature of an appeal from the order passed on the claim petition. Where an order passed on a claim petition is set aside by the decree in a suit under O. 21, R. 63, C.P. Code it is in effect a reversal for purposes of S. 144, C. P.Code and therefore the party succeeding in the suit is entitled to restitution of the costs of the claim petition which he has had to pay to the unsuccessful party who succeeded in the claim. S. 144 does not provide that for an order of restitution to be made the decree or order must have been varied or reversed in any particular form of proceeding or by any particular Court. The starting point of limitation for an application for restitution in such a case under Art. 182 is the date of the decree in the suit under O. 21, R. 63 or if there be an appeal the date of the final order in the appeal and not the date of the order on the claim petition. Limitation for an application for restitution of possession by an ejected tenant who has got the ejectment set aside on review is three years under Art. 181 of the Limitation Act. When the order granting the review is conditional on the judgment-debtor paying the full decree amount and the amount is paid and a final order granting review is passed, limitation for restitution of possession would start only from the final order granting review. ——Ss. 144 and 151—Applicability of S. 144—Variation of decree by trial Court itself—Inherent powers of Court to give relief in such cases.

There is nothing in the wording of S. 144., C.P. Code, which definitely restricts its application to cases where a decree is varied by an appellate authority only. It can apply even to cases where the modification or reversal of the decree is by the trial Court itself. Moreover S. 144 does not exhaust all the powers which a Court possesses in order to put the parties in the position which they should occupy according to the latest orders. Under S. 151 the Court has inherent power to make such orders as will be necessary in the ends of justice or to prevent abuse of the process of the Court. Hence if the trial Court's final orders modify or set aside the decree originally given by it, it possesses powers at least under S. 151 if not under S. 144 to put the parties in the posi-

——S. 144—Duty of Court—Justice to both parties to be done.

Under S. 144, C. P. Code, the matter is one for the discretion of the Court to be exercised in the light not solely of the interests and position of the one party, but of both parties, and the duty of the Court is, so far as may be, to do justice to the interests of both sides (Rowland and Chatterji, JJ.) GOURI DUTT GANESH LAL v. MADHO PRASAD. 1942 P.W.N. 103.

——S. 144—Interest—Award of—Proper rate of interest.

Unless very special circumstances are shown, the proper rate of interest to be awarded in claims for restitution under S. 144, C. P. Code, is the Court rate of six per cent. (Rowland and Chatterji, JJ.) GOURI DUTT GANESH LAL v. MADHO PRASAD. 1942 P.W.N. 103.

Where as a condition for stay of execution of a decree pending appeal, the judgment-debtor deposits money in Court as per order of Court and the plaintiff withdraws the same from Court, but subsequently the decree is reversed on appeal, the Court in allowing restitution will allow interest on the amount deposited and withdrawn, not necessarily from the date of deposit or the date of withdrawal, but from the date on which there was no longer any obstacle to the withdrawal of the money by the plaintiff. There is nothing in the C. P. Code or the United Provinces Tenancy Act which either requires or forbids a notice to be issued to the party concerned before an order is passed under S. 144, C. P. Code. When a trial Court does not issue a notice there is nothing wrong in an appellate Court directing the lower Court to issue notice. (*Shirreff, J. M. and Sathe, A. Where certain movables attached in execution were directed to be handed over to an interim receiver on the judgment-debtor applying for adjudication and later on the judgment-debtor was allowed to withdraw his application, it was held that the proper course for the Insolvency Court was to follow the principle of S. 144, C. P. Code and to restore the property to the executing Court and not to the judgment-debtor and thereby place the parties in possession which they would have occupied but for the insolvency proceedings. It was held further that though S. 144, C.P. Code, may not in terms apply, the duty or jurisdiction to place parties in status quo ante did not arise merely under S. 144, C.P. Code, but was inherent in the general jurisdiction of the Court to act rightly and fairly according to the circumstances towards all parties involved and that the restitution of the property to judgment-debtor was manifestly unfair and prejudicial to the creditor. ——S. 144—Scope—If exhaustive—Inherent powers to order restitution—Power to compel third party to bring back money paid to him under erroneous order of Court—S. 151.

Courts in ordering restitution after a decree has been varied or reversed are not confined to cases which fall strictly within the provisions of S. 144, C.P.Code. The inherent jurisdiction vested in them by virtue of S. 151, C.P.Code. may be invoked where an order of Court would otherwise do injury to one of its suitors. There is inherent jurisdiction in the Court to call back money paid, owing to an erroneous view, to a person not entitled to it, and a person who is not in any technical sense a party to the decree can be compelled to make restitution of the money paid to him. Whether the inherent powers of the Courts to order restitution should be invoked in a particular case must depend on the facts of that case. The 4th respondent brought a suit to enforce a mortgage executed by the 1st respondent seeking relief against the 1st respondent alone on the ground that the property mortgaged was his self-acquired property and that the money was taken by him for his own purposes. Respondents 2 to 3 who belonged to the same joint family as the respondent and who were also impleaded in the suit contended that the property was family property and that there was no family necessity for the loan secured by the mortgage. The suit was decreed on 10-8 1932, and in execution of his decree the 4th respondent brought the property to sale and purchased it himself for Rs. 7,200. The defendants in the suit, however, applied under O. 21, R. 89, C.P.C. and deposited the requisite sum amounting to Rs. 11,470-10-5 and the sale was set aside. The appellant who held a decree against the 4th respondent applied for attachment of Rs. 9,000 out of the amount of Rs. 11,470-10-5, in Court, and after attachment he applied for transfer of the attached sum to his own execution petition. This was ordered on 7-8 1935 and payment also was made out to him on the same date. Meanwhile an appeal against the mortgage decree was pending in the High Court, and on 9-11 1937, the appellate Court delivered judgment holding that the mortgaged property was family property, and as it had never been the 4th respondent's case that the mortgage was for purposes binding on the family the suit of the 4th respondent was dismissed. The respondents 1 to 3 (defendants in the mortgage suit) then applied for restitution of the amount deposited by them under O. 21, R. 89, C.P.Code, with interest thereon. They prayed for recovery of the whole amount from the 4th respondent with interest at 6 per cent. and for recovery of Rs. 9,000 with such interest from the appellant.

Held, (1) that there was inherent jurisdiction in the Court to order restitution though the case did not fall under S. 144, C.P.C. and that a person in the position of the appellant, not in any technical sense a party to the decree, could in law be compelled to make restitution of the money to him; (2) that if there were no other circumstances affecting the equities as between the respondents 1 to 3 and the appellant, it was the duty of the Court to set right the wrong done to its suitors (respondents 1 to 3) by reason of its own errors. The words in S. 145, C.P. Code, "in the manner herein provided for the execution of decrees" clearly refer not to the mode of applying for execution but to the mode of effecting execution. Where a person has incurred a forfeiture of a bond and action is sought to be taken against him under S. 145, C.P. Code, the bond can be enforced against him in the manner provided in O. 21, C.P. Code, for the execution of decrees, that is to say, by his arrest, by attachment of his movable property, by attachment of his immovable property, or in any other suitable manner provided in O. 21 for the enforcement of decrees. It is not necessary that the judgment-creditor should apply for execution in the form set out in O. 21, R. 11, C.P. Code. (Lobo and Tyabji, JJ.). ASSANDAS v. HARDASMAL. I.L.R. An ex parte decree was passed against a firm as such. The applicants who were included among the "served partners" in the decree made an application under O. 9, R. 13 to set aside the ex parte decree, on the ground that both by the terms of the decree and by reason of O. 21, R. 50 they were fixed with liabilities as partners, though no summons were served on them at all. The Court rejected the application being of the opinion that the words in the decree "served partners" which included the applicants, were really of no moment and of no effect. Held, that O. 9, R. 13 did not apply as the suit was against the firm which was represented by certain partners though not by the applicants and therefore the decree against the firm could not be set aside. While, therefore, the decree against the firm must stand and the presence of the words "served partners" in the decree made no difference one way or the other, because the liability of the served partners was determined by O. 21, R. 50, yet the Judge should hear the application under S. 151 and deal with the question of applicants' absence for non-service by analogy with the provisions of O. 9, R. 13, and if he came to the conclusion that the contention of the applicants that no summons were duly served on them was true, he should pass orders upon such application as will allow the applicants, if execution of the decree was to be sought against them, to take advantage of the provisions of O. 21, R. 50 (2) and dispute their lability as partners. It cannot be disputed that when the Court acts in the exercise of its jurisdiction under Ss. 151 and 152, C. P. Code, to amend a decree, it should only do so after notice to the party to be affected by the amendment—all the more so in the case of a decree that was passed on consent. The Court has no inherent power to alter orders passed with the consent of the parties unless at least notice is given to the parties affected. There is no provision in the C. P. Code like the one found in Cr. P. Code which specifically empowers a Court to refuse to take down the evidence of a witness tendered by a party. But S. 151, C. P. A plaint presented with insufficient Court-fee was rejected on failure to make up the deficiency. An application for review of the order of rejection was then made along with the necessary Court-fee to make up the deficiency. This application was also rejected. The plaintiff thereupon applied for refund of the Court-fee which he paid subsequently. The Court refused the prayer.

Held, in revision, that since the deficit Court-fee paid was not meant to be utilised until the application for review was granted by the Court, the said Court-fee ought to be refunded on the rejection of the application for review. Though Ss. 13 to 15 of the Court-Fees Act did not apply, the Court had inherent powers to order refund of Court-fee under S 151, C. P. Code. O. 8, R. 6 (2) requires the written statement put in by a defendant pleading a set off to be such as to enable the Court to pronounce a final judgment both in respect of the plaintiff's claim and of the defendant's claim, and the omission by the defendant to set up part of his claim makes him lose for ever his right in the part of the claim so omitted. Hence where rent is payable on the 1st of May a suit for arrears is filed on 1st May 1937 and a subsequent suit is filed on 2nd August 1938 in respect of arrears for 1936 37 the later suit is not barred by the operation of O. 2 R. 2 C.P.Code, inasmuch as the claim in the later suit could not have been included in the earlier one. ——O. 2, R. 2—Bar of suit—Principles—Identity of cause of action—Allegations in plaint—How far decisive.

In order to apply the provisions of O. 2, R. 2, C. P. Code, to bar a suit, it shall have to be found out, (1) what was the cause of action in respect of which the claim was made in the previous suit; (2) what is the claim made in the present suit; (3) whether the claim made in the present suit could have been made either wholly or in part in respect of the cause of action of the previous suit. In order to arrive at these findings, the two plaints must be compared. But this does not mean that in order to apply O. 2, R. 2 all the allegations made in the two plaints shall have to be taken and the bar imposed shall apply only when these are identical. The allegations are to be looked into only to find out to what extent they disclose any cause of action. Cause of action for this purpose would mean all the essential facts constituting the right and its infringement. If the plaintiff obtained a judgment in his favour on a particular cause of action in the previous suit his claim in that suit must be taken to have been based on that cause of action, and that judgment ought to be conclusive as to the cause of action in respect of which that claim was made. In order then to see what is the cause of action in respect of which the claim in the subsequent suit is made and what is the claim made in it we are to look to the plaint in the subsequent suit. If a certain allegation in the plaint discloses the self same cause of action which could have supported the claim made in the plaint, then, simply because other additional allegations have also been made in it, the plaintiff could not thereby escape the bar imposed by O. 2, R. 2. If without the additional allegations in the second plaint, the cause of action for the claim made in it be complete, then in that case the additional allegations will not constitute the cause of action at all, and the Court after finding that it will have to dismiss the claim under O. 2, R. 2. If the additional allegations go to constitute a fresh cause of action for the claim made, then certainly the cause of action as alleged in the second plaint is different from the cause of action of the first plaint. If the plaintiff fails to establish the additional allegations, he may fail for want of cause of action but his suit will not be hit by the provisions of O. 2, R. 2. ——O. 2, R. 2—Cause of action—Meaning of—All plaintiffs and defendants not being parties to both suits—If renders O. 2, R. 2, inapplicable.

The expression "cause of action" means every fact which it would be necessary for the plaintiff to prove if traversed, in order to support his right to the judgment of the Court, but it does not comprise every piece of evidence which is necessary to prove each fact, but every fact which is necessary to be proved. In the restricted sense, the expression means the circumstances forming the infringement of the right or the immediate occasion for the action. In its wider sense it means the necessary conditions for the maintenance of the suit, including not only the infraction of the right but the infraction coupled with the right itself, in other words, in its wider sense it means the whole bundle of material and essential facts which it is necessary for the plaintiff to prove in order to entitle him to succeed in the suit. If the several items which make up the claim are of the same nature and form part of the same course of dealing so as to pass under the same description and form part of one transaction, they must be considered as one cause of action and must be joined in one suit. Where the title of the plaintiff is the same and the trespasser-defendant is the same defendant in both suits, the question whether the second suit is barred by the first, under O. 2, R. 2 depends upon whether the two trespasses took place in or about the same time and as part of the same transaction so that the two trespasses might be considered as a single transaction forming one and the same cause of action. If both trespasses had taken place before the first suit had been brought, O. 2, R. 2 might be a bar to the second suit. The fact that some of the plaintiffs or defendants to the former suit are not parties to the subsequent suit does not necessarily render the second suit so different as to make O. 2, R. 2 inapplicable. On the death of R in 1927, various persons including the plaintiffs and the defendants tried to set up their claims to the properties left by her. All the parties were aware of the definite dispute arising on the death of R. The properties left by R consisted roughly of two sets, X the Oudh properties and Y the Shahjahanpur properties. The plaintiffs and defendants both applied for mutation of names in respect of the Y properties and though the names of the plaintiffs were mutated by the pargana officer on 12th May, 1928, that order was reversed by the Collector on 20th June, 1928 and the Collector's order was confirmed by the Commissioner on 29th October, 1929, upto which date the plaintiffs continued in possession but thereafter the defendants' name was entered in the revenue papers and they entered into possession. On 14th September, 1928, the plaintiffs instituted a suit in the Oudh Chief Court against the defendants and certain others for declaration of their title to the property X left by R and for possession and mesne profits. The plaintiffs laid no claim in respect of the properties Y. Subsequently in 1938 the plaintiffs as heirs of R brought a suit against the defendants for declaration of their title to the property Y and for possession and mesne profits.

Held, that the trespasses on title or slander of title in the case so far as the Oudh suit was concerned was not distinct and different either in point of time or in point of character from the trespass on possession in the case of the property Y. The two trespasses were similar in character and formed part of the same transaction and the evidence to prove the facts which it was necessary for the plaintiffs to prove, if they wanted the judgment in their favour, was the same and the bundle of essential facts was also the same. The second suit in respect of the properties Y was barred by the provisions of O. 2, R. 2. (Collister and Baipai, JJ.) MAHOMED KHALIL KHAN v. MAHBOOB ALI. I.L.R. (1942) All. 103 =1941 A.W.R. ——O. 2, R. 2—Scope of the bar of a second suit—Right to retain possession of one property and right to recover possession of another—Separate causes of action.

The question whether a subsequent suit is founded upon the same cause of action on which previous suit was based is essentially one of fact and must be determined upon the facts of each case. The right of an owner to maintain his possession over a particular item of property is quite distinct and apart from his right to recover possession of another item of property from which he has been ousted by a trespasser. Where there is an infringement of two separate rights by two separate acts of trespass committed by the same trespasser they give rise to two separate causes of action. No doubt if the several acts of trespass are so connected together in point of time as to form part of the same transaction they may not give rise to separate causes of action. But where the separate acts of trespass are far removed in point of time and are also different in character they cannot be said to form part of the same transaction. O. 2, R. 2, C.P. Code, does not make it incumbent upon the plaintiff to combine separate causes of action in the same suit. P. Code. (Beaumont, C.J. and Sen, J.) CHANNAPPA GIRIMALLAPPA v. THE BAGALKOT BANK. 44 Bom.L.R. 735=A.I.R. 1942 Bom. 338.

Where two suits based on the same cause of action, are filed simultaneously on the same day, it cannot be said that O. 2, r. 2 (2) is infringed, as it is not the case of a plaintiff afterwards suing in respect of a portion of a claim omitted from a former suit. It cannot be assumed that one of the two suits presented simultaneously has been presented afterwards. In such a case, the Court has power to consolidate the two suits in its inherent jurisdiction and it would not be proper to dismiss one of the suits as offending against O. 2, r. 2 (1). O. 3, r. 5, . Code, is a general provision governing all processes of Civil Courts, and O. 41-A, is a special order relating to the procedure in appeal to the High Courts from the original decrees of Subordinate Courts. It must therefore be inferred that the special provisions of O. 41-A, in so far as they are in conflict with the provisions of the parts of the Code, must prevail and must govern the procedure relating to appeals in preference to the general provisions. Since r. 6 of O. 41-A, excludes a notice of appeal from the category of processes which can be properly served by being left at the address for service of the party to be served, the inference is that such a notice must be served regularly either on the respondent or his advocate, and that service by merely affixing to the office of the advocate as provided in O. 3, r. 5 is not service on the party or his pleader for purposes of limitation for filing memorandum of cross objections under O. 41, r. 22, C. At a late stage in the appeal the plaintiff sought to amend the plaint by stating that the property was ancestral.

Held, that the amendment introduced an inconsistent case and could not be allowed at a late stage in the appeal.

C. P. CODE (1908), O. 6, R. 17.

Held, further, that even if the amendment were allowed it would necessitate a remand for further enquiry as to ancestral nature of the property which could not be allowed as neither O. 41, R. 25 nor O 41, R. 27 had any application to the case. Nor could S. 151 be invoked on the facts of the case. (Tek Chand and Din Mohammad, JJ.) KARAM DAD v. MOHAMMAD BIBI. I.L.R. The plaintiff filed a suit on account in the Small Cause Court describing the defendant as firm S. The Small Cause Court found that the defendant S was not a firm but an individual and returned the plaint for presentation to proper Court holding that it had no jurisdiction as S was an agriculturist. Thereafter the plaintiff himself amended the plaint by describing the defendant as firm of S by its managing partner S and presented it in the Court of Sub Judge. The Sub-Judge finding that no such firm as firm of S existed, dismissed the suit. On appeal, the plaintiff applied to amend the plaint by substituting S in place of firm of S. The appellate Court holding that the application for amendment was not a bona fide one to correct an error of misdescription but to substitute one defendant for another and was made at a late stage when the claim against the proper defendant had become time-barred, dismissed the application and, agreeing with the trial Court that the suit was incompetent as no firm of S existed dismissed the appeal as well.

Held, that the suit and application for amendment both were rightly dismissed.

Held, further, that the Small Cause Court would have acted properly in dismissing the suit. The suit was not against an agriculturist but against a firm, and when that firm was found not to exist, there was no Court in which the suit should have been instituted for the presentation to which an order of return of the plaint could be made. The order returning the plaint therefore was not proper. (Davis, C.J. and Weston, J.) KEWALRAM TEKCHAND & CO. v. SHEWARAM ROCHIRAM. I.L.R. (1942) Kar. 207=203 I.C. 344=A.I.R. 1942 Sind 104.

——O. 6, R. 17—Scope—Suit against firm—Amendment seeking to alter character of suit—Substitution of one defendant for another—Permissibility.

In the suit for the recovery of a loan the defendant was described as A in the plaint as originally typed. By a manuscript correction this was altered by changing the defendant into firm of which A was the partner. Notice under O. 30, R. 3 was served on A who was alleged to be the managing partner. A did not appear but another partner of the firm appeared and in his written statement alleged that the loan was not given to the defendant firm but to A as was clear from the receipt filed by the plaintiff which was executed by A in his personal capacity, that A had no authority to take loans on behalf of the firm and therefore the loan in suit was not binding on the defendant firm. Thereupon, the plaintiff filed an application under O. 6, R. 17 to amend the plaint by changing the description of the defendant from that of the firm to A as individual on the ground that the suit had been filed against the firm through a bona fide mistake and the loan was taken by A and not the firm. The Court dismissed the application and also the suit on the plaintiff's admission in the application for amendment that the loan was not incurred by the firm. Held that the amendment sought for was not one seeking to change the suit from one against the firm to one against the individual members composing the firm, but was one seeking to change the suit against a firm to one against an individual who happened to be a partner of that firm and that there was a marked difference in the nature of the two suits. Held further that in view of the manuscript correction in the plaint and the receipt executed by A which was filed by the plaintiff, the mistake in the description of the defendant far from being bona fide was dishonest. The case was one where the plaintiff sought to substitute one defendant for another and to change the nature of the suit he had filed and, therefore, the application for amendment was rightly dismissed. Held also that the suit as against the firm failed on the admission that the firm was not liable and therefore the suit also was rightly dismissed. An appellate order setting aside an order for return of plaint for presentation to proper Court and directing the Court to decide the suit according to law is not open to a further appeal. O. 41, R. 23, C.P. The order that the lower Court had jurisdiction is merely an interlocutory order which does not decide or terminate the suit and hence there is no room for the application of S. 115 of the C. P. If the claim set up by the defendant is in respect of an ascertained sum of money which is less than or equal to the plaintiff's claim in the suit, it is a plea of set-off pure and simple, but if it exceeds the plaintiff's claim it is to the extent of the excess a cross claim, for, for the excess he is to be given a decree against the plaintiff in the same action. By the terms of O. 8, R. 6, C.P.C., the claim must be legally recoverable, that is, must not be a dead claim. If the defendant does not claim a sum in excess of the plaintiff's claim, on principle the relevant enquiry would be whether it was a dead claim at the date of the plaintiff's suit. Where however the defendant pleads for a sum of money which is in excess of the plaintiff's claim, he occupies to the extent of the excess the position of a plaintiff in a cross suit, and in such a case and for the excess amount time is to be reckoned not from the date of the plaintiff's suit but from the date when he filed his written statement. The word "hearing" in R. 3 of O. 9, C. P. Code, cannot be read as meaning hearing of the evidence in the case. It is used to indicate that when a summons has been issued upon the defendant calling upon him to appear on a particular date, if the parties fail to appear when the suit is called on for hearing on that date, the plaintiff's suit is subject to dismissal for default. Summons were issued to the defendants in a suit fixing 17—7—1940 for settlement of issues. By that date the summons had been returned as served and the plaintiff was called upon to prove service and to file registered cards by 29-7-1940. On that date the plaintiff filed Aasri but did not comply with the order of 15—7—1940. He was directed to comply with that order by 1—8—1940 positively. On that date the case was called out, but the plaintiff did not appear and no steps were taken on his behalf. The suit was then dismissed for default. It was contended that the Court should have proceeded under O. 9, R. 5.

Held, (1) that R. 5 of O. 9 applied only when summons had been returned as unserved, and as in this case the summons had been returned as served, R. 5 had no application; (2) that as neither of the parties were present, the conditions requisite for an order under O. 9, R. 3 were present and the suit was rightly dismissed for default. C. P. CODE (1908), O. 9, R. 9.

A Court has no power under O. 9, C. P. Code, to restore an execution petition which has been dismissed for default of the decree-holder in remedying the defects as ordered by the Court. Nor can the inherent power of the Court under S. 151, C. P. Code, be utilised for this purpose. The proper remedy of the decree-holder in such a case is to file a fresh execution application within the period of limitation or to apply for review. Even in the case of a review notice has to go to the judgment debtor. The Court has no jurisdiction at all to restore the application without notice to the judgment-debtor. If it does so, it acts illegally in the exercise of its jurisdiction and the High Court can interfere in revision. (Agarwala, J.) RAJ KISHORE PD. In dealing with an adjourned case under O. 17, R. 2, C. P. Code, in the absence of the defendant all that is open to the Court is either to grant an adjournment to enable the defendant to appear or to proceed in his absence ex parte. If the latter course is adopted, the defendant is entitled to apply to get the decree set aside under O. 9, R. 13, C. P. Code. The Court can hear the evidence of the plaintiff in the absence of the defendant and make such order as that evidence justifies. Where on the date to which the hearing of a suit is adjourned, the defendant applies for a further adjournment which is refused, and the Court hears the evidence of the plaintiff and gives a decree in his favour, the decree is one made ex parte and the defendant therefore is entitled to apply under O. 9, R. 13, C. P. Code, to have it set aside. It is not necessary for him to appeal against the decree, treating it as one passed on the merits. O. 9, R. 13 is wide enough to cover a case where a firm is the defendant and where the person served on behalf of the firm is absent and asks that he should be heard so that the ex parte decree against the firm should be set aside. There is nothing extraordinary and still less improper in the framing of a new issue on the day of the hearing. It is not a ground for setting aside a decree on appeal and ordering the case to be retried. The purpose of giving a notice to the judgment-debtor under O. 21, R. 16, C. P. Code, is to acquaint him with the fact that the darkhast purports to execute the decree on behalf of the assignee from the judgment-creditor and to ask him to show cause why the assignee should not be allowed to execute the decree. Where on a darkhast filed by the decree-holder and the assignee jointly, a notice was issued to the judgment-debtor, purporting to be one under O. 21, R. 22, and the notice stated that the assignee had filed a darkhast on the ground that he had purchased the decree in writing from the decree-holder and asked the judgment debtor to show cause why the transferee should not be allowed to execute the decree along with the judgment-debtor, it must be held, that the notice is a good and sufficient notice both under O. 21, R. 16 and O. 21, R. 22. If the judgment-debtor does not raise any objection then to execution of the decree on the ground that the assignment should not be recognised, or that the assignment deed has not been produced in Court, or proved or that it is unregistered and hence inadmissible, and allows execution to proceed, he cannot afterwards in a subse-money in Court—Remedy of decree-holder—Garnishee becoming insolvent before application for order under O. 21, R. 63-B—Effect—Right to preferential payment to levy execution against receiver or liquidator in insolvency.

Under O. 21, R. 46 (3), C. P. Code, the debtor of the judgment debtor is given the option to pay the amount into Court. There is nothing in the rule which authorises the Court to pass an order by which the garnishee can be compelled to deposit the amount of his debt in Court. What is attached is not the property of the garnishee but the money due by the garnishee to the judgment-debtor; and the effect of the attachment is only to prohibit the garnishee from making payment to the judgment-debtor. It does not confer on the decree-holder any higher right that the judgment-debtor himself had against the garnishee. If the garnishee does not pay the amount of the debt in accordance with O. 21, R. 46 (3) as ordered by the Court, the decree-holder may adopt the procedure laid down in Rr. 63 A and 63-B, inserted by the Patna High Court, to O. 21, C. P. Code. If no order is passed under R. 63-B, and the garnishee a bank, goes into liquidation, and the decree holder applies for the first time for an order under R. 63-B, after the bank goes into liquidation there is no valid order by which the garnishee-bank can be compelled to deposit the attached money in Court. In spite of orders by the Court to pay the debt in Court under O. 21, R. 46 (3), the position of the attaching decree-holder is still that of an unsecured creditor, as the attachment by itself gives no preferential right, and he cannot claim privity or proceed to levy execution against the liquidator. If he wishes to pursue his remedy he must proceed under the Companies Act and not under the C. P. Code and his rights would be controlled by S. 229 of the Companies Act. (Chatterji and Shearer, JJ.) KAMESHWAR SINGH v. KULESHWAR SINGH. 21 Pat. 287=202 I.C. 533=15 R.P. 124=9 B.R. 14= A.I.R. 1942 Pat. 508.

——O. 21, Rr. 46-A and 46-B (Sind)—Scope—Application for notice under R. 46-A—Procedure to be followed.

On an application for a notice under R. 46-A, the Court should require the decree-holder either to specify the debts or apply under O. 21, R. 41 for an examination of the judgment-debtor. R. 46-B is complementary to R. 46-A, and the order under R. 46-B must follow, so far as the debt is concerned, the terms of R. 46-A and must be capable of execution. An order to sell an unspecified or unascertained debt is not capable of execution. The debt must, therefore, at some stage of the proceedings be specified or ascertained, and it must be specified or ascertained independently of whether the garnishee should or should not appear and show cause. A debt, the amount of which is not specified or ascertained, may be made the subject of a valid attachment, but it cannot be made the subject of a valid execution in the terms of R. 46-B. In short, the notice under R. 46-A should, so far as the amount of the debt is concerned, be in such terms that an order pursuant to it made under R. 46-B must be capable of execution. A Court which directs execution to issue against a debt, which or the value of which, is not specified, wrongly exercises the power which R. 46-B confers. The fact that at some stage after notice under R. 46-A the decree-holder in the absence of the garnishees, by an application specified the amount of the debt does not make good the defects in the notices under R. 46-A, which did not give even the approximate value of the debts, and which were based upon applications not supported by affidavits as required by R. 46-B. O. 21, Rr. 58 to 63, C. P. Where the garnishee in essence claims that he was entitled not to refuse payment altogether but only to defer it, his debt is attachable, and if the executing

Court raises the attachment on a denial of liability by the garnishee, the decree-holder is entitled to bring a suit under O. 21, R. 63, C. P. Code. Defendants 2 to 4 sold certain properties to 1st defendant in December, 1929. Under the terms of the sale deed the consideration of Rs. 2050 was retained in the hands of the 1st defendant for discharging two debts due to the plaintiff, one on a 1st mortgage and the other on a promissory note. The property sold was also subject to two subsequent mortgages which the vendors themselves undertook to discharge. The 1st defendant did not discharge the debt due to the plaintiff under the promissory note and the plaintiff therefore sued in 19 1 on it and got a decree against defendants 2 to 4. In execution he attached the debt which he alleged to be due from the 1st defendant to defendants 2 to 4 as unpaid purchase money. The 1st defendant denied his liability to pay the amount until the vendors had cleared off the subsequent mortgages. The executing Court accepted this plea and raised the attachment on 1—8—1935. The plaintiff thereupon brought a suit under O. 21, R. 63, impleading all the 4 defendants, Held, (1) that the suit was maintainable, since 1st defendant admitted that he had purchased the property and had not paid for it and in essence only claimed a right to defer payment; (2) that a vendee charged with the obligation of paying off an encumbrancer to a certain extent might defer doing so until the vendor was prepared to contribute the remainder of the sum due to pay him off completely; and the 1st defendant in 1935 was therefore not compelled to pay anything to the subsequent mortgagees unless defendants 2 to 4 joined with him in paying them off and the defendants 2 to 4 had no legal claim in 1935 upon 1st defendant for the amount of the purchase money : (3) that a debt not immediately payable might nevertheless be attachable if it be an obligation already in existence; (4) that the obligation to pay for the property purchased sprang into being by virtue of the very transaction of sale itself in 1929, and although the vendee had a right under S. 55 (5) (b), T. P. Act to postpone the discharge of that obligation, the obligation was a debt attachable in 1935. (*King. The dismissal of a claim petition preferred under O. 21, R. 58, C. P. Where an order is passed either on the merits or on the acquiescence of the applicant or claimant, before the sale takes place, it is an order falling under R 63 of O. 21. But where, in the case of a claim presented before the sale, an order is passed after the sale has been held and proceeds on the ground that the application is not tenable because the attachment has come to an end or that the claim cannot be adjudicated upon after the sale, R. 63, of O. 21 can have no application. Suit within one year—If necessary—Limitation Act, Art. 11.

Where a proceeding for execution is sent to the Collector, the Collector or a Mamlatdar executing the decree is not a Court and hence O. 21, Rr. 58 and 63, C. P. Though the Collector or Mamlatdar may be said to act under the Code when exercising the powers conferred by the Code, he has no power to consider objections to an attachment. Where a person applies to the Collector and Mamlatdar to make a sale subject to a mortgage in his favour and that application is dismissed by the Collector or Mamlatdar without investigation, the order is not one against the applicant under R. 63 of O. 21, C.P. O. 21, R. 63, C. P. Code, does not lay down any specific form of the relief that a person whose claim or objection is dismissed is entitled to claim. All that it requires is that he should institute a suit to establish the right which he claims to the property in dispute. It does not contemplate that there should be a suit for declaration simpliciter. The words 'to establish his right to the property' in the rule are wide enough to cover a suit not only for a declaration but a suit for a declaration and consequential relief. Where in a suit by the mortgagees on the dismissal of their claim in respect of the mortgaged property, they maintained that they had a right to enforce the mortgage against the auction purchaser on the distinct averment that the property comprised in the mortgage was owned by the mortgagor and nobody else but failed to ask for an express declaration of their mortgagor's title to the property, it was held that such an omission was only an error of form and a technical defect which could not and ought not to affect the substance of the claim. It was further held that though ordinarily mortgagees could not raise an issue of title of their mortgagors, in view of the peculiar nature of the suit they could raise it. In execution of a decree obtained against a father and his son, certain properties were attached as joint family properties. The father had been adjudicated an insolvent, and the Official Receiver put in a claim petition alleging that the properties were the self acquisitions of the insolvent (father) and that the son had no share in them. This was dismissed on the ground of undue delay. The Official Receiver did not file a suit within one year but sold the property. In a suit by the son claiming partition, the Official Receiver pleaded that the properties were self acquisitions of the insolvent. The son pleaded that the question as to the properties being self-acquisitions was concluded against the Official Receiver by reason of the order on the claim petition, in view of O. 21, R. 63, C. P. Code. It appeared that no notice was served on the son in the claim proceedings, and that the decree holder alone was served.

Held, that since no notice was served on the son at the time when the order on the claim petition was made, he could not be considered to be a party to that order, and therefore the order on the claim petition did not preclude the Official Receiver or the purchaser from him raising the question of the self acquisitions against the son in the suit by the latter. property in himself on basis of purchase allowed—Suit by decree holder against claimant—Latter, if can question executability of decree against joint family.

The words "the right which he claims to the property in dispute" as used in O. 21, R. 63, C. P. Code, refer to the right which the party claims in the execution proceedings. Where a holder of a decree obtained against a firm sought to execute it against a property belonging to the joint family of the members of the firm, and a claim preferred by a third party who asserted a title to the property in himself on the basis of a purchase was allowed, and the decree-holder thereupon filed a suit under O. 21, R. 63, C. P. Code, against the claimant.

Held, that the plaintiff decree-holder was entitled to succeed in the suit, on establishing the right which he claimed to the property in dispute in his execution case and that therefore the only relevant point for decision in the suit was whether the property belonged to the joint family or to the defendant claimant, and that the latter should not be allowed to raise the question whether the decree could be executed against that joint family, particularly when the members themselves did not contest the claim of the plaintiff decree-holder, although he was alleged to be the benamidar of the execution-debtors named in the execution case. ——O. 21, R. 63—Scope of suit—Suit by decree-holder—If limited to determination of right of particular claimant.

Where a decree-holder files a suit under O. 21, R. 63, C. P. Code, after a claim petition in respect of the property in suit preferred by the judgment debtor as shebait of a deity was allowed, the scope of his suit is not limited to the determination of the question whether that particular claimant has any right or not. The right which the plaintiff asserts is that the property belonged to the judgment-debtor and was consequently saleable in execution of the decree obtained by him. If it is held by the Court that the property is trust property and does not belong to the judgment-debtor personally, then also the plaintiff's suit must fail. The deity in that event would be regarded as one of the beneficiaries under the trust and it is enough that one of the beneficiaries preferred a claim under O. 21, R. 58 of the Code and disputed the alienability of the property which was attached by the decree-holder. A person applying to set aside a sale under O. 21, R. 90, C.P. "Sale" in O. 21, R. 90 refers to the auction sale and not to its confirmation by Court. An interim receiver in insolvency appointed after an execution sale but before its confirmation is not a person whose interests are affected by the sale (as representing the creditors) and has therefore no locus standi to apply under O. 21, R. 90, C. In an application for setting aside a sale under O. 21 R. 90, C. P. Code, the applicant was ordered to furnish security under the proviso to R. 90, and he was ordered to furnish the security by a certain date. On that date, the applicant tendered a draft security bond and without testing the security or considering its adequacy, the Court ordered notice to the respondent who appeared and took the objection that the property offered as security was not sufficient. The Court thereupon ordered the security to be tested. Since it was found to be wholly inadequate, the Court dismissed the application without considering it on the merits, on the ground that the applicant had failed to furnish security. On appeal from the dismissal the applicant (appellant) contended that by issuing the notice to the respondents the Court had admitted the application and had thereby precluded itself from dismissing it except after consideration on the merits.

Held, that there was no principle of law by which the Court should be deemed to have done what it consciously did not intend to do. The security having been called for before issue of notice to the respondent, the subsequent issue of notice before the security was tested should be deemed to be provisional and in issuing

During the pendency of an appeal filed by a tenant against an order settling rent in respect of his tenure in a suit by the landlord under S. 105 of B. T. for partition, the share of none of the plaintiffs except that of one was specified. It was not clear on the plaint what share any of the other plaintiffs claimed; it appeared from the plaint that the plaintiffs were claiming jointly to have joint shares in ten annas eight pies share of the land in suit. In the prayer clause a share was claimed for plaintiffs 1 to 5, 7 and 8 as also for the purchaser; but it was nowhere stated, nor could it be ascertained from the plaint, what the shares of the plaintiffs were. The suit was dismissed by the trial Court and by the first appellate Court as barred by limitation. A second appeal was preferred against the dismissal. One of the appellants, a necessary party, died, and his legal representatives were not brought on the record and suit therefore abated at least as regards him. It was contended that this abatement operated to make the appeal incompetent as a whole.

Held, that the cause of action of all the plaintiffs was joint and the same and that to a proper decision of the dispute all the co-owners were necessary parties both to the suit and to the appeal, and the whole appeal therefore became incompetent. Where in an appeal one or several respondents dies and his legal representative is not brought on record the test whether an appeal abates as a whole or not should be (1) whether the interests of the respondents are joint and inseparable and (2) whether in the event of the appeal being allowed as against the remaining respondents there would or would not be two conflicting decrees in the same case with respect to the same subject-matter. Where a Court appoints one of the heirs of deceased respondent to represent the interests of the deceased during the pendency of the appeal, he represents the estate of the deceased and any decree that may be passed against him would be binding on all those who claim the property in suit through the deceased. Where some of the heirs have been impleaded as the representative of a deceased respondent the appeal does not abate against the heirs who had not been so impleaded. Though Mahomedan heirs succeed to separate shares in an estate and one litigating about his share could not produce any effect on the share of another who was not impleaded where one of the heirs is impleaded not as owner of a share in his own right but in a representative capacity as the person best suited to represent the estate, any decision against him would bind the others also. C. P. CODE (1908), O. 23, R. 1.

The respondent whose claim to a property attached in execution of a decree was rejected filed a suit under O. 21, R. 63 to establish his title. When the suit came on for hearing, realising that the suit was not competent without a prayer for possession applied for leave to amend his plaint, but his application was refused. The Court however, gave him leave to withdraw the suit under O. 23, R. 1, C. P. Code, with permission to file a fresh suit within one month and awarded costs to the appellant (defendant). The Court also expressed its opinion that S. 14 of the Limitation Act would apply to the case and that the respondent would not be prejudiced on the question of limitation. The respondent paid the cost to the appellant and filed a fresh suit which was beyond one year of the dismissal of his claim petition. The appellant pleaded limitation but his plea was overruled.

Held, (1) that S. 14 of the Limitation Act did not apply to the case; (2) that any statement made by the Court granting leave to withdraw the suit under O. 23, R. 1, could not operate to repeal O. 21, R. 2, which provided that the fresh suit was barred by the law of limitation; (3) that the Court granting leave to withdraw had no power to impose a condition and the fact that it did, did not relieve the respondent from the responsibility of filing his suit in time; (4) that the appellant was not estopped from raising the plea of limitation by reason of his having accepted costs awarded to him in the first suit. ——O. 23 R. 1 (1) and (4)—Construction and scope—Several plaintiffs—Right of one to withdraw from suit without consent of others—Question of prejudice—Inconvenience to other plaintiffs—Relevancy

Sub-R. (4) of R. 1 of O. 23, C. P. Code, does not govern an application for the unconditional withdrawal of a suit under sub R. (1) of R. 1. But it does not follow that one of several plaintiffs has an unconditional right to withdraw from a suit though it may be that for such a purpose the consent of the other plaintiffs may not be necessary. The question of prejudice has to be considered by the Court. The 1st and 2nd plaintiffs along with the third plaintiff—a financier—brought a suit for specific performance of an agreement to re-convey property by the defendants. The 3rd plaintiff deposited in Court the necessary amount of money, but owing to differences among the plaintiffs the 3rd plaintiff filed a petition for leave to withdraw from the suit so far as he was concerned and also to withdraw from Court the amount which he had deposited.

Held, (1) that since the 3rd plaintiff was not a necessary party to the suit for specific performance of an agreement to which he was not a party, though the grant of leave to him to withdraw from the suit might cause inconvenience to the other plaintiffs, yet such inconvenience was not a legal obstacle to the continuation of the suit and cannot be regarded as a prejudice to the other plaintiffs which should prevent the Court from granting the petition to withdraw; (2) that the withdrawing plaintiff could take back from Court the money deposited by him, which was still his, and his right to withdraw the money could scarcely be doubted. There is nothing in O. 23, R. 3, C. P. Code, which restricts the relief granted in a compromise decree to the relief prayed for in the plaint. The fact that a compromise relates to property not the subject matter of the suit is not in all cases decisive of the question whether the compromise does or does not relate to the suit. Where a suit relates to possession of a specified plot of land, and the compromise effected by the parties relates to terms on which the same land shall be possessed and cultivated, it cannot be said that because the plaintiff is given a relief he did not ask for, that necessarily brings the compromise outside the scope of the suit. The proceedings must be looked at as a whole. The frame of the suit, the plaint, the written statement, the consideration for the compromise, etc., have to be looked at as a whole. R. 7 of O. 26, C. P. Under R. 7 of O. 26, the evidence taken on commission only forms part of the record in the same way as pleadings, affidavits, and other documents of a suit form part of the record of that suit. Both on the proper construction of Rr. 7 and 8 of O. 26, and according to the long and well-established practice on the Original Side of the High Court, the depositions of witnesses taken on commission have got to be tendered as evidence and admitted by the Court as evidence before they become evidence in the case. A party who examines a witness on commission is not bound to and cannot be compelled to tender the evidence of the witness examined on commission. No Court can compel a party or his counsel to lead any particular kind of evidence or tender any evidence if he does not wish to do so. ——O. 30, R. 1—Scope—If imperative or exhaustive—Suit against individual partners without naming firm—Competency.

O. 30, R. 1, C. P. Code, is permissive and not mandatory. It provides one mode of procedure but it does not take away any existing right of suit. Since the partners in a firm are jointly and severally liable for the debts of the firm, they can be sued individually even without naming the firm as one of the defendants. The Code, while it merely provided a new procedure, did not affect in the slightest degree the right of a plaintiff to bring on record the different members of the firm. Where the question of the minority of the plaintiff is put in issue and it is found that the plaintiff was a minor the Court should not dismiss the suit at once but should allow a reasonable time for a next friend to come on record and go on with the suit and it is only if no one comes forward that it should reject the plaint. Where a next friend so brought on record fails to sign and verify the plaint it is a mere irregularity which could not, in any case, justify the dismissal of the suit (Yorke, J.) RAM SEWAK v. RAM SAHAI. 1942 A.L.W. 225 = 1942 O.W.N. 281.

A decree cannot be regarded as a nullity merely because certain defendants who were minors continued to be shown as minors represented by their guardian ad litem though they had attained majority at the time of the decree. The appointment of a guardian ad litem, unless terminated earlier by some order of Court, would continue to be in force for appellate and execution proceedings under O. 32, R. 3 (5), C. P. Code. Three of the defendants in a mortgage suit were minors represented by a Court guardian at the time of the preliminary decree. In an appeal on behalf of the defendants the minors were represented by one of them who was the father of two of the minors and a relation of the third. He also represented the minors in a second appeal. Subsequently in the final decree proceedings the minors (two of whom had then become majors) were again represented by the Court guardian and final decree was passed with the Court guardian on record as representing the three defendants. The two who had become majors did not apply to be declared minors or to discharge the Court's guardian. In execution proceedings it was contended that the final decree passed in such circumstances was a nullity.

Held, that the decree could not be regarded as a nullity merely because the parties who had become majors continued to be shown as minors. (Harries, C. J. and Dhavle, J.) GULAB CHAND v. KISHORI KUER. 199 I.C. 625 = 14 R.P. 591 = 8 B.R. 584 = 23 Pat.L.T. 162 = A.I.R. 1942 Pat. 348.

minor is not represented at all if represented by a person who is absolutely disqualified from representing him and quite another to say that he is not represented at all if represented by a person whom the Court in its discretion could appoint to represent him but might not have appointed, if it had been aware of all the relevant facts. It would throw an impossible burden upon the parties to proceedings in which a minor was involved if those proceedings were to be regarded in certain circumstances as void if the person appointed to represent the minor was not the person appointed by competent authority to be the guardian of the minor under the Guardian and Wards Act. There is a distinction drawn throughout O. 32, C. P. Code, between a 'next friend' and 'the guardian for the suit'. While the latter is constituted by an order of the Court, the former automatically constitutes himself by taking steps in the suit. It is too narrow a view to take that the expression 'next friend' in O. 32, R. 7, is confined to a person who is acting on behalf of a minor who has already assumed the position of a plaintiff. It applies to any person who makes an application to the Court on a minor's behalf in relation to a suit. Where on the transfer of a decree to a minor, the mother applies to the Court under O. 21, R. 16 for his substitution, she becomes his 'next friend' by that very act and hence any compromise of the matter after that date if it should bind the minor must be with the sanction of the Court. ——O. 33, R. 1—Scope—Appeal—Review of judgment—Application by respondent—Power of Court to admit in forma pauperis—Court Fees Act, S. 4

A Court has no power to admit an application by a respondent in an appeal for review of judgment in forma pauperis, having regard to S. 4 of the Court-Fees Act. There is no procedure which will entitle the Court to make an inquiry in regard to a respondent's pauperism after the appeal in regard to which he is to make the application has been brought to a close. The words of O. 33, R. 1, C. P. Code, are unambiguous and cannot be construed so as to cover a defendant (or respondent) or a defence. There is nothing in O. 33, which can help a defendant (or a respondent) in asking for the indulgence granted to persons who wish to file suits in forma pauperis, except perhaps in cases where the defendant or respondent may, for the purposes of the suit or appeal, be regarded as a plaintiff (or an appellant). The Court has no powers to exempt a defendant or a respondent from paying the necessary Court-fee, even temporarily, when they are required to pay the same at the time when proceedings are initiated by them except perhaps when they really stand in the position of plaintiffs or appellants. A petition for review by a respondent in an appeal cannot be regarded to be in the nature of a continuation of the suit at least up to the time that it is not granted. ——O. 33, R. 1, Expl. — Construction and scope—"Means"—Subject-matter of suit—Mortgage bond—Application for leave to sue on mortgage in forma pauperis—Value of claim—If can be taken into account as assets of applicant.

The word "means" in the Explanation to O. 33, R. 1, C. P. Code, means income, estate or wealth. In estimating the means of an applicant for leave to sue in forma pauperis the subject-matter of the suit can be taken into consideration in so far as the applicant is found to be in possession of it or any portion of it. But a man cannot be said to be able to prosecute his suit, if he can only secure the wherewithal to do so by parting with his claim. The value of the claim itself, which it is sought to prosecute in forma pauperis cannot be taken into account. A person cannot be held disentitled to sue in forma pauperis merely because he has a claim, possibly a valuable claim, which he wants to prosecute as such. Where a person seeks to enforce a simple mortgage in a suit, it cannot be said that he is in possession of any portion of the subject-matter of the suit. He is only in possession of the mortgage document which, though the basis of his claim, is not the subject-matter of the suit. The claim under the mortgage cannot be taken into account as part of the assets of the applicant for permission to sue on the mortgage in forma pauperis, and his application cannot be rejected on the ground that he is not a pauper merely because his claim is a valuable claim. (Meredith, J.) MST. RAMNANDI KUER v. KUPNARAIN SINGH. 201 I.C. 13=15 R.P. 24=8 B.R. 762=23 Pat.L.T. 97=A.I.R. 1942 Pat. 290.

Cases which come under the first part of the explanation of R. 1 are not trammelled by the restriction of the second part excluding the subject-matter of the suit from consideration. In cases coming in the first category the subject-matter of the suit cannot always and of necessity be excluded from consideration. Whether it should or should not be excluded is a matter for the consideration of the Court in each case. The words "possessed of sufficient means to enable him to pay the fee" in the Explanation merely mean that he is able to pay the fee. Although a person is entitled to property it is not a realizable asset so that he cannot be said to be possessed of sufficient means when the property is out of his reach. The applicant claimed a half share in a joint family estate on the ground that he was adopted by K, the widow of one of the deceased coparceners A. The non-applicant 1 who was A's brother and non-applicant 2 who was A's son both denied the applicant's adoption and title and alleged that three fields and a kotha out of the estate were given to K for her maintenance in 1929 but that since 1939 plaintiff had taken possession of this property. The Court found that the applicant was not in possession of any part of the family property, either of the fields granted to his adoptive mother or of the remainder of the estate. His very title to be a member of the family was denied. The only interest he had was his alleged title which he had to prove in the suit which he sought to institute in forma pauperis. The lower Court held that the fact that the applicant was entitled to claim a share in the fields held by his adoptive mother did not constitute "sufficient means" and granted the application,

C. P. CODE (1908), O. 33, R. 4.

Held, that the Court was not wrong in granting the application and even if wrong it would not justify revision as the error would not amount to material irregularity. It is the bounden duty of an applicant in forma pauperis under O. 33, R 2, read with R. 5 (a), C. P. Code, to make a full and accurate verified statement about his properties. Where there is a fraudulent suppression, the fact that, if the particular asset which had come to light had been disclosed it would not have affected the question of the alleged pauperism of the applicant, has no relevance inasmuch as any intentional departure from good faith, whatever the motive might be, must lead to a dismissal of the application for leave to sue in forma pauperis. Under R. 4 of O. 33, C. P. Code, a Court is entitled to examine the applicant for leave to sue as a pauper not only as regards the property of the applicant with a view to determining whether he is or is not a pauper but also to examine him as regards the merits of claim. This examination must necessarily be directed to ascertain whether the allegations in the plaint do or do not show a cause of action for the suit. The Court is hence justified in taking into consideration the applicant's statement in addition to the plaint allegations for determining whether the applicant had a subsisting cause of action. An order rejecting the application on the ground that there is no subsisting cause of action is not revisable under S. 115. (Thomas, C.J. and Ghulam Hasan, J.) MST. ——O. 33, Rr. 7 and 15—Scope and applicability of—Dismissal of application as withdrawn after notice and prior to hearing—Second application—Maintainability.

R. 7 of O. 33, C. P. Code, contemplates an enquiry into the fact of pauperism upon the evidence that may be produced by the parties and after hearing their arguments. Until the stage contemplated by R. 7 is reached and an order is passed by the Court under that rule, the provisions of R. 15 of that order do not come into operation. The crucial test for determining the applicability of R. 15 of O 33 is whether the previous order dismissing the application for pauperism was passed under R. 7 (3) of O. 33 after satisfying the conditions laid down in that rule. Where it is prayed that a pauper application may be permitted to be withdrawn for the removal of certain formal defects and it is dismissed as withdrawn after issue of notice to the opposite party but before the actual date fixed for the hearing of the application, it cannot operate as an order refusing to allow the applicant to sue as a pauper within the meaning of R. 15 of O. 33, so as to constitute res judicata. There is no enquiry into the merits of the application, and much less any adjudication of the matter by the Court and hence a second application is maintainable (Thomas, C.J. and Ghulam Hasan, J.) UMRAO JAHAN BEGAM v. HAKIMUNNISSA. 17 Luck. 462=198 I C. 467=14 R.O. 399=1941 O. ——O. 33, R. 12—Applicability—Court passing decree making order for payment of Court-fees—Application by Government for fresh order—Competency.

R. 12 of O. 33, C. P. Code, is intended to enable the Government to ask the Court to make an order for the payment of Court fees where no such order has been made. But it does not enable the Government to dictate to the Court in what terms the order should be passed or to apply for such an order again when the Court has already made an order. R. 12 is confined in its application to cases in which there is a distinct omission to pass orders under Rr. 10 and 11 suo motu by the Court which passed the decree (Wassoodew, J.) GOVERNMENT OF BOMBAY v. BAI BAIBA KHANDABHAI. In a suit to enforce a mortgage executed with the sanction of Court by a receiver appointed under O. 40, R. 1, C.P. Even assuming that the receiver would normally represent the owners in a suit of this character, he cannot do so if collusion is proved between him and the mortgagee. Though it is a general rule that a person setting up a paramount title should be discharged from or not joined in a mortgage suit, it is not an absolute one. Questions of title may be investigated in a mortgage suit where it is necessary to give complete relief to the plaintiff or secure to him as a result of the decree in the mortgage suit, a quiet and unobstructed possession. In a suit on mortgage, a lambardar who had subsequently obtained a decree for arrears of land revenue against the property mortgaged and in execution of which he had purchased the field himself and obtained possession can be joined as a party and questions of priority in respect of land revenue and redemption of charge by mortgagee on payment could be decided in the mortgage suit. ——O. 34, R. 5—Applicability—Sale by Registrar under Chap. 27, Calcutta High Court, Original Side Rules and Orders—Procedure as to costs.

In sales by the Registrar under Chap. 27 of the Calcutta High Court Original Side Rules and Orders, the judgment-debtor seeking relief should as far as possible observe the provisions of the C. P. Code. The provisions of O. 34, R. 5 apply to sales by the Registrar. It is not necessary to deposit costs with the application by the mortgagor under O. 34, R. 5 but it is desirable that O. 34, R. 5 should be complied with as far as possible. The mortgagee can furnish an estimate of his costs which can be accepted or modified by the Court and the Court can direct that a sufficient sum should be deposited when the application under O. 34, R. 5 is made or before an order is made on the application provided the attorney of the mortgagee gives the usual undertaking to refund any balance that may ultimately be found due. But this course is unnecessary where in an application under O. 34, R. 5 both the mortgagor and the mortgagee agree that the mortgagee should retain the title deeds which were deposited as security until the costs have been taxed and the amount is paid to him. In such a case the provisions both of the Civil Procedure Code, and Original Side Rules and Orders must be taken to have been observed (McNair, J.) SHAMANGINI ROY v. MAHALAKSHI RAKSHIT. 201 I.C. 464 = 15 R.C. 203 = A.I.R. 1942 Cal. 44.

Sub-R. (3) of R. 5 of O. 34, C. P. Code, provides that where payment is not made in accordance with sub-R. (1), the Court shall on an application made by the plaintiff in this behalf pass a final decree. Sub-R. (1) provides for a payment being made into Court. As provision for an application for preparation of a final decree is made under O. 34, R. 5, it being a specific provision on that particular subject it would override the general provisions of O. 23, R. 3. Hence when an application for final decree is made on failure to deposit the decree amount in Court as provided in the preliminary decree and a payment out of Court is pleaded which is not admitted by the other side, it cannot be recognized and no inquiry as to such payment need be made. ——O. 34, Rr. 6 and 15—Applicability—Simple money decree with declaration of charge—Effect of—Procedure for sale—Suit to enforce charge—No decree made for sale—Effect—Right of decree-holder.

A charge does not create an interest in immovable property, and a declaration of a charge in a decree really does not do more than obviate the necessity for attachment of the property if and when the decree-holder chooses to proceed against that property. The charge secures the decree-holder against other creditors. In the case of a simple money decree with a declaration of charge it is open to the decree-holder to execute it in any manner allowed by law for the execution of money decrees. The decree-holder is not bound to proceed by sale of the property charged. If in a suit instituted to enforce a charge a preliminary decree for sale is passed then no doubt under O. 34, R. 6 the sale of property must precede any personal decree. But when no decree for sale was asked for by the debtor as he is entitled to do and there has been no decree for sale, and the decree passed is really a money decree with a declaration of a charge for the amount decreed, there is no room for the operation of R. 15 for the decree is not in a form contemplated by the earlier rules of O. 34. Where a preliminary decree in a suit on a mortgage against the mortgagor and a transferee of the equity provided that the 'plaintiffs shall be at liberty to apply for a personal decree for the amount' if the sale proceeds are insufficient, it was held that the liberty to apply clause did not prejudge or decide what will happen when application was made, at any rate, where the application could be against either of two (B. or C.) and must in law fail as against C. but would succeed, prima facie against B. and that it was open to the transferee of the equity to contend that he is not a person from whom the balance is recoverable. C. P. CODE (1908), O. 34, R. 14.

In a redemption action the Court is bound to give the mortgagee his costs of the suit unless the Court is of opinion that his conduct has been vexatious or unreasonable so as to disentitle him thereto. Nor can he, when his conduct was neither vexatious nor unreasonable, be made to pay the costs of the person suing for redemption. The fact that a prior mortgagee refused to accept a deposit made by a subsequent mortgagee under S. 83, T. P. Act, when it is found that the deposit under S. 83 was not full and correct and that the mortgagors were not made parties to the application under S. 83 cannot amount to vexatious or unreasonable conduct on the part of the prior mortgagee so as to disentitle him to costs in a later suit for redemption by the subsequent mortgagee. ——O. 34, R. 11—Discretion of Court—Mortgagee's inaction—Delay in suing—If ground for disallowing interest before suit.

O. 34, R. 11, C. P. Code, does not deprive the Court of its discretion to refuse interest in appropriate circumstances. ——O. 34, R. 13 (1)—Person "interested in property"—Calcutta Corporation having statutory charge for unpaid taxes—Liability to pay such taxes.

The fact that the Calcutta Corporation has a statutory charge upon the property sold for the unpaid taxes does not give them an interest in that property within the meaning of sub-S. (1) of R. 13 of O. 34, C. P. Code. The liability to pay the taxes does not rest on the mortgagee but lies on the mortgagor who is in possession of the property, and the auction-purchaser after his purchase will take the property subject to this statutory charge. The Court has, therefore, no jurisdiction to order the retention in Court of a portion of the sale proceeds in a mortgage sale for payment to the Calcutta Corporation. The only limitations which fetter the power of a mortgagor to purchase the mortgaged property are those contained in O. 34. R. 14, C. P. Code and S. 90 of the Trusts Act. The former aims at affording to the mortgagor a measure of protection against the mortgaged property being sold at a disadvantage, while the latter is much wider in scope preventing, as it does, persons standing in a special relationship to certain others, from taking advantage of their position to secure a benefit to themselves in derogation of the rights of those others. Where a mortgagee who has obtained a decree for sale of two items of mortgaged properties, the decree directing that the first property should be sold first and then only if it is necessary the second property should be sold, purchases the first property at a sale for arrears of revenue for a very low price it cannot be said that the purchase by him at such sale can be ignored either on the ground of its being prohibited by O. 34, R. 14, C. P. Code, or on the ground that the mortgagee in purchasing it is only a trustee for owner the purchaser of the second item from the mortgagor. It cannot be said that the mortgagee owes a legal duty to the purchaser of the second item which would stand in the way of his acquiring the property for himself at the revenue sale with the object of getting round the restrictions placed on him by the decree. The mortgagee decree holder is in no sense in a fiduciary position in so far as the purchaser of the second item is concerned, and in purchasing the first property he cannot be deemed to have availed himself of any special position he held. When these two conditions are not satisfied, the fact that he gains an advantage to the prejudice of the purchaser of the second item cannot afford any ground of relief to the purchaser of the second item. So long as the revenue sale is not due to any wrongful conduct on his part, there is no reason why the mortgagee should be held to be in a worse position than a stranger purchasing at the revenue sale and obtaining a clear title incapable of being assailed by anybody. When he is under no duty to pay the revenue due on the first property and when he does not scheme to bring about a default in its payment, his position is not different from that of a second mortgagee, who purchases the mortgaged property at a sale by the first mortgagee in exercise of a power of sale. The law does not, subject to certain well-known exceptions, prevent the wary and the diligent from taking advantage of their less fortunate fellowmen, if the latter do not exhibit that degree of alertness which is necessary for the protection of their interests. Where a person is granted a charge in a decree passed by a Court of competent jurisdiction, and that decree stands, he is in a better position than a person who has no title to the property in question. The fact that the official trustee as representing him is appointed receiver in a suit by him on behalf of the latter for partition does not give the latter a charge. The receiver is an officer of the Court appointed to hold the property in suit for the benefit of the person who could show a title to it. When the officer gets a decree in the suit on behalf of the person whom he represents, the latter would have no greater rights than are conferred by the decree. The fact that the party who got a charge over the property did not make the official trustee a party to his suit would not affect the validity of the charge created by a decree of a competent Court. The English rule is that when a party interested proposes himself as receiver, he is usually required to act without salary unless by consent. ——O. 40 R. 1 (1) and (2)—Relative scope—Appointment of receiver in respect of judgment-debtor's raiyati holding—Power of Court.

The general power under O. 40, R. 1 (1) is curtailed by O. 40, R. 1 (2) and therefore O. 40, R. 1 (2) is a clear bar to the appointment of a receiver of the judgment debtor's raiyati holding the sale of which is prohibited by S. 46, Chota Nagpur Tenancy Act, as the decree-holder cannot be said to have a present right to remove the judgment-debtor from the possession of the raiyati holding. Their Lordships left the question, whether O. 40, R. 1 (2), C. P. O. 40, R. 1 (2), C.P. Where the dispute is between parties to the suit or litigation, if it is just and convenient for the purpose of enforcing or carrying out the directions in a decree, a receiver may be appointed even where the party in possession is not liable to be removed. The combined effect of O. 41, R. 1 and O. 43, R. 2, C. P. Hence in an appeal from an order it is obligatory upon the appellant to file along with the memorandum of appeal a copy of the formal order also without which the appeal is clearly not competent. The provisions of O. 41, Rr. 4 and 33 are wide and give the appellate Court ample powers to pass such orders, as it may deem just and proper and necessary, to do full justice having regard to all the circumstances of the case. But these powers must not be so applied as to disregard other provisions of law, such as the Court-Fees Act and the Limitation Act. Where there is a distinct and separate decree against some defendant or persons who have not chosen to appeal, neither R. 4 nor R. 33 should be applied. In the absence of good and sufficient reasons, a right of appeal should not, after it has lapsed, be handed out gratuitously to persons who have themselves neglected to avail of it, especially when they have not asked for it, and the interests of the case do not require it for the purpose of doing justice to the persons who have appealed. The provisions of O. 22, R. 3, C. P. Code, are not qualified by O. 41, R. 4, C. P. Code. O. 41, R. 4 does not apply to a case where all the plaintiffs and all the defendants are not alive, and it gives no power to a Court to vary or reverse a decree in favour of a person who is dead and whose legal representative has not been brought on the record. An appellate Court hearing an appeal from an order refusing to set aside an exparte decree under O. 9, R. 3, C. P. Code, cannot order stay of execution of the decree itself. O. 41, R. 5, C.P. Code, does not apply and it is not therefore competent to the appellate Court to stay proceedings in execution of a decree merely by reason of an appeal having been preferred from the order of the trial Court refusing to set aside the decree passed ex-parte. If the appellate Court in such a case orders stay of execution of the decree, it is wholly without jurisdiction and is null and void. If execution is proceeded with and a sale takes place in spite of the illegal order of stay, the sale cannot be held to be illegal or without jurisdiction. The sale is valid and will stand. O. 41, R. 14 lays down the procedure as to the service of notice on the respondents and the proviso added by the Peshawar Chief Court makes it possible for the appellate Court to dispense with the service of notice on those respondents who were not interested in the result of the appeal. Beyond this the rule does not go. It does not necessarily lead to the conclusion that all the persons who were parties to the suit should de rigueur be made parties to the appeal. There is no provision of law which denies to the appellant the right to implead only those persons whom he considers necessary and proper for the appeal. An application under O. 41, R. 19 is the only way in which an order under O. 41, R. 18 can be questioned, except possibly in revision. Under O. 41, R. 19 the Court is given no discretion. Where the necessary proof is forthcoming, the Court is bound to readmit the appeal. It is a condition of the Court readmitting the appeal that, the appellant's 'excuse' has to be 'proved and the Court has to be satisfied that his excuse, constituted a 'sufficient cause' why he did not do what he ought to have done. O. 41, R. 19, C. P. Code, does not exhaust the powers of the Court in a proper case to re-admit an appeal or an application dismissed for default or want of prosecution. The Court has inherent powers under S. 151, C. P. Code, to make an order restoring an appeal or application for the ends of justice or to prevent an abuse of the process of the Court, without any reference to the period of limitation fixed for applications to re-admit appeals or to restore any other proceeding dismissed for default. Where an appeal is dismissed for non-prosecution, for failure of the appellant to deposit within time the costs for the preparation of the paper book of the appeal the Court can under its inherent powers under S. 151, C. The words 'have not been decided by it' in O. 41, R. 23, C. P. Code as amended by the Allahabad High Court must be taken to mean 'have not been properly decided by it'. Where an appellate Court sets aside a decree dismissing a suit on the ground that an issue had not been properly tried by the trial Court and remands that issue for retrial after reframing it, it is a remand under the Code and not under the Court's inherent jurisdiction and is hence appealable. R. 23-A of O. 41 as amended, does not offend against S. 128, C. P. Code; it is not in any way inconsistent with S. 151 or any other provision in the body of the Code. S. 104 permits appeals not only from orders mentioned in R. (1) of O. 43 as originally enacted but also from rules as might thereafter be added by the High Court under S. 122, after following the procedure laid down in Part X. Accordingly, if the High Court adds a rule to O. 43, making an order appealable, which was not appealable formerly, such rule is automatically covered by S. 104. ——O 41, R. 27—Additional evidence in appeal—Admission—Recording of reasons—Necessity.

Under O. 41, R. 27, C. P. Code, additional evidence can no doubt be admitted by an appellate Court but this can be done only under certain restrictions and whenever additional evidence is admitted the Court has to record the reasons for its admission. A failure to so record would render the evidence admitted liable to be excluded. (Sathe, J. M.) CHOKAT SINGH v. CHULHI. 1942 O A (Supp.) 376 (2) =1942 A.W.R. (Rev.) 350 (2) = 1942 O.W.N. (B R.) 564 = 1942 R.D. 692.

——O 41, R. 27—Admission of additional evidence in second appeal—Document purposely withheld to avoid penalty under Stamp Act—Subsequent validation of document—Document if admitted likely to make applicant succeed in the case—Considerations if sufficient for its being admitted.

Where the reasons given by a party for failing to produce the document in question in the trial Court were false, and deliberately false, the fact that the document, if admitted, would go far to prove that party's case and the fact that since the decision of the lower appellate Court the document had been validated by the payment of stamp duty and penalty cannot prevail against the consideration that the document was deliberately withheld in order to avoid penalties and possible prosecution, and that false evidence was submitted in respect of the non-production of the document at an earlier stage and also false evidence in the suit regarding the dates on which the debts were incurred—false evidence which would have been unnecessary had the document been produced. Under those circumstances the document sought to be admitted in the lower appellate Court and refused by it was also refused to be admitted in second appeal. (Grille, J.) GANESHPRASAD v. MST. RAMBAT BAI. I L R (1942) Nag. 369=201 I.C. 550=15 R N, 52=1942 N.L.J. 248=A.I.R. 1942 Nag 92.

——O. 41. R. 27—Application for admission of additional evidence—Proper disposal.

When an application for the admission of additional evidence in appeal is made, it is incumbent on the appellate Court to pass definite orders either admitting or rejecting the additional evidence tendered. An order of a routine nature by the clerk that the papers will remain with the file is altogether insufficient to dispose of the application. (Shirreff S M. and Sathe, J.M.) CHONHAR KALWAR v MADHO PRASAD. 1942 A.W. R (Rev) 353=1942 O A. (Supp.) 379=1942 O.W. N. (B R) 577=1942 R D 705.

——O. 41, R. 27—Discretion of Court—Acceptance of documents.

The acceptance of the documents under R. 27 of O. 41 is a matter of discretion. Where a large number of spurious documents have been produced on behalf of a party and that party's agents had no scruples in tampering with the evidence, it cannot be said that the discretion has not been rightly exercised by the appellate Court in not accepting them in evidence. (R. C. Mitter, Khundkar and Pal, JJ.) BIBHABATI DEVI v. RAMENDRA NARAYAN ROY. 202 I C 551=15 R.C 355=47 C W.N. 9=A.I.R. 1942 Cal. 498 (S.B.).

——O. 41, R. 27—Document for which there was no occasion to produce—Admissibility in second appeal.

A document for the production of which no occasion arose in the trial Court can be admitted in second appeal under O. 41, R. 27, C. P. Code, when it is considered that its production and admission is necessary to enable the second appellate Court to pronounce judgment (Shirreff, S.M. and Sathe, J.M.) MST. KHUSHALO v. CHUNNILAL. 1942 R D. 723=1942 O.A. (Supp.) 404=1942 O.W.N. (B.R.) 595=1942 A.W.R. (Rev.) 378.

——O. 41, R. 27—Documents not taken in—Formal order giving reasons—If necessary.

No formal order giving reasons need be recorded by the appellate Court for not taking certain documents. The law requires such an order only when documents rejected by the trial Court are received in evidence by the appellate Court. (*R. C. ——O. 41, R. 27—Grounds for admission—Sufficiency.

The fact that the documents in question were above suspicion and that the opposite side could not adduce any valid reasons for their not being admitted, are not sufficient grounds to justify their admission under O. 41, R. 27, C. ——O. 41, R. 28—Question of issuing commission arising only in appellate stage—Proper procedure for appellate Court.

Where no question of issuing a commission in a suit arose in the trial Court at all and it is only at the appellate stage that the question arises, the appellate Court should adopt the procedure prescribed by O 41, R. 28, C P. Code. It should either issue a commission itself or direct the trial Court to issue the commission and, after the return of the commission, it should take into consideration the commissioner's report. The Appellate Court should not set aside the decree of the trial Court and remand the case for a fresh consideration by that Court after giving the plaintiff an opportunity of applying for a commission. Where an appellate Court merely sets forth the arguments of both sides in its judgment and then decides that the arguments of one side must prevail simply because the counsel for that side promised to put his client in the Box to make a particular statement and the relief which that party is given is not even stated, there is no judgment in law. Non-compliance with the strict provisions of R. 31 of O. 41 may not vitiate the judgment and make it wholly void The irregularity may be ignored if there has been a substantial compliance with it and the second appellate Court is in a position to ascertain the findings of the lower appellate Court. The word "parties" in O. 41, R. 33, C P. Code, is wide enough to include persons who were parties to the suit in the trial Court, but were not parties to the appeal. Where the trial Court had dismissed a suit against some of the defendants without costs and decreed it against the rest, in an appeal by the latter the appellate Court has power to decree costs incurred by the former in the trial Court. although they have not filed any appeal or cross-objection and are not parties to the appeal. ——O. 47, R. 1—Applicability—Principles governing relief—Facts to be proved by applicant.

Applications under O. 47, R. 1, C. P. Code must be treated with a considerable measure of caution. That is a matter of public policy as it is obviously necessary that, save in exceptional circumstances, finality in litigation should be achieved at some point. It is a proper principle in applications for review that the person who wants it should at least prove strictly the diligence he claims to have exercised and also that the matter or evidence which he wishes to have access to is, if not absolutely conclusive, at any rate, nearly conclusive of the matter. It is not the proper function of a review application merely to supplement evidence. It is not a proper use of O. 47, R. 1, to make it serve the purpose of merely introducing evidence which might possibly have had some effect on the result. It has to go a good deal further than that. A review application can be granted by a Tahsildar only on any one of the grounds mentioned in O. 47, R. 1 C. P. Code. ——Sch. II, para. 1—Applicability—Appeal from preliminary decree in partition suit—Application by parties to appellate Court for reference to arbitration pending appeal—Competency—Jurisdiction to make reference.

The procedure laid down in Sch. II, C. P. Code, is not inapplicable to an appellate Court and an application for reference to arbitration under Sch. II, C. P. Code, may therefore be made to an appellate Court as well as to a Court of original jurisdiction. An application for reference to arbitration made to a Court before which an appeal from a preliminary decree in a partition suit is pending is therefore competent, and the appellate Court has jurisdiction to refer the matters in dispute to arbitration. ——Sch. II, Para. 3—Scope—Power of Court to compel party to refer to arbitration matter not agreed to be referred.

While para. 3 restricts the limitation on the Court's power in the case of matters referred to arbitration, it does not thereby give the Court power to compel one of the parties to go to arbitration on a matter which he has not agreed shall be referred. There is no provision in the schedule which enables a Court directly or indirectly, to force a party to refer a matter in dispute. Hence a Court has no power to nullify a reference lawfully made by an addition, to the matter referred, of some other

Where proceedings before an arbitrator has gone on for some time, the evidence has been closed and the case is ready for arguments and giving of the decision, and the arbitrator who had only obtained two former extensions of time for filing the award applies only for one more fortnight's time, it is an arbitrary exercise of jurisdiction to refuse it and supersede the arbitration and thereby cause grave miscarriage of justice. ——Sch. II, para. 10—Filing of award—What amounts to.

The mere handing over of an award with the reader, in the absence of the Judge on leave, is not filing it in Court. An award cannot be said to be "filed in Court" within the meaning of Sch. ——Sch. II, para. 20—Award—Validity—Partition suit—Reference to arbitration—Procedure—Piece-meal inquiry—If invalidates award.

If in a partition suit a reference is made of the whole matter to an arbitrator with directions to make an award, the arbitrator would not be empowered to make a series of awards each dealing with one branch of the dispute as on the making of an award he would be functus officio, and would have no power to do anything further. But an arbitrator dealing with a complicated partition dispute would not be debarred from taking up an inquiry piece-meal, classifying the evidence according to the subject-matter more or less under issues just as a Court would do, and arriving at tentative conclusions on each section of the case, always provided that he does not make anything in the nature of an award in writing until the whole matter is decided. The arbitrator in a partition inquiry must decide firstly what are the properties available for decision before he can proceed to decide how those properties should be divided. The apportionment of the debts would often depend upon the apportionment of the lands and it is therefore almost inevitable that the arbitration in such a case should proceed piece meal. There is consequently nothing wrong in the procedure of the arbitrator in that manner, unless he can be deemed to have made a final and formal award at any of the stages before he makes the final award. The procedure in deciding the various sections of the inquiry piece-meal and summing them up in one final award cannot therefore be regarded as amounting to the giving of several awards so as to render his decision invalid. ———Purchase of own shares—Legality—Vendor—Right of to have name removed from register of shares—Companies Act, S. 184—Company—If estopped from pleading invalidity of purchase by reason of representation of officers that purchase was for constituents—Rule.

A limited company by its very constitution is prohibited from purchasing its own shares, whether such purchase is authorised by the memorandum of its association or not, the purchase is void and illegal. The legal incapacity of a company to purchase its own shares is not dependent upon the fact of the purchase being made either within or outside the territorial limits of the place where the company is incorporated, but it is beyond the scope of its constitution. If a company therefore purchases its own shares, no matter where, a member who has sold his shares to the company cannot claim to be removed from the register of shareholders under S. 184 of the Companies Act because the purchase by the company must be deemed to have been not validly made as it is ultra vires of the company. On the strength of such a transaction the vendor is not entitled to have his name removed from the register and to have the vendee's name put instead. If a company purchases its own shares, the effect is that in law the vendor does not cease to be the legal owner of the shares, and his liability as a member contributory in respect of unpaid calls is not thereby extinguished, even if the sale and purchase be effected outside the state or territory where the company is incorporated. Nor is the company estopped from pleading the invalidity of the purchase or that the purchase was for itself and not for a constituent by reason of representations made by its officers to the vendor, even if it be a foreign company. A company cannot be bound by estoppel to do something beyond its powers. In such a case the remedy, if at all, can only be against the officers who made the representation on the faith of which the contracts were entered into. ———Winding up—Application by shareholder—What applicant has to prove—Discretion of Court - Exercise of—Principles governing—Interference with internal management of company—Rule.

A shareholder applying for an order winding up a company is under no disability as compared with a contributory and he is under no obligation to satisfy the Court that on a winding up there would be surplus assets. But in exercising its discretion in winding up a company on the petition of a shareholder, the Court constantly bears in mind that the internal management of the Compaay is its own concern, and it is a much better judge of business prospects of trading venture than the Court can ever hope to be. If, therefore, the majority of the shareholders show confidence in the management of the company and have faith in its future prospects, the Court will rarely interfere. It is not right for the Court to intervene because one shareholder is dissatisfied. An applicant for winding up has got to make out a case for winding up on his petition, and he cannot be allowed to fish out a case by cross examination of the deponents who have made affidavits on behalf of the company or by inspecting the accounts. S. 109 (e) of the Companies Act clearly contemplates that there can be a mortgage which is also a pledge; the words "not being a pledge" must be held to have been inserted in S. 109 (e) with the object of providing that registration should not be necessary where the person entitled to the security has obtained possession of the goods. Though a transaction may amount to a mortgage, when there are all the requirements of a valid pledge, it is a pledge as well and hence does not require registration under S. 109 (e). The difference between a mortgage and a pledge is that in the case of a mortgage the ownership of goods passes, whereas in the case of a pledge the pledgee gets possession, but no right to the goods beyond what is necessary to secure the debt. On 5-2-1938, the appellant placed with the respondent company (a bank) a sum of Rs. 3,000 on fixed deposit. The bank was not able to repay the amount on the due date as it was in financial difficulties and offered to indorse to the appellant five promissory notes as security for its indebtednese to him. The appellant agreed to this course and the arrangement was embodied in a document dated 29—6—1939, which was not, however, registered with the Registrar of Joint Stock Companies under S. 109 of the Companies Act. Under the document the bank, which was referred to as the borrower, was to transfer by endorsement to the appellant, who was referred to as the lender, the promissory notes by way of security for the principal and interest due to him by the bank. It was provided that the appellant should be at liberty to collect the amounts due on the promissory notes and to credit the net realisations towards the amount due by the bank; it was further provided that on payment to the appellant of any balance due to him he should re-transfer to the bank such of the promissory notes as may be outstanding. The appellant thus became entitled to realise the securities as and how he pleased. The promissory notes which were executed to the bank by its debtors of the face value of Rs. 4,476 13-3 were indorsed to the appellant and delivered to him. Suits were instituted by the appellant against the makers of the promissory notes and the net realisations amounted to Rs. 1,173-3-9. On 2—11—1939, there was an order by the High Court for the compulsory winding up of the bank, and on 20—2—1941, the Official Liquidator applied to have the agreement between the bank and the appellant declared void for non registration and to call on the appellant to pay over to him the moneys collected by the appellant and to indorse the instruments to the Official Liquidator.

Held, that the transaction amounted to a bailment of the promissory notes as security for the payment of the debt due to the appellant by the bank, that all the requirements for a valid pledge were fulfilled, and being a pledge, it did not require registration, though it might amount to a mortgage. In an application for winding up a company, the Court will not investigate into conduct of the directors or consider whether they have exceeded their borrowing powers given to them under the articles of association. A company is said to be commercially insolvent when its assets are such, and its existing liabilities are such, as to make it reasonably certain—as to make the Court feel satisfied—that the existing and probable assets would be insufficient to meet the existing liabilities. The decisive test is whether at the date of the presentation of the winding up petition there was any reasonable hope that the object of trading at a profit, with a view to which the company was formed, could be attained. It is for the applicant to prove and to satisfy the Court that there is no such reasonable hope. (Chagla, J.) In re THE CINE INDUSTRIES & RECORDING CO., LTD. 203 I.C. 116=1942 Comp. ——S. 162 (v) and (vi)—Winding up—Grounds—Misconduct or mismanagement of directors—Company working at a loss—If per se grounds for winding up—Substratum of company—When deemed to be gone.

The mere fact that the Court is of opinion that the business of a company cannot be carried on, or probably will not be carried on, in a successful manner is not sufficient ground for winding up. So, again, mere misconduct or mismanagement on the part of the directors, even though it might be such as to justify a suit against them in respect of such misconduct or mismanagement is not of tself sufficient to justify a winding up order. The substratum of the company is deemed to be gone when (a) the subject matter of the company is gone, or (b) the object for which it was incorporated has substantially failed, or (c) it is impossible to carry on the business of the company except at a loss, in other words there is no reasonable hope that the object of trading at a profit can be attained, or (d) the existing and probable assets are insufficient to meet the existing liabilities. It is impossible to say that the assets are insufficient to meet the existing liabilities when no creditor is pressing for payment of his debt. It would not be just and equitable for the Court to make a winding up order on the grounds merely that the directors were guilty of misconduct and that the business has been carried on at a heavy loss. These are per se not grounds on which a winding up could be ordered. (Chagla, J.) In re THE CINE INDUSTRIES & RECORDING CO., LTD. 203 I.C. 116=1942 Comp. An application was made by one P, as guardian of his minor daughter for shares in a company and the company issued shares to and registered shares in the name of the daughter, describing her as a minor. When the company went into liquidation, the Official Liquidator claimed against the minor for contribution, but she, through her father and guardian, set up her minority and disclaimed personal responsibility. The Official Liquidator then claimed that her father, P who signed the application must be deemed to have contracted for the shares and should be placed on the list of contributories. There was no suggestion that the company were unaware of the daughter's minority; on the other hand they knew that they were being invited to contract with a minor and thought fit to contract with the minor. There was nothing on record to show that the father had at any time intended to become a subscriber of the company and there was no evidence that any of his money was used for the purpose.

Held, (1) that the contract was void in law. On the face of it, the contract was made by both sides under complete misapprehension as to the law, but no misapprehension as to the facts. The father P could not be held to have contracted under an alias and could not

When there has been a valid call prior to liquidation and the date for its payment has passed, it becomes a debt due from the shareholder to the company and is just like any other debt. When subsequently the company goes into liquidation, that debt becomes an asset of the company which have to be realised by the liquidator. It has lost its character as a call has become a debt and as such is realisable by the liquidator as any other debt or asset. So long as justice can be done to a creditor without disturbing the dividend already declared or paid, there is no reason why he should be prevented from getting his dividend merely because of failure to file proof of claim within the time limited by the notice under R 83 of the Rules framed by the Madras High Court under the Companies Act. The delay in filing the affidavit of proof of a claim can be excused under R. 91 of the rules. On a literal reading of R. 91, as it now stands, it would seem that unless a creditor satisfies the Court that owing to ignorance or want of notice he did not file proof of his debt, his claim cannot be admitted. It is desirable that R. 91 should be amended on the lines of R. 65 of the English Bankruptcy Act or S. 72 of the Presidency Towns Insolvency Act, as it would be in consonance with the provisions of Ss. 191 and 229 of the Companies Act. security for the fulfilment of their obligations under the ag reement appointing them. They were to get interest on it and to have a second charge on the machinery and other assets of the company. Winding up of the company was ordered. The managing agents claimed that their deposit was a trust fund and not assets of the company and should be returned to them. In negativing such contention it was held that the fair test whether such a sum of money was to be held as a trust fund or not was to ask whether, in the circumstances, it was intended that it should remain a segregated fund, or whether it should, on payment, become the property of the company and be compensated for by the company's express or implied covenant to repay it, in exactly the same way as the customer's deposit in a bank creates the relationship of debtor and creditor. It was further held that the circumstances that it passed into the general assets of the company and was utilised by them for their general expenses and that interest was to be paid on it and that it was to be a second charge on the machinery, etc., of the company, clearly indicated that it was never intended to be kept aside in trust for the managing agents. CONTEMPT OF COURT—Chamber proceedings in High Court relating to appointment of guardian ad litem—Publication in newspaper without leave of Judge—If contempt.

The publication of a proceeding in Chamber in the High Court is not permitted without the express leave of the Judge, and if a newspaper does so, it amounts to contempt of Court. Proceedings relating to the appointment of a guardian ad litem of a minor are proceedings relating to a ward of Court, and if they are published in a newspaper without the express leave of the Judge that would amount to contempt. ———Motive—Relevancy.

In cases of contempt the question of motive is irrelevant; what the Court has to consider is the effect—the probable effect of the publication. Motive of the contemner cannot be considered in determining his guilt; it may, however, be a proper criterion for awarding punishment. ———Nature of jurisdiction—Decision to appoint receiver without actual appointment of one—Subsequent collection and disposal of funds by person aware of order or party to proceedings—If amounts to contempt—Applicability of equitable rule of deeming that to be done which ought to be done—Disposal of moneys collected as rent—If disturbance of possession of receiver appointed to collect rents.

The jurisdiction to deal with people for contempt of Court is quasi-criminal and the Court has no right to punish people merely because it might disapprove of what they do, if their conduct does not clearly bring them within the four walls of some offence known to law. Where the Court comes to a decision that it will appoint a Receiver but does not name any officer or individual as receiver, it is not a contempt of Court for a person who knows that that decision has been arrived at even if he is a party to the proceedings who knows—to collect and disburse moneys which it is intended are to fall within the powers of the Receiver. It cannot be said that for a party bound by a judgment to do anything which will make that judgment ineffective, is in itself a contempt of Court. The equitable rule of deeming that to be done which ought to be done could not apply to such case, for it could not be imported into the realms of criminal or quasi-criminal law. Where a Receiver is appointed among other things to collect rents, there is no disturbance of his possession when there is a disposal of moneys already collected as rent, for such moneys are not moneys of which the Receiver is appointed receiver. The word 'rent', in its proper sense, ceases to be such when it is paid by a tenant to a person authorized by the landlord to give a good discharge for it. (Blagden, J.) S. P. L. P. Where an editorial comment based upon a news item contained a clear insinuation that the Chief Justice had issued a circular to all Judicial officers to raise contributions from litigants and others to the war fund it was held that the implication was that the Chief Justice had done something which was unworthy of a person holding that High Office, and that as the head and representative of the High Court he had committed the gross impropriety of forcing the Judicial officers subordinate to the High Court to ask for war contributions from litigants and that the probable effect of the news item would be to impair the authority of the High Court to lower its dignity and prestige and seriously to shake public confidence in the administration of justice. It was held further that the publication of an editorial comment calculated to have the above effect was a clear contempt of Court. ———Newspaper article—Statement suggesting that there was not and could not be proper judicial trial when magistrate knew that Government had instituted prosecution—Contempt of subordinate Court—Liability to punishment.

The editor of a newspaper, who was convicted of having published in his newspaper an obscene advertisement, published a leading article in his newspaper in the course of which he said: "The prosecution clearly stated that the case was filed as the result of 'correspondence from Government,' but with the blessings of the magistrate, refused to produce the correspondence and the statement had to go uncontested. Without meaning any disrespect, we doubt whether in any case where opinions count, any Subordinate Magistrate will give a judgment contrary to what he believes the Government of the day has decided. The fate of this case was sealed the minute the Police told the Magistrate that the Government was behind the prosecution."

Held, that the passage suggested that there was not and there could not be any proper judicial trial, that the proceedings before the Magistrate were an empty formality, that the Magistrate had made up his mind to convict the accused even before the trial was over with a view to conform to what he believed to be the wishes of the Government; in other words, once the Magistrate knew that the Government had instituted the prosecution, there was bound to be a conviction, and the article amounted to a gross contempt of Court, and the contempt was so grave that the High Court could not allow

An allegation that a Judge hearing a case has prejudged on issue of fact, before any evidence whatever has been called on either side, is to charge the Judge with grossly improper conduct. It means that the Judge has some outside knowledge. When a solicitor makes such an allegation in a letter written by him to another solicitor, the inevitable result would be that public confidence in the judiciary would be shaken. The provisions of the Code of Criminal Procedure are not applicable to summary proceedings taken for punishing a contempt. But even if S. 344 of the Code be applicable, the Court will not be disposed to adjourn the proceedings in a case where the Court is scandalised and an attempt is made by a scurrilous publication to undermine and impair the authority of the Court, as immediate action is necessary with a view to vindicate the authority of the Court. In a proceeding for contempt of Court, it is not open to a contemner to show that the allegations are true. Any attempt to justify a libel on a Judge by attempting to show that the libel was justified would itself be a fresh contempt. A contemner who has been called upon to show cause why he should not be punished for an attack on the Court or its judges does not occupy the position of a defendant in a libel action, where he may plead or prove justification or the position of an accused person in a prosecution for defamation. ———Proceedings for—Forum—Practice—Cr. P. Code, S. 556.

S. 556, Cr. P. Code, does not apply to summary proceedings taken for punishing a contempt. In such a case the practice has been for the Judges who have been defamed to hear the case and to state in their judgment the facts within their knowledge or their reasons for taking a particular course of action. While it is unpleasant for any Judge to have to sit in judgment in a case in which he has been personally attacked, it is his duty to do so where he has been the subject of a malicious and impudent publication containing imputations which are obviously false and of the falsity of which he himself has the best knowledge. In fact he has no alternative but to sit as it is impossible to vindicate the reputation of the Court which has been attacked by taking proceedings in any Court for libel or otherwise. The sole object of these summary proceedings is to vindicate the prestige of the Court. They are not to establish the position of an individual Judge. In order to found a legal claim for commission there must not only be a causal, there must also be a contractual relation between the introduction and ultimate transaction of sale. If a person has a general employment to find purchasers for a certain party and thereafter introduces a customer which results in several contracts, he will no doubt be entitled to his brokerage because he has implemented his contract by giving the introduction. If on the other hand he introduces a customer for the specific purpose of effecting a particular transaction of sale and earns his brokerage, he is not entitled to any further remuneration, however many contracts the parties may conclude thereafter, (Derbyshire, C.J. and McNair, J.) STANDARD COAL CO., LTD. v. VALARSHAK. 46 C.W.N. 119.

Where a contract of agency between an Insurance Company and an Insurance agent says that the agent is to place with the Insurance Company "completed business" of specified amounts in order to be entitled to commission, the expression "completed business" being explained in the contract itself as meaning such business as is accepted by the company and on which the first year's premium has been received in full, it must be held that the contract speaks of "completed business" merely in order to exclude business that might come to nothing from the point of view of the company, and the requirement that the agent is to place with the company "completed business" does not preclude commission in those cases in which such business is substantially due to the work of the agent, though its technical completion, such as the signing of the policy and so on may be actually brought by another person and not by the agent. CONTRACT.

If the parties to a building contract choose to agree to abide by the certificate of an architect whom they have named in the agreement, then they must accept the decision of the architect, however wrong and erroneous it may be. A final certificate given by the architect can be challenged by the owner of the building only on three grounds, viz., fraud, collusion or misconduct on the part of the architect. If there is an arbitration clause in the contract and if there are pending disputes between the parties, then the power given to the architect under the terms of the contract to give a final certificate comes to an end, and the architect can only act under the arbitration clause as arbitrator and cannot act as a certifier. But the mere fact that the contract provides for the decision of the architect being made a rule of the Court would not alter his capacity in giving his decision, which is not judicial, but administrative; nor would his decision be an award. Nor can the certificate be attacked on the ground that it is not in proper form. The law does not make it necessary for the architect to issue his final certificate in any prescribed form. All that is required is that it should give clear intimation to the owner what is the amount finally due and payable by him under the contract. CONTRACT.

———Contract by correspondence—Formal execution of document contemplated—Parties acting upon contract—Execution of formal document—If necessary.

Where the documents or letters relied on as constituting a contract contemplate the execution of a further contract between the parties, it is a question of construction whether the execution of the further contract is a condition or term of the bargain, or whether it is a mere expression of the desire of the parties as to the manner in which the transaction already agreed to will in fact go through. In the former case, there is no enforceable contract either because the condition is unfulfilled or because the law does not recognize a contract to enter into a contract. In the latter case, there is binding contract and the reference to the more formal document may be ignored. The conduct of the parties in acting upon the contract before the formal agreement was drawn up is the clearest evidence of this fact. CONTRACT.

One of the clauses of a contract was as follows:—"You or your agents are not to be held responsible for non delivery of the goods by the makers or any loss or inconvenience that may originate by fulfilment of these goods. Delivery of the above goods is subject to storms, fire, war, tempest, flood, drought, strikes, lock-outs, bankruptcy, accidents and such other causes beyond human control. It is also understood that this indent is null and void in case goods are not shipped or you do not supply for any cause whatsoever without assigning any reason."

Held, (i) that the inclusion of the word 'whatsoever' in the last paragraph excluded the application of the rule of 'ejusdem generis' when interpreting the meaning of the sentence in which the word appeared, that the provision in the last paragraph was intended and it did intend to cover every possible reason for non-supply and non-shipment, and in the event of the defendant failing to supply the goods, then the indent was to be null and void and that consequently the defendants could not be held responsible for loss which might be occasioned to the plaintiff through failing to obtain delivery of the goods specified in the indent; (ii) that there was nothing which prevented the parties to a contract including a term in it to the effect that the party who was obliged to deliver the goods should not be liable for non-delivery. The defendants wrote to the plaintiff as follows:—"We beg to inform you without any engagement on our part that your under-mentioned valued indent has been placed with thanks."

Held, that the contract between the parties was one of sale and purchase, and that the defendants did not merely act as correspondents passing on the plaintiff's order to persons abroad. (Gentle, J.) RADHAKISSEN MULL v. SOHANLAL MOHANLAL. 47 C.W N. 86.

Held, that if the conditions of sale contained nothing more than a covenant by the purchaser of the business to pay the debts of the business, a creditor of the business could not enforce the covenant as against the purchaser but that the charge created on the business gave the creditor an equitable right as against the purchaser and the assets of the business in his hands. CONTRACT ACT (IX OF 1872), S. 2—Consideration—Promise to afford future personal service, if good consideration—Impossibility of enforcing specific performance, if renders contract bad.

There is nothing in S. 2 of the Contract Act to show that a promise to afford future personal service is not good consideration. In most cases where personal services are promised on the one side specific performance cannot be enforced from the other. Neither the mere fact that specific performance of such a contract cannot be enforced nor the mere fact that in the nature of things one of the promisors is bound to perform his part of the agreement first, renders the contract bad. So long as there is a promise coming from each side and each side promises a thing which can be done, and can legally be done there is consideration. ——S. 23—Applicability—Agreement by agent exceeding his powers.

Where a statute prescribes no penalties an agreement in breach of a condition imposed under powers given by it does not fall under S. 23, Contract Act, and where a condition is imposed under statute purely for administrative purposes an agreement in violation thereof is not void. Hence where a Cantonment Board agrees to confer on a person 'old grant' rights in land in the Cantonment area, there is nothing unlawful about it, but only a doubt as to whether the Board had the power to do so. It is really a case of an agent exceeding his authority and the principal not repudiating his action. Even if there is ground for considering whether S. 23 is applicable on the view that the agent's powers were circumscribed by law and that he acted ultra vires, the section would not be applicable because the consideration or object of the agreement is neither forbidden by any statute nor is of such a nature that, if permitted, it would defeat the provisions of any statute (Bennett and Agarwal, JJ.) TAJAMMUI HUSAIN v. THE CANTONMENT BOARD LUCKNOW. 203 I.C. 555=1942 O.A. 558=1942 A.W R. ——S. 25—Scope and applicability—Agreement to pay time-barred debt, when not affected by S. 25 (3)—Mere implied promise to pay, if enough—Effect of express promise to pay interest on debt acknowledged.

S. 25 of the Contract Act only applies to contracts which are wholly without consideration and not to contracts which may be for inadequate consideration. Indeed under Expln. (2) of S. 25 inadequacy of consideration is not relevant unless it affects the question of free consent to contract. It is true that under S. 25 (3), Contract Act, an agreement to pay a time-barred debt is regarded as one without consideration but this sub section only applies when a wholly gratuitous promise is made to pay a time-barred debt and not to those cases when a promise to pay a time-barred debt is made for some consideration though the consideration might be inadequate. When a new contract is made for a fresh consideration superseding the previous contract which had become barred by time but including it as a part consideration in the new contract, an action could be founded upon the new contract and it can be enforced in its terms without raising any question about the acknowledgment of a time-barred debt. An express promise to pay is not necessary in the case of an agreement to pay a time-barred debt and an implied promise would satisfy the requirements of S. 25 (3). An express promise to pay interest on the debt acknowledged would reasonably include a promise for payment of principal also. (Baipai and Dar, JJ.) DEBI PRASAD v. BHAGWATI PRASAD. 1942 A.W.R. ——S. 30—Wager—Essence of bet.

The essence of a bet is that both parties agree that they will pay and receive respectively on the happening of an event in which they have no material interest. The transaction may be cloaked behind the forms of genuine commercial transactions; but to establish the bet it is necessary to prove that the documents are but a cloak and that neither party intended them to have any effective legal operation. Where the documents show an ordinary commercial transaction, and in conformity with them one of the parties incurs personal obligations on a genuine transaction with third parties so that he himself is not a winner or loser by the alteration of price, but can only benefit by his commission, the inference of betting is irresistibly destroyed. In such cases the fact that no delivery is required or tendered is of practically no value. The Court is entitled, if not bound, to regard the course of dealing between the parties in such case as a reliable indication of what their real intentions were. ——S. 65—Provisions when come into play—Agreement void ab initio—Limitation—Starting point.

The provisions of S. 65, Contract Act came into play when an agreement is discovered to be void or when a contract becomes void. When an agreement is void in its inception it is ordinarily to be considered to have been discovered to be void at the time when parties entered into it. Hence a suit to recover money advanced under S. 65 of the Contract Act in respect of a void mortgage has to be brought within some period beginning from the execution of the agreement of mortgage. All the conditions of S. 70 of the Contract Act having been fulfilled, the Government would be entitled to recover contribution. Though under the English law, the defendant would not be liable, the provisions of S. 70 of the Indian Contract Act are wider than the English law, and therefore the defendant is liable under S. 70. ——S. 72—Applicability—Money paid under mistake—Knowledge—Carelessness of payer—Effect—Privity between payer and payee—If essential.

S. 72 of the Contract Act is unambiguous, and under that section, if money is paid to a person by mistake, he is bound to repay it. There is nothing in S. 72 to suggest that it should only be applied when there is privity between the payer and the payee. G, falsely representing himself to be the real owner of a certain house and land, induced the appellant to lend him Rs. 2000 on a mortgage of the property. The real owner had no knowledge of the fraud. Again falsely representing himself to be the real owner, G, afterwards induced the respondent to advance Rs. 3,500 on a second mortgage of the property. Out of the Rs. 3,500 which the respondent agreed to advance, she was to pay to the apellant Rs. 2,000 in discharge of the 1st mortgage. Believing that G was the real owner and that the appellant was a first mortgagee of the property the respondent paid to her the Rs. 2,000. When the fraud was discovered the respondent instituted a suit to recover from the appellant Rs. 2,000 as a payment made in mistake of facts.

Held, that the money having been paid under the impression of the truth of a fact which was untrue, it could be recovered back, however careless the party paying might have been in omitting to use diligence to inquire into the facts. The receiver (appellant) was not entitled to the money nor intended to have it.

Held, further, that assuming that there should be privity between the payer and the payee that condition was fulfilled in the present case; though the appellant was not a mortgagee, she regarded herself as a mortgagee, and the respondent also thought that she was a second mortgagee discharging a first mortgage. The Explanation to S. 73 of the Contract Act seems to cast a burden upon the person complaining of the breach of contract to show that he did not possess the means of remedying the inconvenience caused by the non performance of the contract. ——S. 74—Applicability—Deposit to secure performance of contract—Deposit not made or required by contract—If liable to be forfeited.

The provisions of S. 74 of the Contract Act do not apply to a deposit of money made to secure or guarantee the performance of a contract. Such a deposit can, therefore, be forfeited upon the failure of the depositor to perform the contract within time or that amount is not unreasonable, although no damage is proved. The fact that a party has not paid the security deposit required by the contract does not affect the question of his liability to forfeit the amount required to be deposited, as he cannot be in a better position by reason of his own default than if he had fulfilled his obligations. ——Ss. 124 and 125—Scope—If exhaustive—Indemnity holder—Right of action—Suit before actual loss is suffered—Maintainability—If premature.

The Contract Act of 1872 is both an amending and a consolidating Act and is not exhaustive of the law of contract to be applied by the Courts in India. Ss 124 and 125 of the Act do not embody the whole law of indemnity. S. 124 only deals with one particular kind of indemnity which arises from a promise made by the indemnifier to save the indemnified from the loss caused to him by the conduct of the indemnifier himself or by the conduct of any other person, but does not deal with those classes of cases where the indemnity arises from loss caused by events or accidents which do not or may not depend upon the conduct of the indemnifier or any other person, or by reason of liability incurred by something done by the indemnified at the request of the indemnifier. S. 125 only deals with the indemnity-holder in the event of his being sued and is by no means exhaustive of the rights of the indemnity-holder. There is no justification or authority for holding that in no case can an indemnity holder maintain an action against an indemnifier unless he has suffered actual loss. If the indemnified has incurred a liability and that liability is absolute, he is entitled to call upon the indemnifier to save him from that liability and to pay it off. ——S. 126—Scope—Two persons liable for same debt one primarily and the other secondarily—Hindu son joining father in execution of mortgage of father's property for debt incurred by father for his own purposes—Discharge of debt by son out of own moneys—Right to benefit of security.

The Court in granting relief to a person in the position of a surety is not confined to contracts of guarantee within the meaning of S. 126 of the Contract Act, and is free to apply the principles of equity unless the position is governed by some positive provision of law. Where in a mortgage deed executed by a Hindu father over his separate properties in respect of amounts borrowed by him for his own purposes, his son is made a party at the request of the mortgagee, and is made liable for the repayment of the debt, though not as a mortgagor, and the son after the death of his father pays off the mortgage out of his own moneys, he falls within the category of cases in which without any contract of suretyship there is a primary and a secondary liability of two persons for one and the same debt, the debt being, as between the two, that of one of those persons only, and not equally of both, so that the other, if he should be compelled to pay it, would be entitled to reimbursement from the person by whom (as between the two) it ought to have been paid. The son therefore would be entitled to the benefit of the security held by the mortgagee whom he has paid off, although he cannot be regarded as a surety within the meaning of S. 126 of the Contract Act. ——S. 128—Liability of surety—Guarantee for re-payment of money advanced on promissory note—Guarantee to remain in force until debt due is fully and finally adjusted—Payment of interest by debtor—If extends period of liability of surety.

A letter of guarantee for the re-payment of money advanced on a promissory note payable on demand with interest stated that the guarantee would remain in force until the debt due was fully and finally adjusted and would not be affected by any forbearance or arrangement for giving time or other facilities to the principal debtor. The creditor accepted small payments of interest by the debtor from time to time and thus enlarged the period of limitation.

Held, that in view of the terms of the guarantee the period of liability of the surety was also extended by the payments made by the debtor and that the surety remained liable so long as the principal debtor remained liable. A suit by the landholder for the recovery of the theka money in default from the surety is not barred by O 2, R. 2 on the ground that the former had already brought a suit in the rent court against the new thekadar prior to the proceeding in the civil court against the thekadar and the surety. There is no valid reason for giving the word "goods" in S. 178 of the Contract Act a different meaning from that which it has in the Sale of Goods Act. "Goods" would include shares in a joint stock company and there can be a valid pledge of the shares. When a person delivers a share certificate to another to be held by him as security, there is under the law of India a pledge which he can enforce, but unless the pledgee at the time of the deposit secures a deed of transfer which he can use in case of necessity or obtains one from his debtor at a later stage, he must have recourse to the Court when he wishes to enforce his security. ——S. 238—Applicability—Fraud practised by agent—Absence of evidence as to whether principal was a party to the fraud—Agreement to sell by principal if affected.

The provisions of S. 238, Contract Act, according to which a fraud or misrepresentation practised or made by an agent invalidates a contract into which the agent enters on behalf of the principal do not apply to a case where an agreement to sell a house is entered into between the vendor himself and the vendee and the deed of sale itself is executed by the vendor. There may be cases outside the scope of the provisions of S. 238 in which such fraud may invalidate agreement entered into by the principal. But where there is no evidence to show that the principal was a party to the fraud practised by the agent or that there was express authority to the agent to give the false information in question, an agreement followed by a sale deed executed by the principal himself to the vendee could not be avoided on the ground of the alleged false information having been given by the agent. The general rule in regard to land which is in the joint possession of co-sharers is that one co-sharer is not entitled to make any constructions upon a plot which will have the result of ousting his co-sharers from their possession. The putting up of a temporary structure, such as a thatched shelter, does not come within this condemnation. But it may be added that even if when there is exclusive possession by means, for example, of the erection of cattle-sheds, it is not open to a co-sharer to alter the nature of that possession and substitute for the cattle sheds a pucca residential house. Prima facie where one co-sharer upon open ground over which possession, actual or constructive, is exercised by other co sharers, erects a building, it is the right of the co-sharer who as a result of this construction is ousted completely from use of the plot covered thereby to obtain a decree which will necessitate the demolition of the construction This; of course, is subject to the proviso that there shall be due diligence on the part of

A High Court is not in the same position as a lower Court as regards the determination of Court-fees. The taxing department of the High Court (Nagpur) is quite separate from its judicial side. The taxing officer has no judicial powers except as regards the one matter of Court-fees, nor has the Taxing Judge. If the appellant in an appeal to the High Court insists that he wants a declaration only and nothing more the taxing authorities cannot decide whether such a suit will lie. All they can say is that the Court-fees payable on a relief for declaration simpliciter is a certain figure and they must leave the wider question of consequential relief to the Judge deciding the appeal on the judicial side. Even there the taxing authority can decide whether the relief sought is in fact a declaration simpliciter or whether consequential relief is implicit in it. In case of doubt the taxing authority can insist on the necessary amendments. Once that is done then the Judge hearing the appeal decides whether the suit so framed can lie. The taxing authority cannot do it. (Rose, J.) VINAYAK RAO v. MANKUNWARBAI. 202 I.C. 643=15 R.N. 97=1942 N.L.J. 466.

COURT-FEES ACT (1870). S. 7.

COURT-FEES ACT (VII OF 1870), Ss. 5 and 28—Scope and effect of—Patna High Court Rules, Ch VII, Rr. 16 and 19—Admission of appeal by Registrar—Revised Stamp-Report by Stamp Reporter demanding further court-fee—Jurisdiction to submit—Taxing Officer's power to order payment of additional court-fee—C. P. Code, O. 7, R. 11.

The Stamp Reporter first reported through inadvertence that the court-fee on a memorandum of appeal was sufficient, and the Registrar admitted the appeal under R. 16 of Chap. VII of the Patna High Court Rules and ordered notice to respondent. A few days later the Stamp Reporter detected his mistake, sent for the record and after examining it submitted a fresh report under R. 19 of Chap. VII of the Rules to the effect that further court-fee should be paid. When the matter came before the Taxing Officer, the appellant contended that (a) the Stamp Reporter was functus officio, (b) that he had no right to submit a revised report after the appeal was admitted by the Registrar and (c) that the Taxing Officer had no jurisdiction at that stage to make an order for payment of deficit court-fee. Taxing Officer held as regards, the first two contentions, that the Stamp Reporter had power under R. 19 to re open the question of the sufficiency of the Court-fee. So long as the appeal remained pending, and on the third contention he held that in view of S. 28 of the Court Fees Act that was a matter not for him but for the Taxing Judge to decide. It was pleaded further before the Taxing Judge that the respondent had no locus standi to be heard in the matter.

Held, (1) that though the question of court fees was primarily one between the appellant and the Crown, it could not properly be said that it did not affect the respondent at all and that he could not be heard on the question; (2) that the Stamp Reporter had power to reopen the question of the sufficiency of the court-fee when the matter had not already been decided by the Taxing Officer, so long as the appeal was pending; (3) that the mere admission of a plaint or appeal did not operate to deprive the Court of power to reject it under O. 7, R. 11 (c), C. P. Code; and the admission of the appeal by the Registrar under R. 16 of Chap. VII in no sense involved any decision by the Taxing Officer under S. 5 of the Court Fees Act; (4) that such admission did not prevent the Taxing Officer from functioning under S. 5 of the Court Fees Act when a dispute as to court fee subsequently arose; (5) that it was only when the Taxing Officer had given his decision under S. 5 as regard the court fee payable on a memorandum of appeal that such decision would be final and it could not be questioned even in the exercise of the powers vested in the Court under S. 28; (6) that S. 5 enabled the Taxing Officer to deal with the question and he had jurisdiction to make an order for payment of additional court-fee and S. 28 did not take away his jurisdiction under S. 5 to deal with the revised Stamp Report. P. Code, O. 7, R. 11—Failure to pay requisite court-fee—Proper order.*

In 1925 A, a Mahomedan, executed a wakf-deed, the terms of which roughly werethat the children of the wakif should reside in the house and be maintained from the income of the lands forming part of his estate,and that on the eventual failure of any descendant, the property should go to charity and be applied to musafirkhanas for the general public, the maintenance and clothing of widows, poor persons and travellers and the building and repairing of mosques. S appointed himself mutawalli in his lifetime and directed that after his death his son H should be mutawalli with power to appoint his successor. The deed provided, inter alia, that the mutawalli should render proper accounts to the wakif's children, and if he acted dishonestly or was lazy, he should be dismissed and another mutawalli appointed. The deed also provided that all the members of the family should, if possible, live together, but that if, after A's death, and if they were not able to agree to live together, H should separate them, thereafter paying all expenses of the administration of the estate, and after paying amounts set out to be paid to his widow and two daughters, H should divide the balance, appropriate half to his own family and give over half to the widow and her daughters. A died in 1933 and thereafter, his son, H, managed the estate as mutawalli. Sometime later, the widow and some daughters and grand-children of A, brought a suit against H and one of the daughters of A for removal of H from the office of mutawalli and for appointment of a new mutawalli, for accounts and for recovery of amounts misappropriated by H, on the allegations that the mutawalli H was not carrying out the terms of the wakf, that he was not making the payments enjoined by the deed to the widow and the daughters of the settlor and that he was misappropriating the income and alienating the property. The suit was valued for purposes of jurisdiction at Rs. 20,000 but only a court-fee of Rs. 15 was paid under Art. 17 (vi) of Schedule II of the Court-Fees Act on the plea that it was not possible to estimate the money value of the reliefs sought. The lower Court holding that the valuation for court fee and jurisdiction should be the same, ordered the plantiff to pay court-fee on Rs.20,000 in 10 days and in default thereof dismissed the suit.

Held, (1) that the suit was not governed by Art. 17 (vi) of Sch. II of the Court-Fees Act, but fell under S. 7 (ii) of the Court-Fees Act, as what the plaintiffs sought were material benefits to which they were entitled or might be entitled under the clause in the wakf-deed, that on disagreement between the parties the income should be divided and enjoyed in the proportions set out; (2) that the plaintiffs' claim to annual receipts was capable of valuation at least on an average basis and court-fee should therefore be paid on ten times the annual value of the receipts to which they claimed they were entitled; (3) that the correct figure should be arrived at by deducting from Rs. 20 000, the value of the total property, the interest of the two defendants, namely, Rs. 10,000 being the 1st defendant's share, and Rs. 500 the value of 2nd defendant's share being 10 times the amount of Rs. 50, which was the amount to be paid to defendant

An alienation by a Hindu widow is not absolutely void but voidable at the election of the reversionary heir of the last male owner. A reversioner suing after the death of the alienating widow need not sue to set aside the alienation besides praying for a declaration of its invalidity, so as to make his suit fall under S. 7 (iv) (c), Court-Fees Act,leviable to ad valorem court-fee. Where, however, in a suit for partition, accounts and declaration, the plaintiff, who is, on the allegations in the plaint, not in possession, asks for a declaration possession and partition, the suit falls under S. 7 (iv) (c), the consequential relief being partition and possession and therefore ad valorem court-fee has to be paid. ——S. 7 (iv) (c)—Applicability—Test—Specific relief claimed.

The Court has to look at the substance of the plaint in each case to determine whether the suit is really one for a declaration with a consequential relief or is merely a camouflage attempt in words to disguise a specific relief claimed in the garb of a suit for declaration coupled with a consequential relief. It cannot be held that in all suits where possession is one of the reliefs claimed the suit must fall within S. 7 (v) of the Court-Fees Act any more than if the relief was not possession but was somewhere specifically provided for say in Art. 1 of the Schedule the relief would necessarily fall within that article. It will depend on the facts and circumstances of each case whether the relief by way of possession or any other relief claimed is or is not consequential on the declaration sought. If it is consequential on the declaration sought then the suit would fall under S. 7 (iv) (c). If it is not so consequential, then the suit may fall if relief claimed was possession partly under S. 7 (v) or if the relief was not for possession but did come within Art. 1, Sch. I, then under that article. (Dalip Singh and Sale, JJ.) HARKISHAN LAL v. BARKAT ALI. 202 I.C. 174=15 R.L 109=44 P.L.R. 162=A I.R. 1942 Lah. 209.

COURT-FEES ACT (1870), S. 7.

——S. 7 (iv) (c) and (v)—Sale of joint family property by father—Suit by son for declaration that it is not binding and for possession—Court-fee.

A suit by a son for a declaration that a sale of joint Hindu family property effected by his father had not been made for family necessity and was not binding on the family, and for joint possession of the property sold along with his father, falls within the purview of S. 7 (iv) (c) and not of S. 7 (v) of the Court-Fees Act. An alienation by the father of a Hindu joint family is not void but is only voidable at the instance of his sons. It is, therefore, necessary for the plaintiff to get rid of this voidable document by having the Court to declare that in the circumstances of the case it should be avoided at the plaintiff's request. The possession which he then claims flows from and is a necessary consequence of the relief claimed, namely, that the document does not stand in the way of the plaintiff. The remedy of possession, therefore, is essentially in this case a consequential relief flowing from and arising out of the declaration sought by the plaintiff. ——S. 7 (iv) (c) and (v)—Suit for declaration with consequential relief for possession and suit for possession—Choice of plaintiff.

Where it is open to the plaintiff to frame his suit in one of two ways, there is no obligation in law that he should frame his suit, in any other way than he would choose to frame it. In other words, if it is open to the plaintiff to bring a suit for possession or to bring a suit for a declaration with consequential relief for possession it is entirely for the plaintiff to choose in which form he brings the suit and to the results that may flow from his choice in the way of limitation or otherwise the question of Court-fee payable is wholly irrelevant. The Court-fee will be determined on the nature of the suit as framed at the choice of the plaintiff always provided it is legally open to him to do so. (Dalip Singh and Sale, JJ.) HARKISHAN LAL v. BARKAT ALI. 202 I C. 174=15 R.L. 109=44 P.L.R. 162=A.I.R. 1942 Lah. 209.

——S. 7. (iv) (c)—Suit to declare decree debts not binding by person not a party to decrees—Ad valorem fee, if payable—Test.

Ordinarily a decree binds only parties and privies. For one not a party and hence not bound, it is not necessary to get the decree set aside. But in the case of one who is for some reason or another bound by the decree there is implicit in the prayer for declaration that the decree does not bind him, a further prayer that the decree be modified so as to exonerate his interests.

Where a Hindu son sues for a declaration that certain debts represented by decrees against his father are not binding on him or on the joint family property, there is involved in it a prayer for setting aside the decree and hence ad valorem court-fee is payable. The plaintiff can place any valuation he likes for purposes of Court Fees in a case falling under S. 7 (iv) (c) of the Court Fees Act and the Court has no power to question that valuation, however arbitrary it may be, and the value for purposes of jurisdiction must be the same as the value for purposes of Court-fee. The Court cannot decide that a relief claimed is undervalued if it is in accordance with the provisions of the Court-Fees Act. ser—Suit by latter to declare decree unexecutable against him—Consequential relief—Court-fee payable.

A suit on a promissory note was brought against the makers and also against the petitioner who was the payee of the note and who had endorsed it over to the plaintiff in that suit for consideration. A decree was passed both against the makers and against the petipetier, and in execution thereof some properties of the otintioners were sold. The petitioner then brought a suit for a declaration that the decree which was being executed was not executable against him and for consequential relief in the shape of setting aside the sale already held together with an injunction preventing further execution of the decree against him. The basis of the claim to avoid execution was an agreement which the petitioner alleged was entered into between him and the decree-holder prior to the institution of the suit on the promissory note to the effect that no remedies should be claimed against him. The petitioner valued the reliefs at an arbitrary figure, but the lower Court held that the suit in effect was one to set aside the decree in so far as it bound him and must therefore be valued for purposes of court-fee accordingly and called upon the petitioner to pay such court-fee.

Held, in revision, that the only way in which the decree could be attached by the petitioner was by setting it aside and not by way of a declaration, and the suit therefore fell within the scope of S 7 (iv) A of the Madras Amendment of the Court-Fees Act; hence the order calling on the petitioner to pay additional court-fee was correct. In a case falling under S. 12 (ii), the reference to the "suit" in S. 10 (2) which is expressly made applicable under S.12 (ii), must be read as a reference to the "appeal" and the Court is bound to stay the appeal until the additional Court-fee, although the appeal is by the defendant and not by the plaintiff who failed to pay the proper Court-fee on his plaint in the suit in the trial Court. In a partition suit in which the plaint was insufficiently stamped a preliminary decree was passed declaring that the plaintiff was entitled to a share in the plaint property and directing that the plaintiff was entitled to costs from the defendants. After reference to the Commissioner for partition, there was a final decree in accordance with the division made by the Commissioner. The defendant appealed against the final decree. At the hearing of the appeal there was an objection raised that the plaint was insufficiently stamped and that the proper Court fee ought to be paid on the plaint before the appeal could be proceeded with.

Held, (1) that though the appeal was by the defendant and not by the plaintiff respondent who ought to have paid the proper Court-fee on his plaint, the Court was bound under the mandatory provisions of S. 12 (ii)

The decree amount was deposited in Court and the plaintiff applied to withdraw the same, but the amount was not paid out to him until he had paid the additional court-fee required to be paid by him by the decree. The plaintiff having paid the additional court-fee and withdrawn the amount from Court applied to recover from the defendants the amount of the additional court fee paid by him in execution of the decree.

Held, that the execution application of the plaintiff was competent and should be ordered, the plaintiff under the decree having had to pay the additional court-fee before the full liability of the defendants could be ascertained. ——S. 12 (1)—Scope—Finality—If refers to classification of suit—Court determining value of property for Court-fee—Power of Court to reconsider value of property for purposes of jurisdiction—Madras Civil Courts Act, S. 14.

The finality referred to in S. 12 (1) of the Court-Fees Act is only with regard to arithmetical calculations of the Court-fee payable and not to questions of classification. A finding as to the value of the property in suit for purposes of Court-fee does not preclude the Court from afterwards coming to the conclusion that it has no jurisdiction to try the suit on the ground that on a proper valuation of the property the suit would go beyond the pecuniary jurisdiction of the Court. It cannot be said that because the Court has already determined the amount of Court-fee payable, it has no authority to reconsider the value of the property for purposes of jurisdiction. It would be strange if the Court, by making an error in fixing the value of the Court-fee payable, can obtain jurisdiction which it does not really possess. In a suit for possession of land, the true value of the land determines the jurisdiction and is also the basis for calculating Court fee, subject to the qualification of S. 12 (1) of the Court-Fees Act that when once the amount of the Court-fee has been determined, it is final. Where the main case of a plaintiff is that he is entitled to all the properties under a primogeniture sanad and that is the main cause of action in respect of all the properties, the fact that some alternative pleas based on different cause of action are raised in respect of some of the items is no ground for charging a separate fee on each of the various items, for it cannot be said that they are distinct and separate from the main cause. Consequently, when a sentence of imprisonment is to be in default of payment of a fine, the sentence of imprisonment in default must be consecutive to any substantive sentence of imprisonment which may have been passed upon the accused. S. 54 (1) permits a Police officer to arrest without a warrant any person concerned in any cognizable offence or against whom information has been received or a reasonable suspicion exists of his having been so concerned. S. 54 (9) merely introduces another class of persons who can be arrested without a warrant. There is no warrant for the proposition that a Police Officer cannot order the arrest of a person by means of a telephonic message. The word requisition in S. 54 (1), Ninthly of the Code of Criminal Procedure, is quite general and clearly covers a message communicated by telephone, though it would be necessary for him, when he is asking another Police Officer to do what he could have done himself, to disclose not only the identity of the person whom he wishes to be arrested but also the offence or the reason for which the arrest is to be made. ——S. 94—Duty of Court—Order for production of documents—Conditions precedent to making of—Magistrate to satisfy himself of necessity or disability of production.

S. 94, Cr. P. Code, gives power to the Court to require the production of documents when it considers their production necessary or desirable for purposes of investigation; but before an order under the section can be made, it must appear, at least prima facie, that the documents are likely to be relevant evidence in the case. It is the duty of the Magistrate to consider whether their production is necessary or desirable, especially when the application itself discloses no grounds why production of documents is necessary or desirable, and it is not open to the Magistrate to evade his responsibility on the plea that he might have to hear the nature of the defence which the accused, on whose behalf application is made, might make. ——S. 94—Issue of written order by Police Officer —Necessity for.

Under S. 94, Cr. P. Code, a Police Officer cannot demand the production of books in any manner that he likes. The word 'may' in the section merely means that if a Police Officer makes up his mind to issue an order to the person concerned, he must do it in writing. ——S 106—Grounds for order under—Duty of Magistrate—Charge and conviction of petty offence—Order under S. 106—Desirability of.

It is generally undesirable where a person is charged with some petty offence, to tack on to some small sentence of fine an order under S. 106, Cr. P. Code, which, in most cases, in view of the poverty of the accused person, would necessitate his remaining in jail for a long period which very much exceeds the punishment legally permissible for the offence of which the accused is charged and convicted. An order under S. 106, Cr. P. Code, is, of course, legally permissible, but should be made very sparingly in such cases. Before passing an order under S. 106, the Magistrate should be satisfied that it is necessary to require the accused to execute a bond for keeping the peace; in other words, the Magistrate should be satisfied that if he does not call upon the accused to furnish such a bond, there is a likelihood that there will be breaches of the peace in future. The Magistrate must consider only legal evidence and should not act on statements made by the prosecution from the Bar. An order under S. 106, Cr. P. Code, is not illegal merely because no reasons have been given by the trial Magistrate for passing the order. ——Ss. 107, 144 and 145—Applicability and scope —Dispute concerning land—Procedure.

When there is a dispute likely to cause a breach of the peace concerning land, it can be dealt with under S. 145, Cr. P. Code, and the section is not inapplicable on the ground that the dispute is not bona fide. However mala fide such a dispute may be, it is neither outside the scope of S. 145 nor peculiarly amenable to S. 107, Cr. P.Code, and action under S. 145 cannot properly be said to be inadmissible or not warranted by law. However, the fact that such a dispute likely to cause a breach of the peace concerns land does not by itself deprive a Magistrate of jurisdiction under S. 107. But for S. 107 to apply it is essential that the acts committed or likely to be committed should be wrongful. Acts committed in the lawful exercise of the right of a private defence cannot support proceedings under S. 107, and therefore it is to the party who is not in possession of the property in dispute that the operation of S. 107 is usually restricted. Disputes concerning land can also be dealt with under S. 144, Cr P. Code, provided that there is sufficient ground for proceeding under it and immediate apprehension or speedy remedy is desirable. But orders under S. 144 are merely temporary and cannot remain in force for more than two months, and cannot be said to decide anything about the respective rights of the parties. Ordinarily, therefore, unless the facts are, on the face of them, quite clear, a proceeding should be drawn up under S. 145 for the purpose of investigating the question of actual possession. An order under S. 112, Cr. P. Code, at any time before judgment is pronounced subject to certain conditions so too can an order under S. 112, Cr. P. Code, be amended. Where, on information in his possession, the District Magistrate makes an order under S. 112, Cr. P. Code, against two out of three persons who are brothers and five days later he makes a similar order against the third brother, asking them to show cause on a specified date, it being stated that the District Magistrate has "reliably learnt that you habitually protect and harbour thieves and dacoits", and subsequently on the date fixed for hearing fresh information is laid before the Magistrate in application by the public prosecutor, pointing out that the case of the three persons would fall not only under S. 110 (e), but also under S. 110 (f), and as a result of this, the Magistrate makes out a fresh order under S. 112 against all the three persons and the same is served on them on that date when they appear to show cause in answer to the original orders, it must be held that the third order is clearly an amendment of the previous orders on which no proceedings have actually been started, and that there is no irregularity in the procedure adopted by the District Magistrate in this regard. Further when no prejudice is shown to have been caused to the accused, there is no ground for interference at all. (Lobo and Weston, JJ.) EMPEROR v. RASULBUX. I.L.R. ——S. 112—Contents of order under—Particulars to be mentioned—Omission of—Effect of irregularity—Further proceedings—If vitiated.

Although it is not sufficient in an order under S. 112, Cr. P. Code, to quote the words of any particular clause of Ss. 108, 109 or 110, because an order under S. 112 is in the nature of a charge and the person to whom the order is issued is entitled to definite information as to the case he is called upon to answer, the question whether the omission of such particulars in an order under S. 112 has in any particular case any material effect is a question of fact. If the accused is shown to have had full knowledge, before he opened his cross-examination, as to what the case of the prosecution against him was and what he was called upon to meet, the irregularity in the matter of the contents of the order is purely technical and may well be ignored.

Per Weston, J.—The sufficiency of the notice given in the order made under S. 112, Cr. P. Code, is a matter to be considered in the light of the facts of the particular case and with regard to the possibility of prejudice to the accused. Where it is clear that the accused are not taken by surprise by the evidence, or are in any way embarrassed in cross-examination of the witnesses, there is no prejudice and there is no defect in the order which vitiates further proceedings. Orders under S. 117 (3) are not mere routine orders to be appended to an order under S. 112, Cr. P. The orders contemplated by S. 117 (3) are orders designed to meet emergencies. ——S. 117 (3)—Scope of inquiry—Duty of Magistrate in passing order.

The orders under S. 117 (3) are not mere matters of routine, a routine order, appended as it were to orders passed by a Magistrate under S. 112 on an application made under S. 110. Before a Magistrate passes an order under S. 117 (3) he must direct his consideration particularly to the question of emergency and the necessity of immediate measures. Charges falling under S. 110 (a), (b) and (c) do not with one exception, bring the case under S. 117 (3). The words "commission of any offence" in S. 117 (3) cover cases falling under S. 110 (a), (b) and (c), only when the Magistrate considers that emergency orders involving immediate measures are necessary to prevent the commission of any offence. The Magistrate must give a careful consideration to the separate case of an emergency under S. 117 (3) and the necessary immediate measures. The Magistrate cannot be said to have done this when merely on a police report, (without even calling the police officer in the witness box, without making any further inquiry into the general and vague allegations, such as that the persons complained against were "dangerous badmashes" and the public was in fear of them) he passes an order under S. 117 (3). The mere report by a police officer that the persons complained against were desperate and dangerous characters is not sufficient for action under S. 117 (3). The Magistrate should make some further inquiry either from the police officer himself or from some other source before he is satisfied that an emergency justifying immediate measures under S. 117 (3) exists. In a proceeding under S. 133, Cr. P. If the opposite party claims that by adverse possession the public have lost their right to use the place as a public place, his obvious remedy is to deny the existence of any public right in respect of this place in a proceeding under S. 139-A. The Court is precluded from considering the question whether the opposite party has acquired by adverse possession a right in this place. The only question to be gone into is whether the obstruction is such that it attracts the provisions of S. 133 and other relevant sections in Ch. X of the Code. Proceedings under S. 133, Cr. P. If such a person neither tenders any evidence in support of the cause which he shows against the conditional order nor asks the Magistrate to give him an opportunity of producing such evidence, there is nothing for the Magistrate to enquire into. Although it is not necessary that the jurors should return a unanimous verdict, they must all take part in the deliberations of the jury. If, therefore, only four of the jurors attend the meeting and submit a report, there is no verdict of the jury and the Magistrate is entitled to proceed under S. 141, Cr. P. ——S. 144—Jurisdiction—Nature and extent of—Duty of Magistrate under to exercise care.

The orders to be passed under S. 144, Cr. P. Code, must be of a temporary nature. Such orders are passed in the general interests of society and may validly interfere, within the limitations laid down, with private rights of enjoyment of property. There is therefore all the more reason why the jurisdiction under S. 144, Cr. P. Code, ought to be exercised carefully, and interference with private rights reduced to a minimum and regulated by a full observance of the limitations imposed by the section itself. ——S. 144—Order interfering with liberty of press—Duty of Magistrate.

The right of the public to have news published is common to all countries where there is liberty of the press and it is the right of all newspapers equally to publish news provided it does not offend against any existing law. It is obvious therefore that the powers given to a Magistrate under S. 144, Cr. P. Code, to interfere with the liberty of the press should be used very sparingly and only for good cause shown. It is for this reason that the section itself makes it obligatory for the Magistrate in any such order to indicate the material facts which justify such an order. An order under S. 144, Cr. P. Code, is of no use in determining possession beyond the period during which it remains in force. Having regard to the peculiar jurisdiction conferred by S. 144, no inference of possession can be drawn from it. Being a summary order and in the nature of temporary injunction intended for emergencies, it should not be utilised in subsequent proceedings as substantive evidence of possession of a successful party. A Magistrate's jurisdiction under S. 144, Cr. P. He has no jurisdiction to pass an order which is not limited in time but on the face of it purports to be of the nature of a perpetual injunction. He cannot decide disputed questions of title to property by taking measurements, etc., especially when a civil suit is pending between the parties in the Civil Court. ——S. 144 (1)—Construction—"Direct any person to abstain from a certain act or to take a certain order with certain property" etc.—Meaning—Order requiring party to demolish wall—Legality.

The words "direct any person to abstain from a certain act or to take certain order with certain property in his possession or under his management" in S. 144, Cr. P.Code, do not empower a Magistrate to make a positive order requiring a person to do particular things. The absention from certain acts must obviously not be carried too far. The section does not authorise the passing of any mandatory order; the Magistrate may only pass a restrictive order of a temporary character. An order, such as an order directing a party to demolish or remove a wall erected by him, which is irrevocable in its nature is outside the section and is entirely unauthorised and illegal. Where the dispute is between a tenant and his subtenants, the landlord is not a party to the dispute within the meaning of S. 145, Cr. P. Code. S. 145, Cr. P. Code, is concerned with persons in "actual" possession in contradistinction to "constructive" possession. But that does not mean that the landlord who is interested in the land and in his tenants has no locus standi to apply under S. 145. ——S. 145—Parties referring dispute to arbitration—Procedure to be adopted by Magistrate.

S. 145, Cr. P. Code, no doubt contains no reference to arbitration proceedings; but there is nothing in the section to forbid the parties by mutual consent adopting any procedure on which they may agree for the amicable settlement of their dispute. If the dispute is amicably settled and no likelihood of a breach of the peace remains, the Magistrate can act under S. 145 (5) cancelling his previous order and staying all further proceedings but if he does not do that the only alternative is to decide the dispute and pass order under S. 145 (6). Such an order must be based on evidence and the Magistrate before making it is bound under S. 145 (4) to receive all such evidence as may be produced by the parties. If the award is the only evidence tendered by either party, the Magistrate in accepting the award and acting on it can be held to proceed in accordance with S. 145 (4). But if before he disposes of the case a petition is filed asking that evidence should be received and the dispute determined according to law, it becomes his duty to receive such evidence as may be produced, under sub-S. (4) unless he decides to drop the proceedings under sub S. (5). (Roxeland, J.) SUNDAR GIR GOSSAIN v. JADUNANDAN JHA. 197 I.C. 491=8 B.R. 226=43 Cr. L.J. 172=14 R.P. 321=A.I.R. 1942 Pat. 289.

The revisional powers of the High Court under S. 439, Cr.P. Code, are discretionary and are exercised for the ends of justice. When an order under S. 145 (1) is cancelled under S. 145 (5), the parties must as far as possible be restored to the position which they occupied before the proceedings were started, not only with regard to the land, but with regard to the produce of the land or its proceeds. further jurisdiction to pass order regarding property—Inherent power of High Court—If can be invoked.

It is not at all necessary that the final Court of appeal should be considered to be the competent Court within the meaning of the words in sub-S. (1) of S. 146. Therefore a Magistrate can pass an order releasing the property from attachment in favour of a successful party on the decision of a suit by the trial Court even though an appeal from such decision is pending. And if the decision is reversed on appeal, the Magistrate has no further jurisdiction under S. 145 or S. 146 to pass an order regarding delivery of possession of the property. Nor can the High Court pass an order under S. 561-A, as it cannot be invoked to override an express provision of law or when there is another remedy open. Reversing the Magistrate's order would amount to overriding an express provision of law and further the party has the remedy of suing for possession on payment of proper court-fee. Held, that on the facts of the case the proceedings must be deemed to have been instituted on the 14th May, and not on 12th July, and that they must be deemed to be so even as regards the persons who were added subsequently. S. 156 (3), Cr.P.Code, applies only to the stage before the issue of process and cannot apply to a case in which the Magistrate has already issued process and summoned the accused. After the process has been issued, the Magistrate must proceed in accordance with Ch 21, S. 252 and the following sections which are mandatory and which provide that the Magistrate shall proceed to hear the evidence. ——S. 162 — Applicability — Procedure under Ch. VIII—Previous statements of witnesses recorded by Police—Right of accused to copies—Refusal to grant—Irregularity—Effect.

There is no reason why S. 162, Cr. P. Code, should not apply or should not be followed in security proceedings under Ch. VIII in view of the fact that S. 117, Cr. P. Code, lays down that as far as practicable such enquiry should be conducted in the manner prescribed for conducting trials and recording evidence in warrant cases. But when there is a cognizable case that is being tried, which had been preceded by an investigation by the police in which the statements of witnesses for the prosecution had been recorded. Either before the initiation of the proceedings or during the progress of the proceedings, the accused are entitled, under S. 145, Evidence Act, to cross-examine the prosecution witnesses thereon, and therefore to be given copies thereof, and the refusal by the magistrate to afford the accused persons copies of those statements and to cross-examine the prosecution witnesses thereon must be held to be an irregularity which has prejudiced the accused. Such irregularity can, however, be remedied by the Sessions Judge under the powers he has under S. 123 (3), Cr. P. Code, and it is not necessary that the proceedings should be quashed on that ground and a retrial or re-hearing ordered. Under S. 123, it is open to the Sessions Judge to send back the proceedings with the necessary directions in that behalf. (Lobo and Weston, JJ.) EMPEROR v. RASULBUX. I.L.R. The proper stage at which to apply for a copy of a witness's statement made under S. 162, Cr. P. But the examination of the witness need not be held up as in practice the Court reads out the relevant part of the statement or the counsel for accused is allowed to look into the diary. Copies are also granted in advance in practice. Some co-operation between the counsel and the Court is necessary to make S. 162, Cr. P. Code, work smoothly. (Horwill, J.) SUBBARA-

It is not correct to state that the evidence of an accomplice in a case of dacoity is not entitled to any credence if he made his statement as an approver under S. 164, Cr. P. Code, after all the accused had been arrested and recoveries of stolen property made from them. This is a criticism to which the evidence of almost every approver is subject because the question whether pardon should be tendered to an accomplice is generally considered at a late stage when the investigation of the case is completed. Of course it is a circumstance which the Court will take into consideration when deciding the question whether the approver's evidence should or should not be believed. In such cases the question is not whether a story could be put into the mouth of the approver to fit in with the fact discovered but whether the circumstances show that this might have been done and its decision will depend upon the character of the approver, his position vis-a-vis the Police the incriminating facts discovered against him and the story alleged to have been narrated by him. ——Ss. 172 and 174—Reference to police diary—Duty of police officer—Court inviting him to refresh his memory by reference to it.

It is true that an accused is not entitled to call for the police diaries unless a police officer uses them to refresh his memory, or the Court uses them for the purpose of contradicting a witness. But it is not open to a witness to decide for himself whether or not he should disclose a material fact which might turn the scale in deciding whether and accused person was guilty or innocent, when he is in a position to clear up a point by reference to any notes taken by him during the course of investigation. If a police officer figuring as a prosecution witness suffers from a lapse of memory which can be remedied by reference to any memorandum prepared by him at the time, and the Court invites him to refresh his memory with reference to the writing the witness is under an obvious obligation to do so, this being part of the duty under which he lies to lay the whole truth before the Court to the best of his ability. Should the police officer refuse to assist the Court in this way he would not only be failing in his duty both as a witness and as an officer of public justice, but would also be liable to exactly the same penalty as any other witness who refuses to give evidence which is within his knowledge and is not affected by any particular claim of privilege. It is possible that a diary of steps taken by the police in course of investigation may contain confidential matters which would not in the public interest be disclosed and for which privilege might be claimed, but no such question can arise when it is merely a question of the presence of blood-stains or injuries. There is nothing in S. 174 to suggest that it was ever intended that information on any such point should be deliberately withheld if it should happen to be in any way necessary for the decision of the case. ——S. 172—Scope—Case diary—Use of—Statement by witness in Court alleged to be contradictory to that made to Police Officer—Mode of proof of contradiction—Filing of case diary and use of whole statement recorded therein—Propriety.

Where the accused in a criminal case seek to show that a witness has made a statement in Court which is contrary to what he had told a police officer, the proper way of contradicting him is to ask the police officer, when he is in the witness-box about it, and to permit, if necessary, the filing of such portions of the record in the case diary as will support the police officer's statement. Where it is alleged that the statement made by the witness in Court was not made before the police officer, it is useless to refer to the record in the case diary at all. To allow the police officer to be asked whether certain copies of the case diary are true copies of the statements recorded from the witness, and then to permit the filing and making free use of the whole of the entry in the case diary relating to the statement of the witness, whether it is strictly relevant or not to the alleged contradiction, is to make an improper use of the case diary. A Village Magistrate to whom the accused gave a complaint of theft sent his usual reports to the police and to the Sub-Magistrate, and the police who took cognizance of the matter reported the case as false, and later filed a charge-sheet against the accused purporting to be under S. 211, I. P. Code. The Sub-Divisional Magistrate who tried the accused found the offence to be one punishable under S. 182, I. P. Code, and convicted the accused. It was contended on behalf of the accused in appeal that the charge sheet by the police did not amount to a valid complaint such as is required by S. 195, Cr.P. Code. This contention was upheld and the accused acquitted.

Held, (1) that the charge-sheet amounted to a valid complaint within the meaning of S. 195, Cr. P. Code, because information given to a Village Magistrate amounts to a complaint to the higher authorities to whom he is bound to pass on the information; (2) that it could not be laid down as a general principle of law that there cannot be a conviction under S. 182, I. P. Code, when there is a complaint under S. 211, I. P. Code; so long as there was a complaint setting out all the facts constituting the offence, it did not matter whether the complainant thought the offence to be one under S. 211, or S. 182, I P. Code. The conviction was not therefore illegal. (Horwill, J.) PUBLIC PROSECUTOR v. DEVAMMA. 199 I.C. 688=14 R.M. 630=43 Cr. Where a peon to whom a warrant of attachment of movable property of a judgment-debtor issued and signed by a Subordinate Judge was entrusted for execution, was assaulted by the judgment-debtor while the warrant was executed.

Held, that both the Subordinate Judge and the peon were public servants within the meaning of S. 21, I. P. Code and the peon was subordinate to the Judge while he was carrying out his order and that it was the duty of the Judge to make a complaint under S. 186, I. P. Code, against the judgment-debtor.

Where a public servant is obstructed in the exercise of his duties he himself or any person to whom he is subordinate can complain. Where the charge is that the accused carried away the property which an amin had attached and in other ways obstructed him in executing a decree of the District Munsif's Court, and the Nazarat at the place to which the amin is attached is under the charge and direction of the Nazir, subject to the supervision and control of the Subordinate Judge of that place, the amin cannot be considered to be a subordinate of the District Munsif so as to entitle the latter to file a complaint under Ss. 183 and 186, I. P. Code, in respect of the obstruction to the amin and the carrying away of the property attached by him. The complaint can be filed by the amin himself, or by the Nazir or the Subordinate Judge or any of the superiors of the Subordinate Judge, but not by the District Munsif. The Registrar, taking security, and in order to do so incidentally taking from a party an affidavit, does not act as "a Court"; a complaint by the Registrar in respect of false statements in the affidavit, under Ss. 193 and 199, I. Where the Registrar of the Presidency Small Cause Court under the directions of the Chief Judge made inquiries and satisfied himself that an affidavit filed by the accused was false and thereupon filed a complaint in the Court of the Chief Presidency Magistrate.

Held, that (1) the filing of the false affidavit was not "something purporting to be done under the Presidency Small Cause Courts Act" and the limitation under S. 97 of the Act of three months from the commission of the offence for a prosecution, did not apply to the case; (2) although the Registrar is a 'Court' for certain purposes e.g., when trying a suit for a sum of Rs. 20 or less, the Registrar was acting not as a 'Court' but as a ministerial officer in the present case and therefore the complaint was not filed by the proper person and must be returned. The question whether a Subordinate Magistrate to whom a case has been transferred under S. 192, Cr. P. Code, by a superior Magistrate has jurisdiction to order an investigation under S. 202, Cr. P. The fact of transfer is itself no indication of the stage which the Magistrate taking cognizance had reached, because under S. 200, Cr. P. Code, he can transfer the case even before the sworn statement is taken. The transferring Magistrate's intention has to be judged by the order which he passed. The mere fact of his "taking the case on file" is not sufficient to indicate an intention that no investigation or inquiry under S. 202 was necessary. Where the intention is doubtful, the

In commitment proceedings what the Magistrate has to see is whether there are sufficient grounds for conviction. Where there is a good prima facie case the Magistrate is bound to commit the accused and is not empowered to enter into nice questions of the probabilities of the case and discharge the accused on the ground that in his opinion the evidence was not sufficient to sustain a conviction; while a Magistrate should not be a mere post office and commit an accused to the Court of Session when there is not even a remote possibility of the case ending in a conviction, he cannot assume the functions of the Sessions Judge and take upon himself the duty of sifting the evidence in cases which are on the border line. S. 222 (2), Cr. P. Code, refers only to the offence of criminal breach of trust or dishonest misappropriation of money and not to falsification of accounts. A series of charges under S. 477-A, I. P. Code, in respect of twenty eight items of falsification relating to three different registers cannot be permitted to be lumped up together, although committed in the course of one year. The accused was charged under S. 409, I. P. Code, with commission of criminal breach of trust in respect of Rs. 76-9-6, including three different sums of Rs. 42, Rs. 31-9-0 and Rs. 3-0-6 each. The prosecution case was that the accused committed a series of falsification of accounts which were made the subject of three charges under S. 477-A, I. P. Code, and which were alleged to have been committed in order to conceal and cover the criminal breach of trust of Rs. 76-9-6. The prosecution alleged that the criminal breach of trust was committed between 12 4-1938 and 16-1-1939. The three charges under S. 477-A, I. P. Code, related to 28 entries, the first charge relating to two entries in respect of Rs. 42 and Rs. 31-9-0, in one book, the 2nd relating to 22 entries in another book, and the 3rd relating to four entries in another book and covered by four subsidiary headings. The prosecution case was not that the accused set about to defalcate the amount of Rs. 76-9-6 from the very beginning, but that as occasion arose and opportunities offered themselves he went on defalcating such sums as he could conveniently do without attracting the attention of his superiors, each defalcation thus being a separate offence. It was not the prosecution case that all these series of entries in the accounts were falsified in order to cover up one single defalcation. He was tried for all the charges at one trial.

Held, (1) that the joint trial was illegal as there was clear misjoinder of charges, which vitiated the trial; (2) that though it would be permissible to try the accused for one charge under S. 409, I.P. Code, and for three charges under S. 477-A, relating to that charge of misappropriation, it was not legal or permissible to try the accused for one charge under S. 409 and 28 charges under S. 477-A, I. P. Code; (3) that in the absence of evidence of misappropriation of the items specified, the accused was entitled to be acquitted of the charge under S. 409, I. P. Code, and the accused could not be convicted in respect of other items disclosed by the evidence as having been misappropriated by the accused as being included in the numerous charges under S. 477-A, I. ——S. 235—Same transaction—Test.

To ascertain whether a series of acts would form part of the same transaction the most important point to be considered is whether there was a common purpose and design and continuity of action. Where the common object of an unlawful assembly was to beat and extort money from a person and people from a neighbouring village come to rescue him but were chased back and the tiles in their houses in that village were broken and the people of another village who came to remonstrate against such action were assaulted, it was held that the assault of the second batch of villagers was not because they interfered with the extortion and beating but because of their interference with the breaking of the tiles of houses in another village and hence it was a separate transaction and could not be tried jointly with the offence under Ss. 147 and 384/511, I. ——S. 236—Applicability—Conditions—Alternative charges of kidnapping and abduction—Legality of.

In order that S. 236, Cr. That doubt may include a doubt as to what exact facts within the ambit of the series of facts postulated can be proved. At the time the charge is framed the prosecution can never know exactly what facts they can succeed in establishing and they are entitled to say that if they prove certain of the alleged facts, then such and such an offence will be committed but that if they prove other of such facts then it would be another offence, and to charge the offence in the alternative.

Where in a case the prosecution is in doubt as to whether they can prove that a girl, who is the victim of an offence, was under sixteen, they are entitled to charge the accused in the alternative of abduction or kidnapping under S. 362 or 361 of the Penal Code. If the accused desires time to enable him to cross-examine witnesses whose names had not been disclosed, it is open to the Magistrate to give time, just as it is open to the Magistrate to give time to the prosecution to enable them to ascertain the antecedents of the witnesses produced by the accused at the trial. The offence punishable under S. 504, I. P. Failure to ask the accused to state at the commencement of the hearing of the case whether he wishes to cross-examine, and if so, which of the prosecution witnesses whose evidence has been taken, is a serious irregularity and the omission is a grave one. The stage at which the prosecution witnesses can be recalled at the instance of the accused for cross examination follows and not precedes the statement of the accused pleading guilty or not guilty. When a Criminal Court issues process against a witness for the defence, it is the duty of the Court to secure the attendance of that witness unless the accused decides that he does not want to examine him. ——S. 257—Duty of Court—Refusal to summon defence witnesses—Grounds—Discretion—Matters to be considered.

Lobo, J.—The refusal to summon a witness called for by an accused person can only be justified on the grounds set out in S. 257, Cr. P. Refusal to summon defence witnesses on such grounds is a serious irregularity.

——S. 288—Case of murder—Circumstantial evidence—Statement before committing Magistrate—Witness not speaking truth before Sessions Judge—Power of Judge to act under S. 288.

In a case of wife murder there was no direct evidence of the offence. The evidence of one witness proved the presence of the accused near where the deceased lady was found and another witness had deposed before the Committing Magistrate that she saw the accused running away immediately after she had heard cries from the deceased and that his clothes were stained with blood. In her evidence before the Sessions Judge however the latter witness denied that she was anywhere near the spot on the date of offence. The Judge held that the said witness was not giving true evidence before him and admitted her evidence before the Committing Magistrate under S. 288, Cr. P. Code.

Held, that there could be no legal objection to the Sessions Judge taking action under S. 288, Cr. P. Code, after he came to the conclusion that the witness was not giving true evidence before him. 4 C.W.N. 49; 7 C. W.N. 345, Cons. ——S. 288—Discretion—Statements made in committal Court—When to be admitted as substantive evidence in Sessions Court in preference to evidence given in Sessions Court—Rule.

The question as to whether statements made in the Committing Magistrate's Court should be brought on record under S. 288, Cr. P. Code and be preferred as substantive evidence to statements made by the witnesses in the Sessions Court is a matter of prudence and not of law and when the statements made in the Committing Magistrate's Court appear to reason and experience to be in all probability true and the statements made in the Sessions Court appear to reason and experience to be in all probability untrue, it is not imprudent for the Sessions Judge to rely upon those statements made in the Committing Magistrate's Court, especially when there is corroboration of these statements by previous statements made under S. 164, Cr. P. Code. (Davis, C.J. and Weston, J.) DODO BAHADUR v. EMPEROR. I.L.R. (1942) Kar. 299=203 I.C. 482=44 Cr.L.J. 73=A.I.R. 1942 Sind 139.

Statements made in the Committing Magistrate's Court, when brought on the record under S. 288, Cr. P. Code, made by the witnesses can be used just as much for the purpose of corroborating evidence given in the Committing Magistrate's Court as they can be used for the purpose of corroborating or contradicting evidence given in the Sessions Court. Once the Sessions Judge decides that the statements should be brought on the record as substantive evidence under S. 288, Cr.P. S. 288, Cr. P. Code, makes evidence transferred under that section substantive evidence for all purposes. The discretion is given to the Sessions Judge to transfer the statement made before a committing Magistrate to his own record. Once he has done so, the evidence before the committing Magistrate is as good as that recorded by himself and is useable for all purposes. It is not necessary that the statement should be specifically put to the witness before it could be used in evidence. The words "subject to the provisions of the Indian Evidence Act" appearing in S. 288, Cr. P. It is undesirable and indeed improper for the Judge who is charging a jury to invite their attention to the decisions of cases reported in Law Reports. The jury being laymen are unlikely to understand the import of such decisions in the time available to them and it is no part of their business to do so. They have to take the law from the Judge and it is the duty of the Judge to the best of his ability to explain to them what the law in his opinion is. If the Judge considers it necessary in the heads of charge to note any case he had in mind in laying down the law, it is desirable that he should make it clear that the jury was not asked to consider it. ——Ss. 297 and 298—Duty of Judge—Charge to jury—Contents and frame of—Omission of trifle or failure to exhaustively enumerate all points in favour of the accused—If vitiates charge.

In a jury trial the Judge must present the main case for the prosecution and for the defence fairly for the consideration of the jury. But this does not mean that he must in every particular and in every detail address himself to every suggestion put forward by the defence. His duty is fairly and candidly to point out the main and salient features of the case from the point of view of the prosecution and of the defence respectively. In doing so he is entitled to take into consideration the speeches made upon both sides by the Crown and by the accused's counsel, in considering his presentation of the evidence to the jury. It is for the appellate Court to construe the heads of charge as prepared by the Judge and to see if from such heads the Judge has fairly and properly directed the jury in point of law and whether he has fairly and properly reviewed the evidence in support of the prosecution and of the defence. Whers the Judge has taken pains to put fairly to the jury the defence of each of the several accused and the materials on the record bearing on it, a trifling omission or the fact that the enumeration of points in favour of the accused is not absolutely exhaustive ought not to be considered as vitiating the charge unless there is some reason to suppose that a different direction might have influenced the result. in the charge to the jury to the details of the first information report filed by the deceased's brother who was alleged to have seen a person A with a dagger with which the deceased was killed. Although the dying declaration was recorded before arrival of investigating officer and although the doctor, who recorded it came back to the house during the investigation, the dying declaration was not made over to the investigating officer for four days after the date of the occurrence :

Held, that in the circumstances it was incumbent upon the Judge to emphasize to the jury to exercise a very considerable amount of caution before making up their minds to rely upon the statement of the witness upon whom even the prosecution did not rely to any considerable extent. The absence of any such direction in the charge must be held to have prejudiced the case of the accused. Similarly the failure to make a reference in the charge to the details of the first information report and the name of A and the failure to mention the delay in making over the dying declaration rendered the charge defective and the majority verdict of jury finding the accused guilty could not be sustained. If, however, it is admissible, it should be placed before the jury with proper directions. Ordinarily such a report is not substantive evidence, but, if the first informant had died before the matter came before the Court, it is admissible under S. 32 (1) of the Evidence Act. In such a case the jury should be informed that the first information report is admissible as a substantive piece of evidence under that provision, and at the same time they should be reminded that the statement in question had not been made on oath nor had it been tested by cross-examination, but that after bearing these points in mind, it would be for the jury to attach to it such weight as they considered necessary. ——Ss. 297 and 423 (2)—Scope and object of summing up—Verdict, interference in appeal—Misdirection and non-direction.

The object of summing up under S. 297, Cr. P. Code, is to place before the jury the facts and circumstances of the case both for and against the prosecution so as to help them in arriving at a right decision on the points which arise for their consideration. S. 423 (2) of Cr. P. Code renders the verdict of a jury erroneous when it is due to a misdirection by the Judge. It does not speak of non-direction. It is therefore obvious that mere non-direction unless it amounts to misdirection cannot invalidate the charge. "It is no misdirection not to tell the jury everything which might have been told them. Again, there is no misdirection unless the Judge has told them something wrong or unless what he has told them would make wrong that which he has left them to understand. Non-direction merely is not misdirection, and those who allege misdirection must show that something wrong was said or that something was said which would make wrong that which was left to be understood". In proceedings under Ch. VIII, Cr. P. Code, against three accused against whom orders under S. 112, Cr. P. Code, had been passed, the accused were examined under S. 342 after the prosecution examination of the witnesses. The 1st accused put in a written statement and the others merely relied on the written statement filed by the 1st. This written statement was withdrawn the next day as it was objected to by the Public Prosecutor on the ground that it contained scandalous matter, and another written statement signed by the 1st accused alone was substituted, which contained identically the same matter as the first except that the scandalous matter was omitted. It was contended that the accused should have been examined again under S. 342 in respect of the second written statement and that since they were not so examined, the proceedings were irregular.

Held, that the omission to examine the accused again was no doubt a technical defect, but it was difficult to conceive that any possible prejudice had resulted therefrom. Since the second written statement was a reproduction of the original statement with the omission of the objectionable matter, it was certainly not necessary that the magistrate should again examine the accused under ——S. 342—Scope—Failure to question accused on vital point — Effect — Miscarriage of justice—If curable.

The fact that an accused puts in a written statement does not absolve the Magistrate of the duty imposed upon him by S. 342. S. 342 must operate whether the accused filed a written statement or not and the practice of filing a written statement should not be encouraged, as it tends to defeat the object of the section. Where the Magistrate has omitted to question the accused as required by S. 342 on a crucial point on which alone he has been convicted, merely relying upon the omission by the accused of any explanation on that crucial point in his written statement the omission to question the accused on the crucial point under S. 342 amounts to a miscarriage of justice within S. 537. There is no warrant in the Criminal Procedure Code for an adjournment of the hearing of a case sine die. It is no doubt open under S. 344, Cr. P. Code, to a Magistrate to adjourn the enquiry to a given date for any reasonable cause which may no doubt cover a case in which he considers that the complainant should be given an opportunity to collect evidence; but under such circumstances it will be for the complainant to take such action and not for the Magistrate to direct the complainant to go to the police or to direct the police to start a separate investigation. An adjournment for such a purpose should however only be sparingly granted, and will not affect the Magistrate's duty to proceed with the hearing according to law, after the adjournment. Under S. 344, Cr.P. The fact that the civil suit is pending in the Chief Court does not deprive the magistrate of his power to stay the trial until an order is made for stay by the Chief Court. If a case is submitted by a Magistrate to the District Magistrate under S. 346, Cr. P. A superior Magistrate to whom a case is submitted under S. 346 (1) of the Cr. P. He cannot revise the opinion of the subordinate Magistrate who has submitted the case and refer the case back to that very Magistrate. The superior Magistrate acting under S. 346, is not a revising or appellate authority. He must assume the case presented in the report submitted to him as correct for the purpose of dealing with it under S. 346 (2). The petitioners were charged under S. 379, I. P Code and the trial opened before a Magistrate with second class powers on 11th March, 1941 and after subsequent hearings and conclusion of arguments was adjourned to 27th June 1941. On 10th May, 1941, the Magistrate was invested with first class powers. On 27th June, 1941, the Magistrate delivered judgment convicting the accused and ordering them to pay a fine of Rs. 20 each. The District Magistrate before whom an appeal was preferred took the view that as the Magistrate was invested with first class powers before he delivered judgment the forum of appeal was the Court of Session and not the Court of the District Magistrate. The Sessions Judge held that as the sentence of fine was one of Rs. 20 only, no appeal lay.

Held, (1) that the judgment was no part of the trial, and the trial must therefore be considered to have been held by a Magistrate of the second class for purposes of S. 407, Cr. P. ——S. 415—Applicability—Three fines under three separate sections of the Indian Penal Code.

Different sentences of fine under different sections of the Penal Code do not amount to a sentence under S. 415, Cr. P. Code, by which two or more punishments were combined so as to give a right of appeal under that section. (Allsop, J.) LALJI v. EMPEROR. 1942 A.L.W. 554=1942 A.W.R. ——S. 415—Interpretation—Applicability—"Any two or more punishments therein mentioned"—Meaning.

In view of the history of Ss. 413 and 414, Cr.P. Code, as they originally stood before the amendments made in them in 1923 it is plain that the phrase "any two or more of the punishments therein mentioned" in S. 415 refers to two or more of the punishments of different kinds. S. 415 has no application in a case in which two appealable sentences of fine have been passed and the aggregate of fine does not exceed Rs. 50. (Ganga Nath,

Once an appeal has been lodged and admitted, it is not in the power of any Court nor in the power of the appellant to allow the appeal to be withdrawn. ——S. 422—Appeal against conviction—Absence of notice to complainant to whom compensation out of the fine was ordered under S. 545, Cr. P Code—No ground for interference in revision.

Where an appeal against a conviction has been fairly heard after notice to the Crown and after hearing the Public Prosecutor and a proper judgment has been written, it would be grossly unfair to require an accused who had been acquitted to go through a fresh ordeal because the appellate Judge had heard only the Public Prosecutor—which is all that is required under S. 422 of the Code of Criminal Procedure—and not the complainant's vakil also. There is no irregularity—much less illegality—in not giving notice of such appeal to the complainant merely because he was awarded compensation under S. 545 of the Code of Criminal Procedure. ——Ss. 422 and 423—Scope—If exhaustive—Complainant—Right to appear by advocate.

There is no provision in the Cr. P. Code for appearance or argument by the complainant's advocate in an appeal even in a non-cognizable case in addition to or in substitution for appearance or argument by the Public Prosecutor and although Ss. 422 and 423 are not exhaustive they clearly indicate that the Legislature has by necessary implication excluded the appearance in appeal of an advocate for the complainant. Should the Public Prosecutor not appear, it would necessarily be in the discretion of the Court to allow the complainant's advocate to argue the case. Where the Public Prosecutor appears, the complainant's advocate can as an advocate attend the Court and be prepared to assist the Court if the Court requires his assistance. (Davis, C.J.) P. C. ——S. 439—Acquittal—Revision against—Interference—Order for retrial—Discretion of Court.

Under S. 439 (4), Cr. P. Code, the High Court cannot convert a finding of acquittal into one of conviction, but it can order the accused to be retried by a Court of competent jurisdiction subordinate to it. In considering the question whether such a retrial should or should not be ordered, the discretion of the Court is legally unlimited. In actual fact, however, the Court seldom exercises this discretion and an order of acquittal will not as a rule be interfered with merely because the High Court disagrees with the finding of the Magistrate. It is only when the record is incomplete or there is a flaw in jurisdiction or where the finding is manifestly wrong or perverse that the High Court will interfere in such cases. Where the evidence has been mis-stated, it is much the same position as if the Judge, who combines the functions of a judge and jury, had misdirected himself as to what the evidence was in the particular case. It will be open for the High Court, however, to consider whether in spite of the misdirection, any finding other than one of acquittal would have been come to in the circumstances of the particular case and the High Court would not order a retrial unless it came clearly to the conclusion that but for the misdirection the Court might have or should have come to a different finding to what it actually did. ——S. 439—Acquittal—Revision against—Justifying circumstances.

Where a learned Magistrate's judgment of acquittal is summary and shows that he has not examined the complainant's case with that care and thoroughness which the nature of the allegations and circumstances of the case demanded, it cannot be allowed to stand. S. 439, Cr. P. Code, cannot be divorced from the preceding sections particularly S. 435. This group of sections authorises the specified superior Court to send for the records of the Criminal Court only and consequently the words 'any proceeding' occurring in S. 439 must be confined to proceedings before any inferior Criminal Court. Hence an order passed by a Revenue Court under S. 476, Cr. P. Code, directing the trial of a person for an offence committed in the course of proceedings before it cannot be revised under S. 439, Cr. P. Code, by the High Court. (Niyogi, J.) GANPATAPPA v. SHANKARAYA. 1942 N.L.J. 242.

The opinion of a District Magistrate, expressed in an order under S. 144, Cr. P. Code, although entitled to great weight, is not absolute and cannot interfere with the right of the High Court under the revisional sections of the Code to interfere with such orders or set them aside. It cannot be doubted at least after the amendment in 1923 of S. 435, Cr. P. Code, by which sub-S. (3) of that section has been omitted, that the High Court has revisional jurisdiction also in cases disposed of under S. 144, Cr. P. Code. Although the Magistrate is responsible for the peace of his district, the High Court has a duty to see whether this responsibility has been properly discharged in any particular instance. ——S. 439—Quashing pending proceedings—Principles governing.

The High Court in revision will interfere with a pending criminal case only in exceptional cases such as where a person is being harassed by an illegal prosecution; where there is some manifest and patent injustice apparent on the face of the proceedings and calling for prompt redress; where the evidence on record for the prosecution clearly does not justify a charge of any offence; or where the trial is on the face of it an abuse of the process of the Court. One test of the exceptional nature of the application is that a bare statement of the facts without any elaborate argument should be sufficient to convince the High Court that the case is a fit one for its interference at an intermediate stage. But a question of territorial jurisdiction that is as to which of two or more Courts should inquire into any offence arising during the pendency of the trial must be decided by the High Court. Where the funds of the deceased father standing in the Bank in the name of his sons as joint executors are withdrawn and deposited in his own account by one of the sons, a charge against him under S. 405, Penal Code, is not unjustified and the High Court will not interfere in revision by quashing the proceedings. ——S. 439—Quashing proceedings—Revision—Practice.

There is, in the anxiety shown to quash proceedings at the earliest possible stage, a tendency to bring revision applications for that purpose before the High Court before the facts have been fully ascertained. It is not the practice of the Allahabad High Court to take evidence in revision applications and in many cases it is desirable that the trial should proceed and the question of law involved be dealt with in the regular way in the first instance as part of the trial. ——S. 439—Revision against acquittal—Materials on which the propriety of the order is to be judged.

The Court sitting in revision has merely to see whether the case as laid by the prosecution was properly tried or not. An order of acquittal has to be judged in the light of the case as presented by the complainant for trial in the original Court and not on the consideration of hypothetical case, that is a case which could have been but was not raised in that Court. ——S. 439—Scope—Duty of Court to give reasons for order.

Ch. XXXII of the Cr. P. Code governing references and revisions says nothing about the giving of reasons for any order passed, and it must be taken that the Legislature did not intend to make it obligatory on Courts of revision and reference to give reasons for their orders. Nevertheless it is, as a rule, desirable that reasons should be given so that in exercising its revisional jurisdiction the High Court might know what was in the mind of the lower revisional Court when that Court passed its order. It cannot be said that an order staying proceedings under S. 13 of the Sind Frontier Regulations is an order which by necessary implication falls within the provisions of S. 17 of the Regulation, and that therefore it cannot be revised by the High Court under S. 439, Cr.P. Code. S. 13 of the Regulations must be read with and in the light of S. 8, S. 8 is a governing section so far as Ss. 12 and 13 are concerned. An offence under S. 366, I.P. Code, does not fall under S. 8 of the Regulations and is not an offence which can be tried by a Council of Elders, and a Sessions Judge has therefore no jurisdiction to pass an order of stay under S. 13 (2) in respect of such an offence. If he passes such an order, it is an unlawful and improper order, but it is still an order passed by him in a trial held under the Cr.P. Code and his order therefore falls within the scope of the revisional powers of the High Court under S. 439 read with S. 423 (1) (c), Cr. P. Code. The High Court has therefore jurisdiction to set aside in revision the order of the Sessions Judge purporting to be passed under S. 13 (2) of the Regulations, but which in law is not passed under that section at all. Hence where there has been no appeal under S. 476 B, objection that the Court had no jurisdiction to entertain the complaint could not be raised in revision against the conviction. Although an order of a trial Magistrate accepting the claim made by an accused person under S. 443, Cr. P. CR. P. CODE (1898), S. 476-B.

S. 476-B, no doubt, contemplates an appeal against the complaint which is directed to be filed. But the section is not happily worded, because it is clear that an appeal must in reality be against the order finding that a complaint should be made and not against the complaint itself; it will be only in the said order that reasons for the making of the complaint would be given. S. 419, Cr. P. Code, only refers to copies of judgment, or order appealed against, and a complaint cannot be said to be a judgment or order. A complaint under S. 476 follows as the result of the order. An appeal under S. 476-B, generally speaking, must, in the nature of the proceedings, lie not against the complaint, but against the order finding that a complaint should be made. While an appellate Court dealing with an appeal under S. 476-B Cr. P. Code, might say that it is desirable that a copy of the complaint also should be before it and not merely a copy of the order, or might even direct a certified copy of the complaint to be produced before it would deal with the appeal; it is not justified in dismissing an appeal summarily on the ground that only a copy of the order, and not a copy of the complaint, has been filed along with the appeal, without giving the appellant an opportunity to produce a copy of the complaint. According to the proper construction of S. 476-B, an appeal against the complaint itself necessarily includes an appeal against the order finding that a complaint should be made—the order and the complaint made in pursuance thereof being for the purpose of appeal, part of one and the same thing. A person against whom a complaint is made under S. 476, Cr. P. The remedy does not lie in the Court to which the complaint is made. A District magistrate to whom an appeal is preferred under S. 476-B, has no power to send the appeal for hearing to a subordinate magistrate to whom the complaint was made. It is only an appeal under S. 407 (1) that can be sent by the District magistrate to a subordinate magistrate. S, 476-B, Cr.P. Reading Ss. 476 and 476 B, together it is evident that the law requires the Court deciding to lay a complaint to make the complaint itself. Hence in an appeal under S. 476 B, Cr. P. It would be improper for the Court to refuse maintenance for the child merely because it is of opinion that the mother has no right to the custody of the child. There is no justification for the view that an order for maintenance is to be treated as a good and executable order until it is cancelled or set aside. Where an order for maintenance in favour of a wife is cancelled under S. 488 (5), Cr. P. Code, on the ground that the wife was living in adultery, such cancellation has the effect of extinguishing the wife's right not only in regard to future maintenance but also as regards the arrears of maintenance accrued due in the past. Held, that as the offences with which the accused were charged were bailable offences with regard to which the Magistrate had no discretion in the matter of granting bail, the extraneous condition imposed by the Magistrate in granting bail was not authorised by law, and should therefore be deleted. The provisions of S. 498, Cr. P. Code, regarding admission to bail are very wide, and S. 123 (2), Cr. P. Code, contains nothing which can be interpreted as controlling the very wide provisions of S. 498. A Sessions Judge acting under S. 123, Cr. P. Code, has therefore power to grant bail to a person against whom an order under S. 118, Cr. P. Code, has been made in a proceeding laid before him. The fact that the grant of bail to such a person would in some cases result in rendering the order under S. 118 nugatory by reason of the fact that the order would lapse by efflux of time by the time the order is dealt with by the Sessions Judge under S. 123 (2) when it is placed before him, is no ground for holding that bail cannot be granted under S. 498. A Sessions Judge acting under S. 123 (2), Cr. P. Code has jurisdiction to direct that the imprisonment should run from the date of his order and not from the date of the Magistrate's order which comes before him under S. 123 (2). The expression "person claiming to be entitled to possession" is important. It does not mean the owner. Ownership involves a question of title, whereas possession does not. Hence where the articles were recovered from a bona fide pledgee, his possession being under a contract must be regarded as legal possession and if the contract is valid it must be assumed that he would be the person entitled to possession thereof as against the other party to the contract. ——Ss. 523 and 517—Applicability—Theft—Magistrate finding that article was stolen by accused from complainant and sold to C—Procedure.

The Magistrate in a case under S. 379, Penal Code, came to the conclusion that the article was stolen by the accused from the complainant and sold to C. He therefore ordered it to be returned to the complainant. Thereupon the purchaser C preferred an application to the Magistrate claiming the article, and the Magistrate passed an order to the effect that the complainant was entitled to possession of the article and the remedy of C was by civil suit against the seller (accused) to recover money paid by him.

Held, that S. 517 was inapplicable to the case as there was neither an inquiry nor a trial in any Criminal Court and the order of the Magistrate could not have been made under that section. The only section applicable to the case was S. 523. (Lobo, J.) SULLEMAN HAJI ELLIAS v. EMPEROR. I.L.R. (1942) Kar. 72=202 I.C. 220=15 R.S. 37=43 Cr.L.J. 804=A.I.R. 1942 Sind 89.

——S. 523—Procedure—Duty of Magistrate—Charge of theft—Accused denying charge and pleading that property was foisted on them—Acquittal—Order for return of property to accused—Legality.

Under S. 523, Cr. P. Code, the Magistrate is bound to order the property to be given to the person entitled to possession; it is his duty under the section to make an inquiry as to the person entitled to possession and to order possession to be given to him. If he is unable after inquiry to satisfy himself as to the person entitled to possession, he should under S. 523 (2), issue a proclamation before passing final orders. Where the accused, charged with theft plead that they have committed no theft, and that the property alleged to be stolen was foisted on them and the Magistrate accepts this defence and acquits the accused doubting whether any theft has been committed, he should not order the property to be returned to the accused. Such an order is clearly wrong and illegal. (Horwill, J.) CHINNAVADU, In re. 204 I.C. 37=55 L.W. 713=1942 M.W.N. 727=A.I.R. 1942 Mad. 726 (1)=(1942) 2 M.L.J. 575.

——S. 523—Procedure—Independent inquiry—If essential before making order.

It is not obligatory on a Magistrate called upon to take action under S. 523 (2) to make any inquiry before passing his order. Ordinarily he proceeds on such materials as are available before him and he has to decide the question not who was in possession at the time the property was seized by the police, but who was entitled to possession. The order under S. 523 can be passed on the materials before the Magistrate without any independent enquiry regarding the ownership of the property. S. 523 provides for an inquiry only in the case where the person entitled to possession is unknown. When the Magistrate had plenty of material before him on which to arrive at a conclusion as to who was the person entitled to the possession of the article and has decided the case on that material, the High Court will not interfere with his decision in revision. S. 540, Cr. P. Code, gives very wide powers to all Courts at any stage in any proceeding to examine witnesses if such evidence appears necessary for a just decision of the case. An appellate magistrate is therefore entitled to ascertain what transpired in the trial Court by calling for a report or otherwise. CR. P. CODE (1898), S. 561-A.

The accused who was the defendant in a suit for rent was called upon by the District Munsif who tried the suit under S. 476, Cr. P. Code, to show cause why he should not be prosecuted for forgery in respect of a receipt filed by him in the suit, and after inquiring into the matter ordered a complaint to be filed against the accused. The accused preferred an appeal under S. 476-B, Cr.P. Code, to the District Judge who dismissed the appeal, holding that the District Munsif was justified in filing the complaint. The accused was put up for trial before the Sessions Judge who happened to be the same District Judge who dismissed the accused's appeal under S. 476 B, Cr. P. Code. The accused in his appeal from his conviction after trial pleaded that the Sessions Judge was precluded from trying the case by reason of S. 556, Cr. P. Code.

Held, that only if the district judge had himself filed the complaint, or had ordered the district munsif to lay a complaint under S. 476-B in an appeal from an order of the District Munsif declining to lay a complaint, the District Judge would have been directly hit by S. 556, Cr. P. Code, but in the present case, he could not be said to be have been a party to the proceedings or to be personally interested in the result, so as to preclude him from trying the case as Sessions Judge. ——S. 562—Applicability—Conviction under S. 304, I. P. Code—Order under S. 562 Cr. P. Code—Propriety.

S 562, Cr. P. Code, is ordinarily intended for persons led astray for the first time by force of circumstances or by bad company or evil influence. It is very inappropriate and is rarely applied to an offence punishable under S. 304, I. P. Code, especially where the accused shows no regret at all for the act committed. The deceased, a girl of about 16 or 17 years of age, had been talking to a cousin of hers in the village on several occasions and on that account people had been gossiping about her. The third accused, her sister's husband, reported this to her mother the first accused, about this. The first accused, and the second accused, the sister of the deceased, dragged the deceased towards an empty house intending to shut her up there for the night. When the deceased resisted, the first accused took up a heavy piece of wood and struck the deceased a blow on the head which caused the deceased to fall to the ground at once. She appeared to be dead and on the advice of the third accused who just then came in, the deceased was hung up to a beam of the house to make it appear that she had committed suicide. Within a short time the girl was cremated, it being given out that she had committed suicide. It was impossible to know precisely the proximate cause of death as there was no post mortem. The first accused was convicted under S. 304 (2), I. P. Code, but instead of sentencing her to imprisonment, the Sessions Judge treated her as a first offender and bound her over under S. 562, Cr. P. Code.

Held, in revision, that the first accused was guilty at least of an offence punishable under S. 304, I. P. Code, and though the application of S. 562, Cr. P. Code, was not illegal in the case of an offence punishable under S. 304 (2), I.P. Code, the order in this case was very inappropriate and should not be allowed to stand.

Held, further, that though the first accused deserved heavier sentence, in view of her being an old woman a sentence of five years' rigorous imprisonment would be sufficient. ——S. 562—Applicability—Principles to be borne in mind—First offender—Desirability of avoiding imprisonment of.

It is desirable to avoid sending a first offender to prison for an offence which is not of a serious character, and thereby running the risk of turning him into a regular criminal. In applying the provisions of S. 562, Cr. P. Code, it is better to err (if one must) on the side of liberality. CRIMINAL TRIAL.

———Burden of proof—Onus on prosecution and on defence—Degree of certainty required—Fundamental distinction.

There is a subtle but fundamental distinction between the degree of certainty required in cases where the burden of proving a fact is on the prosecution and those where the burden of proof is on the accused. When the burden of the issue is on the prosecution, the case must be proved beyond a reasonable doubt. Where, however, the burden of an issue is on the accused, he is not required to prove it beyond a reasonable doubt or in default to incur a verdict of guilty; it is sufficient if he succeeds in proving a prima facie case, for then the burden of proving such issue is shifted to the prosecution which has still to discharge its original and major onus that never shifts (i.e.) that of establishing on the whole case, guilt beyond a reasonable doubt. If upon a review of all the evidence the Court is left in doubt whether the circumstances bringing the case of the accused within a general exception exist or not, the accused is entitled to acquittal. The test is not whether the accused has proved beyond all reasonable doubt that he comes within the exception but whether a reasonable doubt is thrown on the guilt of the accused.
